BILLIONS MORE SPENDING TOLD BY PRESIDENT

Party Leaders Hear of Great Plans.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Colossal additional expenditures on the President's recovery program were the subject of consideration at a conference at the White House tonight between Mr. Roosevelt and Democratic key men in congress.

It was a breath-taking array of figures culled from his forthcoming budget that the President laid before the congress leaders. From what was learned from the close lipped senators and representatives who filed out of the White House after their three hour session the deficit for the current fiscal year ending June 30, next, is destined to reach monumental proportions.

According to one of the legislators, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S estimate some time ago that the 1934 deficit would touch five billion dollars erred on the side of conservatism.

First of a Series.

The conferees said that the discussion was confined to the budget and denied that the question of the President's monetary policy was touched upon even casually. It was made known at the White House that the conference tonight was the first of a series on the legislative program. The question of appropriation by the government of the increment of value of the gold in the federal reserve banks when the dollar shall have been devalued will be considered at a conference in which the chairmen of the banking and currency committees of the senate and house will participate.

The discussion tonight revolved chiefly around the increased taxation and other measures that will be required to finance the enormous outlay on recovery projects. The leaders approved the President's plan for meeting the deficit which he will submit to congress in his budget message this week.

May Issue Paper Money.

Although several hundred million dollars is expected to be realized from liquor taxes and from revision of the income tax law, the greater part of the deficit is to be met with paper money issued against the increment in the value of gold accruing from devaluation of the dollar. There are 3 billion 600 million dollars of gold in the federal reserve banks and 200 millions in the treasury. If the gold value of the dollar be cut in two this gold will be given a new value of 7 billion 600 millions. There would be an increment of 2 billion 800 millions against which paper money could be issued.

The Democratic leaders informed the President that the country is overwhelmingly behind him in his efforts to bring about recovery of prosperity and that there will be no formidable opposition to his program in the session of congress beginning on Wednesday. They gained the impression from what the President told them of his plans that his message, which will be transmitted to congress Wednesday or Thursday will be a momentous document in its presentation of the aspirations of the new deal and its explanation of the administration monetary policy.

Those Who Took Part.

The Democratic leaders participating in the conference included Vice President Garner, Speaker Henry T. Rainey [Ill.], Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Ark.], majority leader of the senate; Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Tenn.], majority leader of the house; Senator Pat Harrison [Miss.], chairman of the senate finance committee; Senator Carter Glass [Va.], chairman of the senate appropriations committee; Representative Robert L. Doughton [N. C.], chairman of the house ways and means committee, and Representative James P. Buchanan [Tex.], chairman of the house appropriations committee.

Debt Nearly 24 Billion.

Figures before the conferees in connection with the budget discussion showed that the gross public debt on Dec. 27, 1933, had reached $23,823,752,190, compared with $20,281,249 on Dec. 27, 1932. However there was $1,072,247,019 in the general fund on the former date, as compared with $591,080,162 on the latter, somewhat reducing the spread of the net debt.

The all time peak of the public debt was reached on Aug. 31, 1919, when it was $26,596,701,090, and the general fund balance $1,118,109,534.

The growth in the debt by fiscal years has been continuous since June

MORGENTHAU SWORN IN AS HIS SUCCESSOR

Roosevelt Praises Ex-Colleague.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today completed the shakeup of the treasury department, which he started a month and a half ago, by accepting the final resignation of Secretary William H. Woodin and appointing Henry Morgenthau Jr. in his place.

While the President was revamping the treasury, his new farm administrator, Chester Davis, was pushing through a sweeping reorganization of the agricultural adjustment administration. That change will wipe out eight of the administration's divisions because their functions are being usurped by the NRA, George N. Peek's study of agricultural export trade, or the federal alcohol control administration.

Woodin's Resignation Letter.

In announcing his aceptance of Mr. Woodin's resignation, President Roosevelt made public an exchange of letters between himself and his former treasury head. Mr. Woodin's letter said:

"Tucson, Ariz.,
"December 13, 1933.

"Dear Governor:

"It is with great regret that I am compelled to tender you my resignation as secretary of the treasury, to take effect at your convenience any time before Jan. 1.

"The state of my health will not permit me to remain in this position.

"I cannot express what a wrench it is to me to leave your official family and you must know how proud and happy I have been to have served you.

"With great admiration and affection,

"Faithfully yours,
"W. H. WOODIN."

Reply by President.

The President's reply, dated Dec. 20, follows:

"Dear Will:

"That you feel you must definitely leave the treasury post by the end of the year is, of course, a great sorrow to me; but I am even more saddened by the thought that the throat is still giving trouble.

"I know, however, that it is of the highest importance that you shelve all official cares, and that with your fine courage and constitution you will soon get wholly well.

"Remember that when that day comes you are wanted and needed in the service of the country. Your calm, practical and courageous action in the difficult days of last spring and summer will always be remembered.

"All of us miss you greatly and all of us send you our devoted regards.

"Henry Morgenthau Jr. will go in on Jan. 1, and I am happy in the thought that you so strongly approve the choice.

"Take care of yourself.

"Faithfully and affectionately yours.
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Morgenthau Takes Oath.

Mr. Morgenthau, who has been acting secretary since the first treasury shakeup came on Nov. 15, was sworn in as secretary by F. A. Birgfeld, chief clerk of the treasury. The President himself, members of the Roosevelt family, Mrs. Morgenthau, Henry Morgenthau Sr., and members of the Morgenthau family witnessed the ceremony.

Left vacant by the elevation of Mr. Morgenthau is the post of undersecretary which he occupied while acting head of the treasury. President Roosevelt tonight explained through his secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre, that he had given no thought to filling that post.

Earle Bailie, who has been performing the functions of undersecretary, would have his confirmation for that post sharply contested in the senate, it is believed, because during his connection with the investment house of J. & W. Seligman, a senate investigation revealed, he was instrumental in floating in this country Peruvian bonds now in default.

Senate Must Confirm.

Appointment of Mr. Morgenthau, who will now go before the senate for confirmation as secretary, completes the treasury shakeup which began Nov. 15 and which has transformed

Gunmen Walk Into Home and Kill Gambler

Michael Regan, alias Walsh, 29 years old, a gambler with a police record as a robber and suspected murderer, was shot to death yesterday by three gunmen who hunted him down in his mother-in-law's home at 9223 Houston avenue in South Chicago and riddled him with bullets.

The slaying was witnessed by the mother-in-law, Mrs. May Watley, and by Regan's bride of four months, Mary, who is 23 years old and a former cabaret hostess. The police in their early investigation were unable to determine the motive for the killing, but they believed it grew out of Regan's underworld associations.

Holdup Witnesses to View Body.

On the possibility that Regan may have figured in the robbery and gun battle at the Beverly Gardens in Evergreen Park early Sunday, and that he was killed because of a quarrel over a division of the loot, Lieut. Richard Barry of the detective bureau, ordered that witnesses in that case look at Regan's body in the county morgue. The Beverly Gardens crime, laid to the Dillinger gang, resulted in the wounding of Lieut. Ed Weber and Sergt. James Allegretti of the county highway police.

The murder of Regan took place on the gunmen's second visit of the day to the Watley home. The first time they fired a volley of shots through a window when their ring at the door was not answered. The second time, when Mrs. Watley appeared at the door, they pushed past her and moved into the house.

Killers Search House.

With drawn automatic pistols the invaders walked to the kitchen, where a friend of the family, Adolph Thimmig, 8922 Houston avenue, was sitting. Not finding Regan there, they began a search of the house and were proceeding toward the front of the place when Regan appeared in pajamas in the doorway of his room with his wife behind him.

Without a word the gunmen opened fire. Regan fell to the floor with bullets in his neck, shoulder and temple. The men who had killed him strolled out of the house, got into a small blue sedan and were driven away by a fourth man.

Physician Pursues Slayers.

The slayers were pursued for several blocks by Dr. Paul J. Starcevic, a physician with an office at 3026 East 92d street, a few doors from the Watley home. The physician was sitting in his automobile in front of his office when he saw the gunmen's car speed away and heard a passerby shout: "They killed a man." He took up the chase, but lost sight of the killers after a few blocks.

Regan's wife told the police that she had no inkling of his police record, though she had known him for 16 months before they were wed last September. She married him under the name of Michael Walsh, she said.

The police questioned Frank Newberg, 253 East 47th street, operator of a handbook at 6217 Cottage Grove avenue, after Regan's wife identified him as a former partner of her husband.

Regan was arrested in New Orleans under the name of Michael Crowley for the killing of Sam Villella, 26 years old, in Omaha on Oct. 25, 1931. Regan was found not guilty of the murder at a trial in Omaha.

37 ARE MISSING AS WATERS HIT CITY, SUBURBS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—A flood, fed by torrential rains of unprecedented violence, swept suddenly out of the mountains into Los Angeles this morning, inundated valleys and suburban towns, made thousands of persons homeless, and carried death and destruction in its path.

Thirty-seven are known to be dead. Their bodies have been recovered. Many other victims are expected to be found. Thirty-seven persons are known to be missing and are believed to have drowned. In addition there are seven dead from motor car accidents, results of the flood.

The devastated areas tonight were still struggling with the wreckage and ruin left by the deluge. The rain which caused their suffering ceased at noon, but new downpours started tonight.

Everywhere is water, one foot, two feet, and even up to ten feet. Part of the heart of Los Angeles' business district resembles a lake. Inability of trains to get nearer here than 15 miles, hampers relief and recue work.

Suburbs Chief Sufferers.

North and south streets in the city proper form sizeable creeks, while the Los Angeles river, practically a dry gulch 364 days out of the year, is a raging stream.

Although hit hard, Los Angeles proper escaped the main force of the flood. It was the towns on the outskirts, in the lowlands, on the rivers, that caught the brunt.

Glendale, Montrose, La Crescenta, Echo Park, Long Beach, Alamitos Beach, Venice, Redondo Beach, and other towns were those in the direct path of the inundation. It was in these places that the heaviest toll of life occurred. It was in the Montrose region only two months ago that the tragic shrub fire occurred, burning more than a score of men to death.

The disaster paralyzed travel and communication and it was not until late this evening that reliable reports began filtering in.

Record Downpour.

Moreover, until the water recedes from the stricken areas—perhaps after some days—a complete survey will be impossible. In many places ponderous layers of soil, stone and wreckage bury inevitable tragedies.

The flood burst upon Glendale a few minutes after midnight. Rain fell terrifically. The downpour varied in intensity from place to place, but it established everywhere an all time record. The average precipitation for Los Angeles county during the storm was 3.26 inches, almost twice the season's normal total of 4.81. E. C. Eaton, county flood engineer, described it as a cloudburst.

No one envisioned what the unusual rainfall of the week-end would presage, and last night all was merry in Glendale, Montrose, and the other towns in welcome of the new year. Toward midnight the storm grew worse. There was no inkling of danger as the old year passed out and the new one entered.

Mountain of Destruction.

Glendale shook with a curious rumbling and thudding. Montrose experienced the same sensation. So did La Crescenta and La Canada, all clustered in the hills and valleys a bit northwest of Los Angeles proper.

A wall of water, estimated at 30 feet high, roared through Earl and Pickens canyons, and carried all before it. Houses were bowled over. Others bobbed along like boats and ran aground hundreds of feet away. Trees snapped and disappeared. Huge boulders rolled along with the wave and crashed into buildings.

At Montrose the surging waters burst into the American Legion hall, killing Mrs. Myrtle Adams, chairman of the La Crescenta Valley Red Cross, in charge of the station, and a woman identified only as Mrs. Reill, a volunteer Red Cross worker. At the time some 20 or 25 victims of the overflows that preceded the general flood, huddled in the station. Many suffered bruises or more serious injuries.

Debris 12 Feet Deep.

In Montrose, the high water hit the home of Charles Warfield, swept it away. Warfield's skull was fractured, his wife was injured internally, and his son, Buddy, 5, was severely bruised by falling debris. The Warfields' other children, Charles Jr., 15, and Edith, 6, disappeared.

Nearby George S. Brooks' residence moved 75 feet as the family sat in it. Fifty homes along Ocean View avenue in Montrose and 25 on Foothill boulevard between Montrose and La Crescenta were demolished.

Whatever remained in the wake of the deluge lay buried under rocks, silt and sand, in some places 12 feet deep. Ten bodies were dug from this deposit by night. Many untouched acres of disaster remained.

What happened at Montrose was typical of the tragedies at Glendale and La Crescenta, but, perhaps, worse.

Woman Washed Under Car.

The rushing waters after leaving this area swept into the San Gabriel valley and river, center of the citrus fruit region. Here five persons drowned when their automobile plunged into the torrent of Rubio wash, near Alhambra, as a bridge collapsed. A sixth occupant of the car swam to safety.

For twenty miles to the southeast of the origin of the flood the waters continued to rage. Down in Monterey park, Mrs. Dorothy Carber stepped out of her stalled car, was washed beneath it and drowned.

Damage in the Venice and Santa Monica areas was caused by a combination of flood waters, heavy rains, and a burst dyke along the lower Los Angeles river, which flows into Ballona creek.

Some 1,500 homes were appreciably flooded by the Los Angeles river at Long Beach. Dozens of residents in the worst stricken areas were removed to safety by boats.

A refugee encampment was established on Sunset pier in Venice. Here, despite the havoc, only one death was reported, that of a boy when his raft overturned.

Zoo Animals Escape.

Fragmentary reports from other areas indicated considerable property damage but no widespread loss of life. The deaths apparently centered in the Montrose-LaCrescenta area. Considerable apprehension persisted for the safety of a number of celebrants at the Bohemian Gardens night club, situated in a ravine. The torrent swept through this ravine, covering nearly 200 automobiles up to the windows.

Many blocks of Riverside drive in Los Angeles proper were torn by the Los Angeles river as it raged along in fury. The river overflowed its banks and cut into the highway gradings. The lower Griffith Park golf course was flooded, as were the bridle paths and the highway.

In some instances here the land lay beneath 9 and 10 feet of water. A part of the Griffith Park zoo was wrecked by a landslide, permitting a various pack of wild animals to escape.

Highways in the San Fernando valley were clogged. Two girls and a youth, witnesses said, plunged from Riverside drive in their automobile into the Los Angeles river.

Movie Lights Aid Search.

Hollywood suffered from the deluge, but Beverly Hills and Santa Monica, all of which are in the foothills of the Santa Monica mountains, came out comparatively unscathed. The movie industry lent its aid in funds and in huge lights, the latter necessary in conducting searches in the severely stricken areas.

Everywhere the scene of destruction or damage was grim and complete. Highways were covered with stranded automobiles. In terrain depressions were small lakes. On somewhat higher land houses were shunted to alien sites. Gardens were destroyed.

All coastal regions bowed under the furious rainstorm and some experienced rising waters of not quite flood stage. At Los Alamitos, policemen, lifeguards, firemen, and citizens were drafted into service. Many of them manned boats to search for bodies. In this section alone an area of three square miles lay under water.

The tragedy of the disaster was emphasized in hospital facilities. The Los Angeles general hospital pumping station was submerged, shutting off light and heat. Patients were covered with extra blankets.

Room heat was furnished with coal oil stoves. Candles, flashlights, and such supplied light. It became necessary after a while to refuse any more victims, and they were sent to other hospitals.

Los Angeles proper thanked itself that it escaped the fate of the low land towns. All around the city stretched destruction.

Latest of Hard Blows.

Today's flood was the latest of several blows Los Angeles has suffered from the elements. In March, 1933, southern California was shaken by an earthquake which rocked this city and neighboring towns and took a toll of 127 lives. Last October, following a record breaking drought, a brush fire started in Griffith Park. At least twenty-seven men working there were burned to death. At least eight terrific heat waves have hit the city since June.

STEGE'S SQUADS PRESS SEARCH FOR DILLINGER

Capt. John Stege and his special squads yesterday continued the search for the band of outlaws headed by John Dillinger, escaped Indiana convict, who are believed to have been responsible for the robbery of the Beverly Gardens, a roadhouse at 9140 South Western avenue, on Sunday night. The police believe they wounded two of the gang in a gun battle after the robbery. Lieut. Edward Weber of the county highway police and Sergt. James Allegretti were slightly wounded in the fight.

De Valera and Cardinal Join Fight Against Jazz Dancing

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Irish Free State's campaign of disapproval against jazz dancing received official support today from Cardinal McRory and President Eamon de Valera, who sent messages of approval to a big meeting at Mobill. The aim of the meeting was proclaimed on banners inscribed "Down with jazz and paganism!" Cardinal McRory denounced the moral dangers of all-night dancing and sent his wishes for success of the campaign. De Valera said he hoped for the restoration of Ireland's national forms of folk dances.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Only two free editions of the Evening Independent were given away during the year 1933, in accordance with the "sunshine offer" of a free edition every day the sun fails to shine up to press time, Maj. Lew B. Brown, owner, who originated the offer, said today. The yearly average over the more than 23 years' period the offer has stood has been five editions.

ENDS HIS LIFE WITH GUN.

GUNMEN SCALD VICTIM IN HUNT FOR HIDDEN CASH

Bert Rickenberger, 1204 West Huron street, a laborer, was in a serious condition at the county hospital last night suffering from burns inflicted New Year's eve by three gunmen who poured a kettle full of hot water on him in an attempt to force him to reveal places they believed he had money hidden. Rickenberger was in bed when the bandits entered his room. He insisted he had no money, but they slugged and beat him and finally scalded him, but they got no money.

567,000 More Persons Get Jobs in Britain in 1933

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The monthly ministry of labor returns issued tonight show a further substantial increase in employment in Great Britain. On Dec. 18 approximately 10,700,000 insured persons between 16 and 64 were employed. This is 51,000 more than in November and 567,000 more than a year ago. The total of registered unemployed is now 2,224,079.

STARK STORIES OF TRAGEDIES IN FLOOD ZONE

Tell How Victims Gave Up Lives in Water.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Henry Hesse's gay New Year's eve party at his home in Montrose was interrupted by the rush of flood waters outside.

Hesse opened the rear door and saw the back porch swept away by a wall of water. The house was near roaring Verdugo Wash.

"Everybody get out," he shouted, seizing his wife by the hand.

As they plunged into the swirling water the house crumbled and most of it was swept away. Hesse said he was sure none of their five guests, two women and three men, escaped. He and his wife caught a floating tree trunk and swam to safety.

Another dramatic story told tonight was that of Chester Herrera, 12 years old, who was playing with Bobby Dungerson, 13, on a raft they floated in a flood at Hoover and 167th streets. The raft overturned, plunging them both into the stream. Bobby swam ashore, but Chester was sucked into a storm drain and drowned.

Wendell Farr, 19, drove his motor car into the Los Angeles river at Victory boulevard, apparently unable to see that the bridge had been washed away. Two girls and a boy who were with him escaped from the swirling waters, but Farr is missing. Behind Farr came Richard Draper, who also drove into the river. He and Larry McDonald escaped from the car, but Virginia Pulliam, 17, and Phyllis Brooks, 17, have not been found.

Matt Lane, 53, transient, and four companions were sleeping in a box car when the spur track upon which it stood was undermined. Lane and R. E. Smith jumped from the car as it tumbled into the river and were fished out by railroad employés. The others were not found.

Detective Lieutenant J. C. Kriewald, on duty near Airport Gardens, saw a truck and trailer turn from a side street and plunge into a pool. He waded into the water, which came almost to his head, and carried Ralph Shelly and his mother, Mrs. Helen Shelly, to dry ground.

"My dog!" cried Mrs. Shelly. "My dog—he's still in there."

So Kriewald plunged into the submerged car and rescued the pet bulldog.

Robert Halarity, dairyman, drove his 150 cows, threatened by the overflowing San Gabriel river east of Long Beach, to higher ground and returned to find his wife and children had taken refuge in the second story of the barn, already surrounded by water and in danger of being swept away. A patrol from the Long Beach lifeguards answered Halarity's frantic cries and rescued them.

A girl of 14 and a boy of 19 wandered from morgues to temporary shelters tonight searching for lost members of their families. The girl, Jean Beauchamp, shivered and trembled in a Red Cross camp as she remembered her fight for life while she clung to a tree limb after being swept five blocks by the raging torrents which swept away her Montrose home. The youth is Jack Marsh. Whisked from his home, he, too, clung to a tree and pulled himself to safety while the wild flood tore on beneath.

PROFESSOR OUSTED BY NAZIS BEGINS CLASS AT THE U. OF C. TODAY

Dr. Melchoir Palyi, German economist who was displaced by the Nazis from several academic and semi-official positions in Berlin because of his liberal convictions, will begin his teaching duties today as guest professor of economics at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Palyi left Germany after he had been removed as economist for the Deutschebank and as professor in the Berlin Handelhochschule. He was also director of the Institute of Currency Research, the monetary advisory body of the Reichsbank, and editor of that institution's journal, Monetary Economy.

The course Dr. Palyi will begin is entitled "Monetary Theory." During the spring quarter he will give a course on "European Banking Systems and Problems," and during the summer a course on "Business Cycles." His appointment was made possible by gifts to the university from several sources, including several Chicago donors.

N. Y. REDUCES PUPILS OVER AGE FOR CLASS

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Fewer overage pupils, a higher promotion rate and smaller classes are noted by Dr. William J. O'Shea, superintendent of schools, in his annual report. Dr. O'Shea says that in September, 1924, 36.3 per cent of elementary school children were retarded one year or more, while in September, 1932, only 28.7 per cent were retarded.

"Despite the increase in registry from 695,407 in September, 1924, to 704,550 in September, 1932," Dr. O'Shea writes, "the number of pupils retarded two years or more dropped from 41,899 to 29,918. The reduction has come about through a better understanding of individual differences."

BERI-BERI HITS FISHERFOLK OF NEWFOUNDLAND

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Doctors of the Newfoundland outports had their backs to the wall today in a battle against beri-beri, a disease caused by specific diet deficiencies, which often follow the wake of poverty.

Twenty-five per cent of the people in Newfoundland were on the dole last winter and 20 per cent will be dependent during the next two months.

Physicians said there have been repeated visitations of beri-beri in villages where most of the fisherfolk are existing on rations equalling $1.50 a month.

PUSH KELLY PLAN TO PAY TEACHERS WITH U. S. LOAN

All Chicago Congressmen Promise Support.

The weight of Chicago's representation in congress will be thrown behind Mayor Kelly's program to pay up the teachers in full with federal funds. A canvass revealed yesterday that five Democratic congressmen are willing to push the legislation needed to carry out the plan at the coming session of congress. Two Republican congressmen said they would coöperate.

The plan advanced by Mayor Kelly provides for pledging $30,000,000 worth of school property not used for education purposes in the city as additional security for a purchase by the federal government of $40,000,000 worth of school bonds. This would probably require an amendment to the Reconstruction Finance corporation act.

$20,000,000 Still Due.

A sale of the bonds would not balance of the school board's 1934 budget, but it would pay teachers' back salaries and go a long way toward financing school pay rolls for this year. The school workers will start receiving on Thursday 1933 tax anticipation warrants in lieu of cash for their services during the last two weeks of April of last year.

After this pay day the teachers and other school employés will be owed $20,000,000 in 1933 salaries.

Gov. Horner has announced that he would back the Kelly program and will make provision in his call for the third special session of the legislature for legislation to allow the school board to pledge its property. The plan also has the indorsement of United States Senators J. Hamilton Lewis and William H. Dieterich.

Prepares Amendment.

Congressman A. J. Sabath declared he had discussed the program in conference with the mayor and school board counsel recently. He said he had started to prepare an amendment to the RFC act and would "go the whole distance with Mayor Kelly."

"Any federal legislation that will aid the school board in meeting its obligations has my hearty sanction," said Congressman Harry P. Beam. "In my opinion the city of Chicago and the state of Illinois pay enough in taxes to the federal government to warrant this loan. It is time that the government realizes this fact. I am willing to draft, introduce, and sponsor any bill that will push the mayor's program."

Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz said the RFC should purchase the school bonds and declared he would vote for any bill to bring this about. He said that it was not an educational matter, but a financial transaction that would be beneficial for all parties concerned.

"I'm heartily in favor of the mayor's program," asserted Congressman Edward A. Kelly, "and I shall work to carry it through. It would be a great thing for the city if the teachers were paid up to date and those millions in back salaries were put into circulation. The teachers will be enabled to pay their obligations and the morale of the school system will again return to normalcy."

Calls Plan Sound.

Congressman Leo Kocialowski pronounced the mayor's plan "sound and constructive" and pledged his help during the coming session of congress.

Congressman Fred A. Britten, a Republican, interviewed in Washington, promised his support.

"If any way can be found to get federal money for back pay for Chicago teachers, police and firemen, I'm for it," said Congressman Britten. "If it would be necessary to introduce a resolution in congress to get the money, I'm for that."

Another Republican congressman, P. H. Moynihan, said he favored any constructive program that would bring the teachers' salaries up to date and help solve the school board's financial troubles.

The announcement that the warrants would be ready for school employés by Thursday was made by Supt. William J. Bogan. Principals and assistant principals were requested to call tomorrow at the office of the secretary of the board of education in the Builders' building at La Salle street and Wacker drive. They will obtain mutilated checks which the teachers will exchange for the tax warrants.

Kelly and Horner Continue Liquor Control Deadlock

The deadlock between Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly on the issue of home rule versus state control in liquor legislation showed no sign of breaking yesterday.

The governor, in discussing liquor measures at Springfield, reaffirmed his stand for a state commission to rule liquor retailers and deplored the delay in enacting legislation. While the mayor was on a holiday trip yesterday and could not be reached by interviewers, he has scheduled a conference with Chicago members of the senate for this afternoon and several of those invited said that they believed he was keeping a firm stand for home rule.

Senator Backs Mayor.

"I believe that the mayor will reiterate the agreement that he understood he had reached with Gov. Horner on liquor measures," said Senator George M. Maypole. "I'm for home rule and opposed to any measures that will take home rule from Chicago. I believe the mayor's position to be the soundest one and that it wil be so at the finish."

The senator said he was opposed to the return of the old saloon and conditions that existed in pre-prohibition days, but does not think that the Lager bill, now pending in the legislature, would achieve that end. The mayor, he stated, should be given an opportunity to work out liquor control, and he expressed the belief that the mayor would have the aid of all decent citizens for the task.

Senator Richey V. Graham stated his position as strongly opposed to bars and saloons, but said he favored home rule. Senator Harold G. Ward, chairman of the state commission on liquor legislation, expressed the opinion that the mayor hadn't changed his mind on home rule. He also pointed out that the state did not prohibit bars when the sale of 3.2 beer became legal.

Horner Attacks Delay.

In reaffirming his stand, Gov. Horner said at Springfield:

"The delay is deplorable and harmful to the state. Ever since Dec. 5 intoxicating liquors have been sold in Illinois without state regulation of any kind. Municipalities have been forced to attempt to regulate sales by measures that are at best but expedients, created just for the emergency, and are of most doubtful validity. Furthermore, the state is losing revenue at the rate of many thousands of dollars a day when that particular revenue is needed.

"When the legislature reconvenes, I hope that the opposition will have come to the realization that local authorities alone cannot prevent abuses, and that much more efficient enforcement may be obtained by their efforts supported by the power and authority of the state. As for myself, I shall stand firm for an effective regulatory law with a state commission having powers broad enough to check and prevent the liquor evils of pre-prohibition days, and which will encourage and promote true temperance."

In Chicago today is the last day for obtaining liquor licenses. There are 8,326 establishments now entitled to dispense 3.2 beer, but only 4,358 applications have been made for liquor licenses for the first six months of this year. The mayor has said he will close all retail liquor establishments which have not applied for a 1934 license by midnight tonight.

CWA MAY PLANT THOUSANDS OF TREES FOR CITY

Plan to Beautify Many of Chicago's Parkways.

The transplanting of tens of thousands of trees from the forest preserves to the parkways of Chicago was being considered yesterday by civil works administration. The project was hailed as one of the more practical means of putting men to work with CWA funds.

Berlin has its Unter den Linden, Paris its Champs Elysees, Tivoli in Italy its Villa d'Este, and Chicago may also have its famous road lined with towering trees as well as hundreds of cool and shady streets when the transplanting of trees from the forest preserves to the city is accomplished.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt revealed that the city already has asked for 100 men from the civil works administration to help transplant elms and maples from the city's tree nursery at the Gage farm near Riverside. Some 50 employes have been authorized and about 3,000 trees have already been transplanted, he said. There are from 10,000 to 12,000 more trees from six to eight years of age which are available for planting in the parkways.

Parkways City Property.

The city owns the parkways and not the property owners and there can be no objection to the tree project on the ground that it might mean the improvement of private property with public funds, Commissioner Hewitt said.

"Chicago needs the trees," he said. "Many of the trees planted in the early history of the city are now dying of old age, the average life of a tree being from 50 to 75 years. These dead trees must be replaced. In addition, there are many miles of streets and boulevards which could be vastly improved and beautified by the planting of trees."

Wilfred S. Reynolds, Cook county administrator for the civil works administration, approved the plan of employing men with CWA funds to assist in the transplanting of trees from the forest preserves. He said the administration is now working on a plan which will permit the approval of the transplanting project. The project is practical, he pointed out, and fits perfectly the specifications set up for civil works projects.

Thousands of Trees Available.

Ransom Kennicott, forestry expert for the forest preserves, said there were hundreds of thousands of trees in the preserves available for transplanting. They rang in age from seedlings to well developed specimens 10 to 12 years old, he declared, and they are so thick in certain portions of the preserve that there is a real need for thinning them out.

"Expert supervision is necessary for transplanting operations," he said. "But one expert can supervise a large group of men and there are plenty of men with the necessary skill and knowledge on the forest preserve rolls. The work can be done by unskilled labor with such supervision."

From now until spring is an ideal time for transplanting, Mr. Kennicott said. The trees are best transplanted when freezing weather has forced them into a complete dormancy. The best season of the year is in early spring, but much transplanting is done in the winter. Cold weather, which has delayed some CWA projects, would thus not stop this one.

Needed in West Park Area.

The west park system is especially in need of trees along parkways, Edward N. Heinz, secretary of the board, said yesterday. The board will gladly cooperate in any plan which will aid in the beautification of the parkways by planting operations, he said. George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south park system, expressed similar views. The Lincoln park system has already received the benefits of the tree transplanting being done by the city, the trees being placed along the extension of the outer drive.

American elms, sometimes known as the white elms—handsome shade trees of rapid growth and long life—are available by the thousands in the forest preserves and will predominate in the new tree system of the city if the project is approved, it was said. These trees are tall and spreading, and parallel lines of them form an attractive arch. The white ash also grows heavily in the preserves and will run second to the elm in the transplanting operations. It is said to be better suited to suburban than to urban conditions.

Breaking the Ice

Members of the Polar Bears, a swimming club, broke the ice near the Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday for their annual New Year's swim. The waves were too high for them to take their frigid bath in open water so a hole was chopped near the shore and eight hardy members of the organization frolicked in the icy water.

POLICE REPORT LESS DISORDER NEW YEAR'S EVE

More Fun, but Fewer Brawls, Accidents.

Chicago awoke yesterday after one of the most joyous receptions to the New Year in two decades to a realization that the repeal of prohibition had put more fun and gayety into the annual celebration and had taken much of the disorder and turbulence out of it.

Not that intoxication was rare. But, according to observers, the legalization of wines and liquors brought with it a certain conservatism and discrimination in drinking which eliminated much of the shooting, brawling and insane horseplay which was a familiar accompaniment of the imbibing of spirits in the Volstead era.

Police Report Order.

Police reported that it was the most orderly, as it was the merriest, New Year's eve in many years. Arrests for intoxication and disorderly conduct were about 50 per cent less than similar arrests a year ago.

From the viewpoint of the police, the night was the best of years in that little of their assistance was required. An admonition carried weight during the height of the festivities where a club would have been necessary o year ago.

Discussion of the celebration centered on the gay scenes presented in the loop where the crowds used horns, clackers, whistles and bells to make a great din. Old-timers were amazed at the free spending in hotels and cabarets.

Costs Half Million.

With thousands paying from $5 to $10 a plate for reservations in the hotel restaurants and with more thousands packing the bars at every available resort in the downtown area, it was estimated that Chicagoans spent nearly half a million dollars on refreshments alone.

Hotel men reported that gross receipts from the celebration were 50 per cent above last year's. Although none would be quoted, several managers expressed the belief that the high cover charges of $10 kept the crowds smaller than had been expected in several places. Receipts, however, were much larger, one large hotel, for example, having 300 fewer celebrants than last year but taking in $4,000 more.

Several reasons were offered for the unusual New Year's eve turnout. The repeal of the 18th amendment and a pickup in business were mainly responsible for the gayety, it was declared. Despite the legalization of liquor, there was probably less hard spirits consumed than on dry era New Year's eves, it was stated by restaurant proprietors.

Several proprietors reported that the majority of their guests drank wines instead of the whisky and gin which formerly were considered essential to a gay celebration. Champagne, almost unobtainable except at prohibitory prices during prohibition, was consumed by thousands of bottles. Many hotels included a bottle of the sparkling beverage with meals.

The loop had recovered from the celebration and was comparatively quiet last night. Family parties in homes were the rule yesterday. An entertainment will be staged tonight for 1,800 men out of work who are living at the municipal shelter house at 54 West Austin avenue. The party will be through the courtesy of C. E. Erdal, president of the Chicago Uniform and Cap company.

NEW YEAR'S EVE 'DISGRACE,' SAYS W. C. T. U. HEAD

The first New Year's eve since the return of legal liquor was "climaxed in a maelstrom of disgraceful excesses," Mrs. Ida B. Wise, national president of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, asserted last night.

"Reports by eyewitnesses of the celebrations filing a threefold challenge to friends of decency and sobriety that cannot well be ignored," said Mrs. Wise. "Despite all that has been promised and professed by wet apologists, the first holiday season of relegalized liquor has again climaxed in a maelstrom of disgraceful excesses. The lesson of this is there is no particle of change in the dire individual and social effects of drink."

Mrs. Wise listed three things which the W. C. T. U. will fight: The return of liquor advertising by law, the "shameless passion for liquor profits," and the reappearance of an "arrogant nation-wide alliance of liquor with spoils politics."

Canada Plans No Naval Building Program in 1934

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Canada contemplates no program of naval construction for 1934, it was learned on high authority today, and so far as government policy concerns itself with matters of defense, the dominion will embark on no expansion in any branch of the military service.

SEIZE SUSPECTS AS FUGITIVES WANTED BY U. S.

Two alleged counterfeiters who escaped from the United States marshal's patrol car while they were en route to the county jail two months ago, were reported under arrest on the Pacific coast yesterday. At San Francisco secret service agents announced that they had captured John Stadig, one of the men, as he was leaving a hotel. At Portland the agents arrested a man who gave the name of Arlin Adams who his believed to be Richard Adamowski, alias Adams, who escaped with Stadig. A third man, "Buck" Maxwell, was seized with Adams.

United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer said the copies of the Chicago indictments charging Stadig and Adamowski with passing counterfeit notes would be sent to the coast and removal proceedings started.

Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan of the secret service said Adams has operated for years as a passer of bad money on the coast and had just started operations in Chicago before his arrest three months ago. The pair broke out of the patrol wagon with the aid of a woman accomplice, Lila May Adcock, who is believed to have had a key which fitted their handcuffs.

THESE THINGS ARE ANNOYING FOR BROADVIEW

On the blotter of the county highway police station at Willow Springs last night were recorded two incidents of the day in the village of Broadview. But on the books of the Broadview police only one was listed.

The first incident was the robbery of the Broadview police station. The other was the burning, after an explosion, of the Krazy Kwilt tavern, owned by the village president, Forest Coburn. The Broadview police records show only the fire.

The Broadview police denied that their station had been robbed. At first they denied the tavern had burned. President Coburn, after giving details of the fire and admitting ownership of the tavern, later denied being its owner. The day's doings, it appeared, were embarrassing to the authorities of Broadview.

The Embarrassment Begins.

The embarrassment began about 8:30 a. m. when three men drove up to the police station. Two of the men pointed guns at Willie Safrinski, the station caretaker, and demanded his money. Later Safrinski told his story to Sergt. Louis V. Jelinek of the highway police.

"When the men found I didn't have any money they broke open a desk in the station and took a money box containing $100," Safrinski related. Broadview police denied Safrinski's story but he stuck to it and added that he had notified President Coburn of the robbery.

Supposedly while Coburn was at the station, in answer to the robbery call, the same gunmen drove up to his tavern at 17th avenue and the Illinois Central railroad tracks, threatened Ray Richter, the porter, and searched the place. An explosion and the fire followed. The cause of the explosion was not officially determined but President Coburn said he thought it might have been gasoline.

Mystery of the Woman.

Informants later told the highway police that they saw Roy Coburn, a brother of President Coburn, run into the burning structure and carry out a woman who was suffering from cuts and burns. The Broadview police said, however, that she was merely a passerby who had fainted.

The highway police saw a connection between the station robbery and the tavern fire. President Coburn keeps a desk in the station, and the police suspect that the gunmen raided the station and the tavern in the hope of getting his New Year's eve receipts.

At the Broadview station Policeman Harry Pagers, the only other regular policeman in the village besides Chief Fred Rogers, denied throughout the day that there had been a holdup. He even denied that Coburn's tavern had burned.

Luke Colleran, Ex-Detective Chief, Is Killed by Autos

A picturesque character of the Chicago police department of other days, former Chief of Detectives Luke P. Colleran, died early yesterday in the Lake View hospital of injuries received Sunday when he was knocked down by one automobile and run over by a second car near his home at 4225 Sheridan road.

Mr. Colleran was 75 years old. His was the first motor death of the new year in Cook county. He had started to cross Sheridan road when he was struck by a southbound automobile being driven by Dr. Frederick Gruneck, 420 Diversey parkway. The impact threw him in front of a car being driven north by R. S. Garland, 451 Wrightwood avenue. Both drivers were instructed to appear at the inquest today. Dr. Gruneck told police that Colleran walked into the side of his car.

Noted for Spectacular Exploits.

Colleran's record as a policeman and police official was one of contrasts. He was noted for spectacular exploits in the performance of his police duties. But his police career ended with dismissal from the force in 1901. One charge against him was that he garbled the state's evidence against Jimmy Dunlap, a notorious bank robber. For 18 years following his banishment Colleran fought for reinstatement in the courts and finally won out in 1919 with the full pension of a captain, but he resigned from the force immediately and has since lived in retirement.

The most thrilling experience of Colleran was the single handed battle he staged against a gang of crooks. This was in 1887 when Colleran, then a detective, was assigned to break up a mob of "shell workers." These were swindlers who used the old three shell game to prey on visitors to the city. They would often lure their victims to the old viaduct which ran to the lake from the foot of Randolph street. After swindling or robbing and slugging their victims, the swindlers would escape by dropping through the holes in the viaduct's planking to freight cars on the tracks below.

Colleran Encounters Gang.

One day Colleran strolled onto the viaduct alone and encountered the gang at work. He sprang forward with his gun drawn, seized one man, "Slim Jim" Davis, by the neck and covered another, Eddie Hall, with his weapon. The other members of the gang dropped through the planking.

While Colleran was marching his prisoners off the viaduct the gang's lookout, "Curly" Collins, met them, but Colleran had to let him pass because he had his hands full already. Collins ran to a lumber pile a few feet away, seized a scantling, crept up behind Colleran and struck him on the head.

The policeman fell and his prisoners, now joined by the other gang members, jumped on him. Colleran tried to use his gun but was disarmed and kicked and beaten into insensibility. The gang then lifted him to the rail of the viaduct and let him fall on the cars below. A brakeman found him there and took him to a hospital where he remained five months.

His Assailants Captured.

When he returned to work Colleran spent all his spare time searching for the men who had attacked him. They had fled to Canada on reports that their victim had died, but one by one they returned, were captured and sentenced to prison terms.

Another event which contributed to Colleran's reputation for courage was his participation in the efforts to quell the Haymarket riot in 1886. He was in the front rank of the company next to the one torn to pieces when the anarchists' bomb was thrown. His uniform was badly burned by the explosion but Colleran stood his ground.

VISITORS MATCH WITS WITH PAIR OF GUNMEN HERE

Frank Littlejohn and his wife, Mary, stage folk from faraway Sidney, Australia, had a sample of Chicago banditry and police efficiency last night.

On their way to the Cass hotel from the Symphony theater, 4937 Chicago avenue, their car was forced to the curb at 4200 Chicago avenue by two bandits in another machine. The Littlejohns were ordered into the bandit car and then driven to an alley several blocks away, where Littlejohn was robbed of $107. However, unseen by the gunmen, he dropped a knotted handkerchief containing $4,300 in jewelry out of the car window.

The robbery completed, the bandits drove the Australians a few blocks away and released them. Littlejohn notified police, but he could not give the location of the alley where he had dropped his jewelry. Sergt. Robert Chambers of the Austin station searched a dozen alleys in the vicinity until he found the gems in the rear of 733 North Avers avenue.

HEIR TO LUMBER MAN'S MILLIONS KILLS HIMSELF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wausau, Wis., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Cyrus Yawkey Woodson, 19, only male heir of his grandfather, Cyrus Yawkey, millionaire lumberman, ended his life with a revolver shortly after last midnight, a few minutes after he had telephoned his mother, wishing her a happy new year.

Young Woodson was home for the holidays from Deerfield college, Deerfield, Mass. He had spent the evening at home where a New Year's party was being given for the younger folk. He had appeared happy and contented during the evening. Woodson is the son of Aytch P. Woodson, a midwest lumber magnate.

Dr. R. F. Braun, Marathon county coroner, said the wound was by a revolver and self inflicted. He said he would hold no inquest.

The boy's parents were welcoming the new year at the home of D. C. Everest. At midnight the son called his mother and wished her happy new year. Apparently he went immediately to his room and shot himself. He died at 5:30 a. m. today.

Two of his younger sisters, Nancy Lee and Alice, were among the young folk at the Woodson party. He has a third sister, Margot, 10.

Aytch P. Woodson is vice president of the Wisconsin Valley Trust company, vice president of the Marathon Finance corporation, and vice president of Kreutzer and company here, in addition to his lumbering enterprises.

Mrs. Woodson is the only child of Cyrus Yawkey, among the best known of Wisconsin's successful lumbermen and financiers.

ODD JOB ROOFER PUTS UP $1,200 HOUSE FOR $100

Bloomsburg, Pa., Jan. 1.—(AP)—From his new home—a house the depression built—Clyde Welliver, a roofer out of a job, waved happy New Year greetings to his neighbors. Welliver insists "the depression was the best thing for a lot of guys like me."

"Why, I made $200 a month the last six months out of this depression," he explained to a group of friends.

He painted a roof for a man who gave him some lumber. He put a roof on a house for a bricklayer and the bricklayer built the fine fireplace of which Welliver is so proud.

He laid a water line for another man and received the roofing materials he needed. He built the $1,200 house himself with $100 outlay.

BILLIONS MORE SPENDING TOLD BY ROOSEVELT

Party Leaders Hear of Great Plans.

| Fiscal year— | Debt. |
|---|---|
| June 30, 1931 | $16,801,281,492 |
| June 30, 1932 | 19,487,002,444 |
| June 30, 1933 | 22,538,672,560 |

Revenues, due chiefly to the tax on the beer and liquor, and miscellaneous taxes have increased rapidly and it is estimated that for the fiscal year 1935 they will exceed departmental expenditures, exclusive of the sinking fund, by about 1 billion dollars.

Revenues for the fiscal year 1934 so far, or from June 30, 1933, to Dec. 27, 1933, total $1,455,929,549, as compared with $1,012,636,205 over the same period last year. The deficit for the fiscal year up to Dec. 27 was $1,114,000,000, against $1,614,000,000 for the same months last year, but only $23,787,000 had been spent on the sinking fund, as compared with $418,764,000 on the same date last year.

Administration leaders are aiming at adjournment of congress by May 1, but few seriously expect to finish the appropriation bills, revenue measures and administration proposals by that date.

The chief obstacles to quick action, particularly in the senate, as they appeared tonight, are likely to develop over remonetizing silver, restoring much of the compensation taken from war veterans and all of the pay taken from government employés in the economy act, proposals for more radical measures of agricultural relief, the project for enabling the administration to bargain for foreign markets with tariff rate changes, the huge budget and the customary conflict over raising revenues to carry that burden.

Seek Anti-Trust Legislation.

Moreover, a possibility of long discussion in the senate lies in the determination of insurgent Republican senators, notably Senators William E. Borah [Idaho] and Gerald P. Nye [N. D.], to restore the anti-trust laws to more complete operation. Means of moderating the effects of these laws to some extent were provided in the national industrial recovery act, but the insurgents are dissatisfied with what they regard as the encouragement of monopolistic tendencies. Senators Nye and Borah left a conference with the President Friday with the impression that Mr. Roosevelt would back an amendment to the recovery act to put the anti-trust laws back into full effect "despite the operation of NRA codes," but the White House view was that only a clarification of language was necessary.

It is expected that such a clarification, without any "despite" clauses, and several other changes which experience has indicated to be desirable in the emergency acts will be recommended. Other major proposals are likely to bring the securities exchanges under rigid federal control, to extend control of and unify communications, possibly to make changes in the banking laws, and to bring food and drug manufacturers under drastic supervision as projected in the Tugwell bill, as well as to extend the operations of the public works, civil works, and emergency relief administrations, the national labor board and the civilian conservation corps, and to expand the activities of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

See Seaway Pact Controversy.

Amendment of the banking and security acts may await completion of the senate banking and currency committee's long investigation, but there will be a conflict over ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty.

Nevertheless, Democratic leaders who discussed the situation tonight expressed confidence that little difficulty would be encountered in putting through any program the President sponsors. All asserted that his popularity was as strong as ever, if not stronger, throughout the country, putting into words a view obviously shared by many Republicans returning to Washington, and expressed in their decision not to organize a campaign of opposition.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, Republican leader of the house, asserted tonight that members of the party generally would "go along with the President in any recovery legislation where the proposition seemed to be fair and for the interest of the people of the whole country."

"W are not disposed to offer cheap, carping, obstructive criticism simply to embarrass the administration," he said.

Ready to State Position.

"We believe it is the function of the minority party to render constructive criticism, and when the opportunity comes to do that we will not be backward in stating our position to the country. We deeply appreciate the obligations resting upon members of congress at this trying time, and we expect to meet them in true American fashion and do at all times what we think is for the best interests of all the American people."

DENIES VETERANS HURT IN WAR ARE NEGLECTED

Group Says U. S. Pays Most Per Man.

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The American Veterans association, after a thorough investigation of the provisions of the economy act, reported today "that no actual hardship has been meted out to war disabled veterans."

The organization has concerned itself, since the passage of the act, with the welfare of veterans whose disabilities can be directly attributed to war service.

Sends Out Questionnaire.

The association made public the replies to a questionnaire which it sent to various government departments in Washington, and termed the answers "illuminating in the light of the contention that deserving veterans have been reduced in their benefits under the provisions of the act."

Six months ago the association made recommendations to the government that all service connected cases be retained on the pension rolls with full and adequate compensation.

Totally disabled veterans, who received more than the average earnings of labor before the passage of the economy act, are receiving proportionately more than the earnings of labor, according to the report.

Concerning the Disabled.

The information on the totally disabled was in reply to a question asking the amount they are receiving under the act and the amount they received before, and requesting a comparison with the average earnings of labor at this time.

The comparison is shown as follows:

| | 1928. | 1932. |
|---|---|---|
| Average for labor per year | $1,449.76 | $ 889.20 |
| | Old law. | Economy act. |
| Average total disability rate, compensation or pension [service connected wartime disabilities] | $1,189.44 | $1,043.52 |
| Average insurance rate, compensation or pension | 568.20 | 568.20 |
| Average total rate where both compensation or pension and insurance are being paid | 1,757.64 | 1,611.72 |

"It will be noted," the reply adds, "that the relationship of the average annual earnings to the amount of compensation received for total disability under the prior laws was less favorable than the relationship shown between the average earnings in effect at the time of the enactment of the economy act to the payment of pension under the recent legislation. When the receipt of insurance benefits is taken into consideration this comparison is more favorable."

U. S. Pays Highest Sum.

The association says "the annual expenditure of Great Britain, as a result of the world war, is $58 per man; of France, $51, and of the United States, $2,688." That conclusion is based on a congressional committee's report showing comparative figures on the cost of the veterans to the United States government and to the major world powers, including Canada.

|---|---|
| British empire | 2,090,212 |
| France | 4,266,000 |
| United States | 234,300 |

The report adds that the latest figures available in December, 1932, as to those receiving monetary benefits were:

|---|---|
| Great Britain | 486,850 |
| Canada | 75,878 |
| France | 1,098,047 |
| United States | 776,812 |

"These figures," it was stated, "would seem to mean that of the ex-service men of the British empire rated by our war department to be wounded casualties, roughly one in four is receiving compensation; of France, one in four, while with us more than three times the number given as casualties are receiving direct monetary benefits."

PRIVATE AGENCIES PLAN $80,000,000 FOR WELFARE IN '34

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The 1934 welfare needs of the country not covered by federal, state or local governmental aid will be met by a fund of over $80,000,000 raised by community chests and other coördinated social work organizations, Newton D. Baker, chairman of the 1933 mobilization for human needs, announced today in a New Year's letter to President Roosevelt.

Between Sept. 1 and the end of December $50,299,875 went into 195 community chest campaigns, Mr. Baker asserted, and "the remaining 155 community chest campaigns and the 70 cities which make their appeal in the winter and spring should increase this total to approximately $64,000,000. Reports from joint campaigns in non-chest cities will further swell this amount to over $80,000,000."

Mr. Baker praises the parts of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt in leading the country in welfare work. Mrs. Roosevelt is chairman of the mobilization's national women's committee.

PETITION ASKS OUSTER OF LONG AND OVERTON

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruffin G. Pleasant, widow of a former governor of Louisiana, said here today she would petition the senate to remove Louisiana's two senators, Huey P. Long and John H. Overton.

She said the petitions were signed by thousands of citizens and would be presented to the senate through Vice President Garner.

The principal petition, she added, was drawn up by the "New Deal" organization of Louisiana, which she said has 25,000 members.

"Unless the senate aids us," Mrs. Pleasant told reporters, "Louisiana citizens undoubtedly will rise up in their just wrath and put an end to the state's present insufferable condition.

"The petition I have brought with me is modeled after the Declaration of Independence.

"Louisianians are as determined to throw off the shackles of the 'Kingfish' as were the colonists to put an end to King George's unjust acts of tyranny."

The New Deal organization, Mrs. Pleasant said, also is opposing the seating of Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, elected recently to the house from the Sixth Louisiana district.

J. Y. Sanders Jr., who was elected as anti-Long candidate for congress in the Sixth district, arrived yesterday to contest Mrs. Kemp's election as illegal. He said he felt confident the record would show that he was legally elected.

that department from a stronghold of sound money men to the mouthpiece for the President's new monetary plans.

In the original shift Mr. Woodin went on an indefinite leave of absence without pay, Dean G. Acheson, undersecretary and working head of the department, was called upon to resign without any word of commendation from the White House and Thomas Hewes, fiscal assistant secretary, was subsequently forced out by Mr. Morgenthau, who stripped him of all duties.

Prof. Warren's Student.

Mr. Morgenthau was a student under Prof. George F. Warren, Cornell professor who is guiding the President's monetary experiments. He is without banking or other fiscal experience and came into the treasury after being head of the farm credit administration.

Retirement of Mr. Woodin has been expected since early summer when he was revealed as on the preferred stock sales list of J. P. Morgan & Co. The President, however, stood fast by his friend whom he had drafted into the treasury to face the banking crisis after the treasury post had been rejected by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.]. Mr. Woodin's resignation is accepted here as based solely on reasons of health.

Ousts Peek's Former Aids.

In his reorganization of the AAA farm administration Mr. Davis not only wiped out or merged eight divisions but cleaned house of the former aids of George N. Peek, resigned AAA head. Two of Mr. Peek's direct assistants, Wayne C. Taylor and Glenn McHugh, have left the AAA to join Mr. Peek in his farm export study, it was announced.

At the same time Mr. Davis today announced three new assistant administrators, Victor A. Christgau, former congressman from Minnesota, to direct the commodities division; H. R. Tolley of Berkeley, Cal., dean of the department of agriculture's economists, to head a new planning section on production adjustment, and Alfred D. Stedman, now publicity director, to have charge of information and files.

The eight discontinued sections are: Food products, fisheries, beverages, foreign trade, imports, code analysis, special commodities, and the office of the administrative officer.

In addition the processing and market division has been merged with the commodities division under Mr. Christgau, and William R. Westervelt of Chicago, former head of that division, will return to Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago.

CHAS. J. MUELLER RESIGNS POST AS PROSECUTOR

Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller yesterday announced his resignation from the staff of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney. He has completed exactly nine years of service in the prosecutor's office under three different state's attorneys. He will enter the private practice of law with John T. Boos under the firm name of Boos & Mueller in the Temple building.

Attorney Mueller established a high record in the conviction of defendants. He has sent 1,341 criminals to the penitentiary.

Among his achievements was the breaking up of speed traps in the suburbs near Chicago.

U. S. Bank Deposit Insurance Starts at Roosevelt Word

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight hailed the coming of federal insurance of bank deposits as an innovation which "will give renewed faith." He rapped "pessimists" who had said that insurance program would not be whipped into shape by the first of the new year.

Receiving a report from Walter J. Cummings, head of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, in which Mr. Cummings declared that federal insurance now covers 13,423 banks, the President commended Mr. Cummings on his achievement.

Few Fail to Qualify.

Mr. Cummings revealed that only 141 banks failed to qualify, but gave no number for those which did not apply for admittance to the insurance fund. Mr. Cummings also disclosed that the federal government has put 150 million dollars into the original insurance fund, that the reserve banks have contributed 140 millions, and that the banks insured have contributed 37 millions, making the total fund 327 millions.

Explaining that the original insurance plan, which is to be broadened on July 1, covers each deposit in an insured bank up to $2,500, Mr. Cummings told the President that 97 per cent of the accounts would be fully insured.

By banishing the fear of depositors for their money, Mr. Cummings told the President, deposit insurance should end bank runs and enable banks to lend money more freely. In this way, he said, prosperity would be furthered.

Praise for the coöperation of the RFC which has poured 800 million dollars' worth of new capital into banks through preferred stock purchases, enabling many of them to qualify for admittance to the insurance fund, was expressed by Mr. Cummings.

Hinting at his resignation, which has been pending for some time, Mr. Cummings closed his letter saying:

"The immediate task you entrusted upon your directors has been accomplished. We now direct our efforts to the advance of a great work—protect deposits and permit banks to function as useful instruments in the recovery program.

"Thanking you for the opportunity to serve in this way, I am, very sincerely yours,

"WALTER J. CUMMINGS."

Later, when asked if he would retire with Secretary Woodin, Mr. Cummings said he had just received a note from the White House requesting him to remain at the head of the deposit insurance venture a little longer. He added that he expected, however, to be relieved by Jan. 15.

President Raps Pessimists.

In his reply to Mr. Cummings President Roosevelt said:

"My Dear Mr. Cummings:

"I congratulate you and Mr. Bennett and Mr. O'Connor because you have in these few months accomplished with complete success a gigantic task which the pessimists said could not possibly be done before Jan. 1.

"That 97 per cent of the bank depositors of the nation are insured will give renewed faith.

"I am also happy to know of the fine coöperation given to you by the Reconstruction Finance corporation."

SEEK TO LEARN HOW MANY GIVE UP BLUE EAGLE

District Survey Will Begin Today.

F. L. Roberts, district compliance director of the NRA in Illinois and Wisconsin, announced yesterday that his office will undertake an investigation today into the number of employers in the two states who removed their Blue Eagles from display on Sunday in order to terminate their adherance to the President's reëmployment agreement.

Employers who signed the agreement promised to live up to its reemployment provisions from Aug. 1 to Dec. 31, Mr. Roberts explained. On Dec. 20 the President announced that the agreement would be extended for an additional four months, ending April 30, for all employers who are not yet under a code.

Terms of the Extension.

The only action that an employer need take to accept the extension, the President said, would be to continue to display the Blue Eagle. To terminate the agreement an employer has only to remove the Blue Eagle. Mr. Roberts said that those employers who remove their Blue Eagles have been requested to hand them over to postoffice authorities. The surrender of the insignia would thus show the number of agreements terminated.

A further investigation of the number of Blue Eagles removed in Illinois and Wisconsin will be conducted through local compliance boards, Mr. Roberts said. No appeal will be made to employers to agree to the extension of the President's reëmployment agreement other than the appeal made by the President himself on Dec. 20. He asked that the agreement continue in force until all industry can be brought under permanent codes.

Six Employers Drop Out.

Until last Saturday there were few indications that the removal of Blue Eagles by employers in Illinois and Wisconsin would become widespread, Mr. Roberts said. He had received six letters from employers saying that they did not feel they could accept the extension of the reëmployment agreement, and would terminate it on Sunday.

The first reaction Mr. Roberts expects to see in evidence of terminations of the reëmployment agreement is a sharp falling off in the number of petitions filed with compliance boards for release from the President's agreement. About 1,000 petitions have been reviewed by his boards, Mr. Roberts said, and many of them have been granted.

Another step in President Roosevelt's campaign for reëmployment will be undertaken today by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission in the establishment of bureaus for transients in Chicago and throughout the state. Federal relief will be given transients who register for aid at these bureaus.

The establishment of the bureaus has been planned by the federal relief administrator to reduce the number of idle who are wandering about the country in search of work. The plan is to localize them in order to provide work for them as rapidly as possible.

ORIGINAL HAWAIIANS STILL EXCEED OTHER RACES IN TERRITORY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 1.—It is often stated that the aboriginal Hawaiians are a "dying race," but they are far from that, according to statistics recently compiled by Raymond C. Brown, secretary of the territory of Hawaii.

Voters of Hawaiian [Polynesian] ancestry still outnumber voters of any other racial group in the territory, Brown reports. They comprise 21,582 of the total of 63,831.

"Haoles," including all white persons except Portuguese, stand second with 12,934 registered voters. Americans of Japanese ancestry are third, with 11,273; those of Portuguese descent fourth, with 10,054, and those of Chinese ancestry fifth, with 5,356. All others total 1,444.

HARVARD GROUP RAPS ROOSEVELT RECOVERY PLAN

Says NRA Won't Aid Buying Much.

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A critical analysis of the Roosevelt recovery program was presented today by seven economists of Harvard university in the book, "The Economics of the Recovery Program."

Joseph A. Schumpeter, formerly minister of finance in Austria, believes that in all cases of depression recovery comes of itself.

"Our analysis leads us to believe that recovery is sound only if it does come of itself," he says. "For any revival which is merely due to artificial stimulus leaves part of the work of depression undone and adds, to an undigested remnant of maladjustment, new maladjustment of its own which has to be liquidated in turn, thus threatening business with another crisis ahead."

Sees Blow to Buying.

Edward Chamberlin, writer on economic subjects, says:

"Let us not be deceived by the specious argument that those workers who are employed can purchase more," he said. "Higher wages raise costs and, therefore, prices, with the result that other people can purchase less. Those who are unemployed can purchase nothing at all, except as purchasing power is put into their hands by taking it away from others."

Edward S. Mason, student of the relation of government and industry, writes:

"Nothing in the terms of the NIRA itself justifies us in the conclusion that what is contemplated is an important step in the direction of a planned economy.

"The attack upon competition represented by code provisions limiting machine hours, prorating output, prohibiting sales below cost, and the adoption of superior techniques of production is really an attack upon the consumer."

Attacks Public Works Plan.

Douglass V. Brown, medical economist of the Harvard medical school, states "in summary, it may be said that public works provide no panacea nor recovery. Properly carried out in timely fashion, they may at once provide much needed relief, a measure of results valuable in themselves and a stimulus to an economic mechanism ripe for recovery. At the other extreme, they may be merely a political football and a drain upon harassed treasuries."

Overton H. Taylor, known in the field of the relation of economics to other social sciences, says:

"The real economists' utopia is now and forever laissez faire, in the sense not at all of inactive government, but of a scheme of policy eliminating all interference of all 'politics,' or the power strategy and rivalry of special interests in the fields of business and government, with the orderly, efficient functioning, in the common interest of all, of the system of purely economic activities."

N. Y. TRADE BODY ATTACKS DRUG AND FOOD BILL

Tugwell Measure Target of New York Group.

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—An attack on the Tugwell pure food and drugs bills was made today by the New York Board of Trade, Inc., which announced that it had completed a nation wide survey which showed that the present act was "overwhelmingly favored over experimentation by theorists."

Strong sentiment was uncovered by the survey for amendment of the present act "to regulate abuses in the cosmetic industry and to restrain or prevent overzealous puffery in advertising."

Many of those questioned for the survey said that there was no popular demand for any changes in the existing act. Some asked for rules for making advertising more truthful. Some denounced the Tugwell bill vehemently. The survey covered chambers of commerce, boards of trade, and health officers in nearly 100 cities.

Oppose Trade Dictator.

"The Tugwell bill is designed to be not only a pure food and drugs act," said the board's statement, "but a radical change in the government itself, tending to set up in this country an absolute dictator over private business."

"The Tugwell bill would create an absolute czar, whose decisions would be final," the report said. "It completely closes the door to any honest differences of opinion by highly skilled technical men, who have devoted their lives to science, and it places in the hands of one political office holder absolute power over the medicines administered to the sick, every particle of food consumed, and every word of advertising in newspapers, publications, and spoken over the radio."

"Too Much Power," Claim.

"No celestial being has ever held public office in our United States and this bill carries too much power to give to any human being," said an official of the board of trade.

CRIMINAL COURT SETS RECORD IN PROSECUTIONS

Six Slayers Sentenced to Death in 1933.

The year just closed was the most successful in the history of the Criminal court here in so far as the prosecution of criminals is concerned, it was revealed yesterday by the annual report of George Seif, clerk of the court. The improvement in prosecutions was the result of the war on crime launched last August by Judge John Prystalski, then chief justice of the Criminal court.

The court docket for the first time in many years starts off with only 556 indictments pending. In former years the number of indictments pending at the first of the year has averaged 1,000. This has been one of the principal reasons for the lack of speedy justice, according to Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan.

Death Sentences Revived.

During 1933 the Criminal court judges sentenced 1,590 felons to the penitentiary, as compared with 1,402 during 1932. The most important accomplishment, however, was the revival of the death sentences for slayers, according to State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney. In the last year six slayers were ordered by Criminal court juries to be executed in the electric chair and two of the sentences have been carried out. One slayer was granted a new trial and received a life sentence, while the other three cases are pending on appeal in the state Supreme court.

Contrasted with this is the record for the previous year, 1932, when no death sentences were imposed.

Murderers were punished more severely in 1933, even in cases where the death penalty was not inflicted. During the year juries adopted a new penalty for murder by fixing the sentences of killers at 199 years in the penitentiary, which virtually eliminates the chance of parole. Under this sentence a defendant will have to serve at least 66 2-3 years before becoming eligible for parole, while under a life sentence a parole can be granted at the end of 20 years.

Murder Convictions Listed.

|---|---|
| Death sentences | 6 |
| 199 year sentences | 8 |
| 100 year sentences | 3 |
| 99 year sentence | 1 |
| Life sentences | 9 |
| 60 year sentence | 1 |
| 30 year sentence | 1 |
| 20 year sentences | 3 |

Three of those sentenced to death were police killers. Morris Cohen, slayer of Policeman Joseph Hastings, and Ross King, killer of Policeman Harry Redlich, have been executed, while John Scheck, who killed Policeman John Sevick in a court room, is awaiting a decision from the Supreme court. It was the willing of Sevick which caused the launching of the war on crime.

Union Officials Convicted.

For the first time in years two labor racketeer killers, John Rooney, secretary and treasurer of the Circular Distributors' union, and Henry [Hogan] Barry, business agent, were convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of a department store watchman. Miss Rosalie Rizzo, sweetheart of Rooney, was sentenced to 20 years for participating in the crime.

Another unusual conviction of the konwn as the "king of the bombers," James Catuara and William Palmero, henchmen of James Belcastro, who is known as the "king of the zombers," were sentenced to 5 to 25 years each for having a dynamite bomb in their possession. They were the first bombers convicted in years.

Two Year Comparison.

| | 1932. | 1933. |
|---|---|---|
| Indictments returned by grand jury | 3,932 | 4,706 |
| Indictments disposed of by courts | 4,286 | 4,453 |
| Sentenced to penitentiary | 1,402 | 1,590 |
| Sentenced to Bridewell | 759 | 808 |
| Sentenced to county jail | 84 | 113 |
| Found not guilty | 767 | 1,057 |
| Released on probation | 752 | 508 |
| Cases stricken with leave to reinstate | 1,248 | 1,540 |
| Cases nol prossed | 468 | 300 |
| Dismissed for want of prosecution | 46 | 96 |
| Defendants fined | 74 | 108 |
| Committed to insane asylums | 13 | 20 |
| Sentenced to death | 0 | 6 |
| Number of jury trials | 313 | 764 |
| Number of jury days | 645 | 1,245 |
| Sentenced to women's reformatory | 14 | 6 |
| Indictments pending as of Jan. 1, 1934 | 556 | |
| Murder cases pending as of Jan. 1, 1934 | 54 | |
| Indictments pending Jan. 1, 1933 | 929 | |

Judges of the court pointed out that the statistics show that when criminals found out they could no longer bargain with the Criminal court judges they decided to take their chances with juries. The number of jury trials jumped from 313 in 1932 to 764 last year. The time needed to try these cases, as numbered by jury days, or days in which the courts were actually occupied with jury trials, increased from 645 in 1932 to 1,245 in 1933.

May Call for More Judges.

Chief Justice Finnegan announced yesterday that because of the number of important criminal trials scheduled for this month it may be necessary for him to call for additional Criminal court judges temporarily to keep the ordinary criminal cases moving rapidly. The chief justice this morning will give a decision on the motion of Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th] for his discharge under the four term act, which provides that if more than four terms of court elapse after a defendant's indictment without his being brought to trial he is entitled to dismissal. Nelson is co-defendant with Dr. Benjamin Squires, Attorney Aaron Sapiro, and 21 others in the so-called racket conspiracy case growing out of troubles of the cleaners and dyers. The trial is scheduled to start Jan. 4.

NEW STATE LEGAL CODE GOES INTO EFFECT TODAY

Criminal Courts Not Affected.

The new civil practice act, designed to end legal red tape by abolishing the technical and cumbersome procedure of the common law and replacing it with a simple code, goes into effect this morning. The new act, however, will actually affect only the civil courts, it was announced yesterday by Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court.

Although several changes could be made in the Criminal court practice under the theories of some of the judges, the Criminal court will operate substantially under the old system until some expression is received from the state Supreme court as to changes which may be required under the new code, Judge Finnegan said. One of the changes which Judge Harry Fisher says could be made under the new code, in so far as the Criminal court is concerned, is to give the judges power to comment on the evidence and instruct the juries concerning it.

Await High Court Opinion.

Chief Justice Finnegan announced that the state Supreme court recently had adopted a rule to the effect that instructions to Criminal court juries must be in writing and in narrative form. It is assumed by the Criminal court judges that the Supreme court, in deciding criminal cases, will follow this rule, and therefore no change will be made until an opinion is obtained from the Supreme court on a test case.

Judge Joseph B. David, it is reported, will make a test case on the oral instruction situation as soon as some unimportant case comes before him. In the important cases the old procedure will be followed.

Chief Justice Finnegan announced that for the present the new jury law will be disregarded in the selection of grand juries. Under an amendment adopted by the legislature and only recently noted by the judges, the selection of grand juries is placed in the hands of the county board and the sheriff. For the present, at least, the grand jury list will be selected by the jury commissioners, as has been done in the past.

Seeks Repeal of Amendment.

"I have written to Gov. Horner asking that he take steps to have this new amendment repealed as soon as posible," said Judge Finnegan. "The new law places too much power in the hands of the county board and the sheriff. The law should remain as it has been for years."

The chief justice pointed out that the new law does not specifically repeal the old jury law, except perhaps by implication. He said the courts do not favor repeal of a statute by implication, and that therefore the new law will not be followed. It is believed by the judges, however, that all indictments returned by future grand juries, starting with the new jury to be sworn in today, will be attacked by defense lawyers as illegal until a decision is obtained on the point from the Supreme court.

The new act, among other things, kills the praecipe, long a weapon of the professional seeker of damages for breach of promise or alienation of affections. The praecipe did nothing but give notice of a suit and stated no facts. Under the new law the complainant must file a simple statement of his claim. The complicated verbiage of former suits is made obsolete.

SANITARY DISTRICT REPORTS PROGRESS TO SUPREME COURT

The sanitary district's semi-annual report to the United States Supreme court on progress made in the sewage disposal program in Chicago will be filed in Washington today. The report shows that only $182,644 was spent on the program during the last six months.

The trustees of the district, however, assured the court that construction would be pushed diligently under the allotment of $41,938,000 by the federal public works administration. The district has already expended $100,969,212 on the program and after the federal funds have been spent the additional work for completion will cost $78,247,000.

The report to the Supreme court is necessary because of the mandate of that tribunal that diversion from Lake Michigan at Chicago shall be cut to 1,500 cubic feet per second by the end of 1938. The diversion last year averaged 6,280 c. f. s.

Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the district's finance committee, said the 1934 budget of $99,301,606 would be passed by the board at a meeting Thursday.

ROBBERS RAID SHERIDAN ROAD HOTEL; BIND 4

Two girls and two men were bound with telephone and lamp cords yesterday after they had been threatened with death by two bandits who invaded the Willis Apartment hotel, 4909 Sheridan road, and robbed the office of $111.

Entering with drawn revolvers, the robbers ordered Bert McCandish, telephone operator, to open the safe. Upon his insistence that he was unable to do so, the men forced their way into the adjoining bedroom of James M. Canton, manager of the hotel, who was ill with influenza, and made him get up in his pajamas and open the safe.

This contained no valuables, so the robbers turned to the cash drawer in the office. At this moment Miss Myrtle Atwater, a guest of the hotel, and Miss Mildred Alexander, a friend of Miss Atwater, entered the office. They, with McCandish and Canton, were taken into the manager's bedroom by the robbers and bound with wire. Some time after the robbers left Canton attracted help by kicking on a door.

DAIRIES BEGIN PARLEYS WITH DRIVERS TODAY

Wage scale negotiations between the officers of Chicago milk companies and the milk wagon drivers' union are scheduled to open this morning as the next step in efforts of the large dairies to trim their costs in order to reduce retail milk prices.

While several small dairies which have been complying with the federal trade agreement dropped their retail prices from 11 to 10 cents a quart yesterday, the "big four" and other companies are seeking to effect a reduction to 9 cents a quart, it was reported.

The wagon drivers voted last Tuesday to refuse a wage cut from $40 to $30 a week with increased commissions. However, the union is operating on a month to month extension of its contract with employers that ended last April. The meeting today was said to center about whether the dairies would renew the contract in view of the drivers' attitude.

Meanwhile the Edgewater Dairy company, one of the independent dairies cited by the AAA for price cutting in November, is operating under partial ban of the Chicago board of health. The Edgewater company is being denied the right to pasteurize and bottle milk in its own plant pending an investigation of the sources and purchasers of alleged bootleg milk. The Edgewater company is utilizing the facilities of the Lake View Dairy company in processing its milk supply.

AUSTRIAN NAZIS DEMONSTRATE TO OPEN NEW YEAR

VIENNA, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Spectacular Nazi demonstrations occurred in various sections of Austria today. As the curtain went up at the historic Vienna Burgtheater tonight on the performance of George Bernard Shaw's "The Apple Cart," a huge swastika banner was revealed. Near Vienna two electric power masts were dynamited.

Bomb Damages Building.

BREGENZ, Austria, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A bomb which ushered in the New Year here shattered 180 windows in headquarters of the provincial government and nearby buildings and threw the city into an uproar. Police said they suspected Nazis.

FEAR POLICEMAN SHOT BY ROBBER GANG MAY DIE

Policeman Thomas Murphy of the Stanton avenue station, who was wounded on Sunday when he fought in a gun battle with four masked bandits who were trying to hold up the Eastman Coal company office, 3443 South La Salle street, was reported to be "holding his own" yesterday at Mercy hospital. His condition, however, is critical and it is feared that he may die. If he should die the number of policemen fatally wounded by gunmen in 1933 would be increased to 16.

In the meantime, the Stanton avenue police started a search for Dominick Monaco, whose photograph was identified by witnesses to the robbery as that of one of the robbers. Monaco has a police record.

ENGINEER RAISES QUESTIONS ABOUT TERMINAL PLAN

Noonan Cites His Report in Answering Them.

Questions of public policy are raised in the current bulletin of the City club on the construction of new railway terminals in Chicago in an article by Ralph H. Rice, member of the board of supervising engineers for the Chicago Surface Lines.

The questions were propounded by Mr. Rice in making an analysis for City club members of the report of Edward J. Noonan, consulting engineer for the city, on a project for a consolidated passenger terminal at Randolph street on the lake front. This report, which was issued a few days ago, contains, according to Noonan, the answers to the questions raised by Rice.

Questions and Answers.

A few of the questions and the answers made to them by Noonan follow:

Q.—The public will ultimately pay all the costs. Will these be greater or less in a consolidated terminal or with several smaller units?

A.—There would be a substantial saving through the construction of a consolidated terminal at Randolph street. It can be constructed at far less cost that at any site available west of State street and south of Van Buren street. With the grouping of 18 railroads in the one station there would be an annual saving in operating costs estimated at between $750,000 and $1,000,000.

Q.—Could the internal arrangements in a consolidated station be such as to promote efficient operation and service to the public as compared to a number of smaller units?

A.—Yes, the public would be the beneficiary of greater efficiency not only in the internal arrangements but in being brought closer to the center of the central business district, convenient to taxis, buses, street cars, and elevated trains. There would be ample room for handling large crowds.

The Matter of Traffic.

Q.—Would the streets adjacent to a joint terminal be adequate for the traffic imposed upon them?

A.—There would be less congestion in street traffic than for any site that can be chosen south of Van Buren street and west of State street. It would remove from the streets the transfer of passengers, baggage, mail and express between the roads now using four stations. A Randolph street terminal would be situated on the inner circulatory system of wide streets recommended in the original Chicago plan: Michigan avenue, Roosevelt road, Canal street, and Wacker drive. It would be accessible to present two level streets.

Q.—What provision would be made for suburban service of the coöperating roads?

A.—No suburban service would be handled at the consolidated terminal. Temporary arrangements would be made to care for the existing suburban traffic of railroads that move from other stations to the consolidated terminal, and eventually the Chicago local transportation company set up in the transit unification ordinance would take over all this suburban traffic.

These and other questions will be threshed out before the council committee at hearings to be started soon. Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], committee chairman, said he expected to hold the first hearing within the next two weeks.

2,300 TO BEGIN TAKING CENSUS OF CITY TODAY

Will Survey Building Occupancy.

Twenty-three hundred enumerators today will begin taking a census of Chicago, as provided in an ordinance of the city council and a proclamation by Mayor Kelly.

The city has been divided into ten districts for the purpose of taking the census and each district has headquarters in a centrally located school. The work will be done under the supervision of the Chicago Census commission, of which Mayor Kelly is chairman, and Charles S. Newcomb, member of the staff of the social science research committee of the University of Chicago.

Will Survey Buildings.

During the first week the enumerators will make a survey of building occupancy and vacant lots, which information will be of value for the Illinois housing board and others interested in population shifts and slum elimination. Beginning next Tuesday the enumerators will take the population census. Twenty-six questions include residence address, number in building or family, how long lived there, number of rooms occupied by each family, type of dwelling, home owned or rented, whether rent includes heat; sex, age, marital condition, color or race, school grade, ability to read, write and speak English or any other language, usual and present occupation, and, if employed, how long.

Information will be gained for the modification of the educational program to suit the decrease in the number of children in the elementary age group and the shift in population from the so-called blighted area of 55 square miles in the center of the city.

Watch Health Figures.

The health department will gain valuable information on the declining death rate and ascertain whether, as some believe, the low rate is due in part to the depression and will be increased when the real effects of the depression are felt. Since 85 per cent of the health cases of common communicable disease are confined to children of school age, it is thought that the low death rate at present is accounted for by the rapid decrease in the proportion of children under 10 years of age.

Members of the census commission, besides Mayor Kelly, are Frederick Rex, municipal librarian; William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools; William H. Sexton, corporation counsel; Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health; James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission, and Mr. Newcomb. Mr. Newcomb and the assistant director, Richard O. Lang, will work on a dollar a year basis, but the 2,300 enumerators will be paid from the federal civil works administration funds.

CARDINAL RAPS EXAGGERATION OF GERMANISM

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

MUNICH, Jan. 1.—Cardinal Faulhaber's New Year sermon contained a rebuke of exaggerated Germanism and a message that in "the kingdom of God there are neither favorites nor step children."

Every people is indeed entitled to its racial individuality, he said, but, with all respect for "race hygiene," he emphasized "Let it not be forgotten that we were saved not by German blood but by the blood of the Savior."

The archbishop declared that nationalization of the church would be tantamount to a "regression into Asiatic antiquity." He deprecated the prevalent elaboration of "myths" concerning the ancient Germans. The social organization of these, he said, was very unsatisfactory. They kept slaves, gave rough labor to their women, lived in everlasting intertribal warfare and were slothful and self-indulgent, whereas, 2,000 years earlier the Babylonians had, for instance, a regular postal service and the Jews had established a system of schools.

GUNMEN HOLD UP HOTEL.

Two gunmen entered the Fremont hotel, 609 West Madison street, early yesterday and robbed the night clerk, Frank Heber, of $4.

LA GUARDIA GETS GOING; IGNORES ALL PRECEDENTS

Pledges Wise Budget and War on Corruption.

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Discarding precedent after precedent, Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia spent this New Year's day, his first in office, rushing work on his "unorthodox" experiment in municipal government.

He arrived at city hall before 9 a. m. accompanied by his wife and their five year old adopted daughter.

The first precedent he broke was when he inducted his police commissioner. Next he personally talked with the officers of the police department. Then he swore in other cabinet officers. Finally, he went before the Tammany controlled board of aldermen and pleaded for a balanced budget—all on a legal holiday.

Swears in O'Ryan.

His predecessor, John P. O'Brien, was there when the mayor arrived. They talked for a few minutes, shook hands, and O'Brien departed—the first Tammany mayor to be defeated since John Purroy Mitchel's fusion administration of 1914.

La Guardia's first official act was swearing in as police commissioner, Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, wartime commander of the 27th division, the man who stepped aside last September so that La Guardia might have the united backing of fusionists.

Then, to higher officers of the police department, the mayor said:

"There was a time that the police department could make or break an administration. I think that is no longer so. From now on there must be no interference with the police department by any one, anywhere, at any time."

Wars on Corruption.

He warned that intoxication or acceptance of money would not be tolerated in the department. He told the officers to "put out" detectives who had been taken out of the uniformed force because of political influence.

Swearing in the other members of his cabinet—including Prof. A. A. Berle Jr., who was one of the President's official advisers—La Guardia asked that they join with him in warring against political corruption.

Paul Blanshard, long an associate of Norman Thomas in the Socialist party, as commissioner of accounts is likely to carry on the work of Samuel Seabury in investigating the city's finances. It was in Seabury's home that La Guardia took the oath of office at a simple ceremony at 12:06 a. m.

Plans Balanced Budget.

Swearing the other cabinet officers La Guardia criticized Tammany for political interference with the city administration and pledged complete freedom from outside influences during his four years in office.

To the board of aldermen—the only important governmental agency save the district attorney's office retained by Tammany—La Guardia made a plea for coöperation to the end that the city's budget might be balanced.

With or without their coöperation, said La Guardia, the budget "will be balanced."

Late in the afternoon he left city hall—and these were his words as his first day ended:

"I'm going to make a clean sweep of it."

SALESMAN NEAR DEATH OF TAVERN HOLDUP WOUND

Reginald Henion, 32 years old, 5052 Washington boulevard, a salesman, who was shot early yesterday during a holdup of a tavern at 2023 South Racine avenue, was reported in a critical condition and given only a fifty-fifty chance to live yesterday in the Burrows hospital. Henion was shot by the leader of the robber gang when he refused to hold up his hands.

Henion, his wife, John Strickland, 4904 Jackson boulevard, and Mrs. Strickland, were celebrating the advent of the new year and stopped at the tavern. They had been there only a short time when the robbers entered and instructed fifty patrons to hold up their hands. Henion failed to obey.

The bandit leader leaped to a table top, carrying a sawed-off shot gun, and shouted: "Up with your hands. This is a hoist." Still Henion only looked up at the robber and laughed. "This is a joke," he said, "Happy new year to you anyway." The answer was a bullet which struck Henion in the chest and abdomen. The bandits snatched $150 from the cash register and fled without robbing the patrons.

RIVIERA FUN PALACES THREATEN TO CLOSE; DEMAND CUT IN TAXES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, Jan. 1.—France's Riviera is threatened with extinction as a favorite winter playground of millionaires as the result of a notification lodged with the mayor of Nice today by a syndicate of casinos, theaters and movie houses. The syndicate threatens to close all amusement places on Jan. 15 unless taxes are cut down.

Night life has practically disappeared from what was once the world's amusement center through the heavy tax burden and municipal taxes, coupled with general hard times, led up to today's notification.

Directors of amusement establishments claim taxation now amounts to 33 per cent, a good part of which includes "poor tax," which has been increased in inverse proportion as wealthy visitors ceased to come. A further complicating situation is the threatened strike of the French artists' association because of complaints that theaters and casinos have engaged foreign artists. Many English and American chorus girls who went to Nice to spend the winter are now stranded and cannot get jobs.

FRENCH AIRMEN BREAK SEAPLANE FLIGHT RECORD

Fly 2,666 Miles Without a Stop to Senegal.

SAINT LOUIS, Senegal, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Another "Southern Cross"—this time a French seaplane—proved itself a fit namesake of its trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific predecessors today by setting a nonstop seaplane flight record of 2,666 miles.

The new Southern Cross was flown from Berre, France, here to Saint Louis as a test, preparatory to flying the south Atlantic to South America. Although owned by the French government, it is designed to operate with two other planes in the South Atlantic air mail service, soon to be inaugurated on a regular basis by Air France, the consolidated French aviation company.

[The longest previous seaplane nonstop flight was made last Sept. 8 by six United States navy ships which flew in mass formation from Norfolk to Coco Solo, C. Z., a distance of 2,059 miles.]

The new record holder is four motored and designed for a crew of five—Capt. Germain Bonnot of the French navy, commanding; Lieut. Jean Pierre and Master Pilot Gauthier, first and second pilots; Mechanic Durutty and Radio Operator Emont.

Each of the four motors develops 850 horsepower. The craft weighs 23 tons.

Spurred by the development of Lufthansa, the German-South American air mail line which is to use a mid-Atlantic steamer as its base, the French hope to start weekly flights across the South Atlantic in April.

Two Other Planes.

The other planes intended for the service are the Arc-en-Ciel—the Rainbow—which several months ago demonstrated its prowess by flying much the same route to South America and return in shorter hops, and the Santos Dumont, another four motored seaplane of like size which is being tested by Lucien Bossoutrot.

Capt. Bonnot plans to refuel his craft here and continue immediately to Natal, Brazil, following the first ocean crossing with four more before the plane is finally accepted from the manufacturer.

SCOTLAND'S SEA MONSTER UPSETS LIFE IN LONDON

Believers and Scoffers Wage Wordy Battle.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The question whether it is a sea monster or a "monster racket" which is threshing about in the cold waters of Scotland's Loch Ness was threshed out today in London's newspapers.

Several times in the last few weeks the press has duly noted reports of a monster cavorting in the otherwise peaceful waters of the Ness. Now comes no less an authority than W. U. Goodbody, a member of the Loch Ness fishery board, to state that he, personally, saw the creature.

And is everybody upset!

Prints Picture of Serpent.

Even the conservative Times succumbed to the monstrous urge, printing a picture of the purported sea serpent. Then came the Daily Herald, hinting darkly that it was all "a monster racket," saying the residents about the Scottish lake "fear only one thing more than the monster's being at large—and that is that it may be caught."

The Herald elaborated on this theme, indicating it believed the capture of the monster of the Ness would seriously detract from a growing tourist boom.

It was even said that plans are afoot to build a "hotel monster" on the shore of Loch Ness to accommodate the curious.

Used Binoculars.

Goodbody's testimony acted as a spark to touch off a serious discussion of a phenomenon which previously had been the topic of newspaper funsters and persons who lingered over their afternoon tea well into the cocktail hour.

The fishery board member averred he peered through binoculars to get a closeup view of what he described as "a long, dark object" bearing eight or nine humps which hove to in the lake 400 yards offshore.

And still there are those who scoff!

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The new year levee of King Christian X. for diplomatic and cabinet members today was a triumph for Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, American minister to Denmark.

Among men resplendent in diplomatic and military uniforms, Mrs. Owen appeared in a silver embroidered black gown and a black velvet hat interwoven with silver cloth.

Although she has been minister only eight months, she was given the honor of being the first envoy to appear before the king in the ceremony. The crowd which had gathered outside the palace cheered as she left.

We select only the center leaves—because the center leaves are the mildest and fully ripe for perfect smoking. Only the center leaves are used in making Luckies—so round, so firm, so fully packed—free from loose ends that spill out, that cling to lips. Is it any wonder Luckies are mild and smooth? # MUSSOLINI SETS UP 'FAIR PRICES' FOR NEW YEAR

Guilds Placed in Control of Italian Industry.

ROME, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Italians looked forward today to a new year of "Fair prices" established by the state as part of an economic housecleaning.

Under the new system, approved recently by the grand council of Fascism and subject to inauguration officially this month, law making, prixe fixing, and competition regulating powers are given 13 corporations or guilds working through a national council and Premier Mussolini.

Allow Margin of Profit.

The individual guild first must go with great detail into the manufacturing cost of the product it produces. Its duty then will be to set a "fair price," allowing a margin of profit and at the same time seeing that the workers are properly remunerated and the public not overcharged.

As a cabinet minister or an undersecretary is to preside over each of the 43 corporations, which embrace all branches of commerce, industry, and the professions, the state has assured itself a predominant part in this price fixing.

The fact is causing the vested interests to worry. Whether the judgment of the state will uphold their ideas of a fair profit is in many cases problematical.

Called "Corporative Profit."

Gino Arias, a member of the National Council of Corporations—supreme law making body of the new system—called it the "corporative profit," but did not disclose what margin it will embrace.

He added that freedom of initiative is preserved under the new order, "but bound by its due responsibilities."

It will be regulated, he said, "when necessary to guarantee its subordination to the interests of the people."

He declared that the only thing eliminated is "arbitrary action by private groups to the damage of the others in the same producing field."

Unwise Competition Eliminated.

Another explanation—semi-official—is that the system does away with "illicit advantages of individual producers over others in their field who find themselves momentarily in positions of inferiority."

The government recently established control over the opening of new manufacturing firms and it was thought likely this supervision would pass to the interested corporations. Unwise competition was eliminated.

MINISTER BALKS HOLDUP GANG IN RAID ON CHURCH

The Rev. Frederick W. Otterbein was held up on the stroke of midnight, New Year's eve, by three masked gunmen who invaded the North Austin Lutheran church, 1500 North Mason avenue, of which he is pastor, after luring him there on the pretext of wanting him to perform a New Year's eve wedding. The bandits obtained no money, however, the Rev. Mr. Otterbein convincing them after a 30 minute argument that he was unable to open the church safe.

The street was filled with residents of the neighborhood celebrating the birth of the new year as the pastor crossed the street to the church from the parish house at 1457 North Mason avenue. The gunmen were awaiting him in the church entrance and revealed that they were the ones who had summoned him. They threatened him, asserting they would "tolerate no foolishness."

While they were arguing about opening the safe, the church janitor, Vigant Knutsen, and his wife, Marie, entered. The bandits bent low in one of the pews, holding the pastor with them, until the couple approached them in the dark, then they leaped out and overpowered them. The gunmen finally left when they became convinced that the pastor did not have the combination of the safe. The Rev. Mr. Otterbein told the police he had deposited $1,000 in the night deposit department of the Austin State bank only 30 minutes before the bandits appeared.

FIND HOODLUM SHOT IN BACK; HIS PAL HELD

Louis Tufano, 33 years old, who has been in police custody more than 30 times since 1918, was found shot in the back and seriously wounded in front of 1960 Ogden avenue yesterday. At the Bridewell hospital he refused to talk about the shooting.

Carmen Papprone, 45 years old, 2088 Ogden avenue, who was trying to put Tufano in an automobile when the police arrived, said he was about to take the wounded man to the county hospital. He said he and Tufano had been drinking in various places during the night, but that he could remember nothing of the shooting. Papprone was held.

Tufano has received probation or fines on all of the charges made against him during the last 15 years, records show. He has been accused of automobile thefts, burglary, conspiracy, and bombing.

WOMAN SLAIN; 2 NEGROES HELD IN MARYLAND

Mate Says He Found Her Murdered.

Crisfield, Md., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The nude body of Mrs. Margaret Brumbley, 59, was found by her husband, Fred Brumbley, a farmer, early today. She had been stabbed in the head, apparently with an oyster knife.

Brumbley told Somerset county authorities he discovered the body lying across the bed when he returned to their home at Marion station, near here, from Crisfield shortly after midnight.

A Negro, Sam Jones, 55, and his son James, living on a nearby farm, were taken into custody and held for questioning. County deputies said they were seeking another Negro. Neighbors said the Joneses had been seen near the Brumbley farm.

Dr. George Coulbourne, who examined the body, said Mrs. Brumbley had not been attacked.

Waits at Back Door.

Brumbley told authorities that on returning home he discovered the back door locked, believing Mrs. Brumbley was at one of the neighbors, sat on the back steps waiting for her. After about half an hour, he decided to try to force the windows and then discovered the front door was open. He said the family never used that door. He went upstairs with a lantern and found the body.

Nothing had been stolen from the house.

Brothers Held as Slayers.

High Point, N. C., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Elaine Norman, 26, and his 20-year-old brother, Taft, were arrested early today charged with slaying Leota Childress, 18, near Elkin on Saturday.

The 18-year-old foster-daughte of Mr. and Mrs. Warwick W. Tilley, was shot when she surprised robbers and attempted to telephone for help.

HOSPITAL BARS VISITORS FROM MOE ROSENBERG

All visitors save his wife were barred from the room of Moe Rosenberg in the Frances Willard hospital yesterday following an emergency operation for appendicitis on the Democratic politician Sunday night. His physician, Dr. Allan E. Stewart, said the operation was performed "just in time" and that Rosenberg's condition was "quite favorable."

The operation will require a delay in Rosenberg's income tax evasion trial which was to have started before Federal Judge Wilkerson today. It was expected that his lawyers will ask that the case be put over for at least one, and probably two months. Dr. Stewart said his patient would not be able to be out for at least a month.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green said he would oppose any unreasonably long continuance. The government alleges that Moe evaded payment of $65,000 income taxes during 1929 and 1930. Because his mother, father and brother all died on holidays, Moe had a superstitious fear that he would not survive the operation but Dr. Stewart said he was on the road to recovery barring complications.

STOCK FRAUDS RETURN WITH NEW METHODS

Gold Shares Pick Up in Swindle Marts.

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Stock swindlers, with up to date methods, have renewed operations here, a report of the Better Business bureau for the five months ending Dec. 31 reveals.

Tipster sheets have declined, the report declares, but salesmen of gold mining shares have increased activity. The bureau announced a resumption of stock selling in gold mines which, until recently, showed no possibility of being able to operate at a profit. It is charged that in many instances promoters have merely offered the public stock in old gold mines under new methods of presentation.

Known Criminals in Game.

The report also says that during recent months there has been a marked increase in the vending of stock through the "sell and switch" method and that this, today, is the most common swindling device used in New York and New Jersey.

"The tenure of these firms is usually short," the report says, "and often men with police records are included in their personnel. The real principals keep their identity effectively concealed and when the authorities get too close on their trail they close up their business, to reopen later at a new address under a different name."

Says U. S. Law Needs Time.

In discussing the federal securities act passed last year and its effect in curtailing stock frauds, the report says that too short a time has elapsed to properly gauge the benefits of the legislation.

It is asserted, however, that following its enactment a number of tipster sheets discontinued business and others changed their methods.

CHARGE YOUTH PLANNED WRECK TO GET PICTURE

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Campbell Witbeck, 17, will be arraigned here tomorrow on a charge of attempting to wreck the "Minute Man," fast Boston and Maine passenger train, crowded with holiday passengers, so he could get a wreck picture.

The youth drove an eight inch spike in the crack between two rails, police allege, but lost his nerve when he heard the train approaching and stopped it. He had a camera with him at the time.

Police, advised he had at home numerous wreck pictures, will investigate to determine if he caused any shown in his collection.

CHINESE REBELS DRIVE CHIANG'S SOLDIERS BACK

Nanking Army Surrenders Two Towns.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 1.—Chinese newspapers issued extra editions New Year's afternoon reporting that Gen. Tsai Ting-kai's rebellious 19 Route army has been successful following several days of fighting along the Fukien-chekiang border. As a result the army of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, commander of the Chinese government forces, has been forced to surrender the strategic towns of Taishun and Chingyuan, located just north of the border.

Both towns were practically destroyed as a result of continuous artillery and air bombing in the past ten days. Chiang's army has withdrawn to Chingning, about 70 miles west of the port of Wenchow. This indicates that the 19th Route army is well within the Chekiang border. Its objective is first to cut Chiang's line of communications through Wenchow and then drive north directly to Hangchow, the capital of Chekiang province.

Fight In Mountain Area.

Serious fighting also occurred in the mountainous area farther west in the vicinity of Kinkyuen and Pucheng. Pucheng is located in extreme northern Fukien province. Gen. Tsai's objective here is to reach the new railway extending southwest from Changchow to the town of Kiangshan which is near the border between Chekiang and Kiangsi provinces.

Owing to the seriousness of the situation, Chiang yesterday dispatched a section of his fleet consisting of the flagship Haifu and three gunboats, commanded by Admiral Chen Chi-liang, to occupy Fukien ports, chiefly Foochow.

Since Chinese communist forces in Kiangsi province also are harassing the flank of Chiang's forces along the western Chekiang border, the situation is becoming increasingly serious. Chiang has proceeded to the front to direct personally the Nanking troops defending Chekiang. The government forces number 150,000 against the combined forces of the 19th Route army and the communists.

Meantime Hu Han-ming, a leading Cantonese politician, a former head of the Nanking legislative department and a bitter opponent of Chiang, is demanding a cessation of the civil war. He is calling for the retirement of Chiang and complete reorganization of the national government.

Rebel Generals Defeated.

MOSCOW, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Sinkiang provincial troops were reported victorious today over the forces of Gens. Mah Chuin and Chang Pei-Hwang, leaders of a movement to create an "independent" puppet state in Chinese Turkestan.

The information was contained in a dispatch from Bakhta, on the soviet border of Chinese Turkestan, to the Tass [Russian] news agency. The generals were said to have sent a delegation to Urumchi to sue for peace.

BLOOD IS GIVEN BY POLICEMAN TO SAVE COMRADE

Policeman Joseph Seebacher, 26 years old, 3503 Greenview avenue, attached to the Summerdale station, gave more than a pint of his blood yesterday for a transfusion performed to save the life of former Police Sergeant Austin Scott, 68 years old, 5641 Waveland avenue. Seebacher was chosen from a dozen men who volunteered their blood when a call was sent out over the police teletype on Sunday. He and Scott were not acquainted before they met at the Ravenswood hospital, where the operation was successfully performed. Physicians said the condition of the retired policeman was so improved he had good chances of recovery. He recently underwent an operation for an intestinal ailment.

SPEEDY C., B. & Q. MOTOR TRAIN TO BE READY SOON

The Burlington railroad's first stream line "two mile a minute" motorized train will be exhibited in principal cities between the coast and Chicago within a short time, it was announced yesterday by Albert Cotsworth, Jr., passenger traffic manager.

The "Zephyr," as the three-car unit is called, is nearing completion in the Philadelphia works of the E. G. Budd Manufacturing company. The train will be powered by a 600 horsepower Diesel engine.

The "Zephyr" is expected to reach Chicago late in March, when it will be on view at Union station. A performance run to show the speed possibilities will be made between here and Aurora, Mr. Cotsworth said.

RUSSIA BOOSTS SPENDING 30 PER CENT FOR 1934

MOSCOW, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Russian budget for 1934, in which expenditures 30 per cent greater than those of 1933 were scheduled, was submitted to the central executive committee today by Finance Commissar Grinko.

Revenues were listed at 48,700,000,000 rubles [$24,350,000,000 at nominal value] and expenditures at 47,200,000,000 [$23,600,000,000].

Revenues for 1933 were expected to exceed expenditures by 3,200,000,000 rubles [$1,600,000,000].

MODERN DESIGNS DOMINATE NEW FURNITURE SHOW

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

When hundreds of buyers from throughout the country attend the American Furniture Mart's two week showing of home furnishings goods which opens today they will find a large portion of the furniture, lamps and rugs in modern design.

As an indication of the advancement of modern furniture to a well established position furniture manufacturers representatives, spending New Year's day in adding last minute touches to displays, pointed out that it is no longer "moderne" but "modern" furniture.

Show Many Light Colors.

A survey of the new modern furniture revealed many light colors, reds, greens and white, brown and white stripes, and deep blues predominating in upholsteries. Bright shining surfaces, metal tubing, glass topped tables, white and metal lamps, and light colored thick rugs were noticeable.

"The whole effect is cheerful," one enthusiast said. "It is contrasted with most period furniture just as a modern composition of Stravinsky is contrasted to the heavy, strong strains of Verdi's 'Aida.'"

"It gives a sense of freedom," said another. "A married couple runs a better chance of living in harmony and happiness with modern furniture."

Women who appreciate modern furniture should be firm with their husbands if the latter object, and they will see their husbands come to like it, predicted Gilbert Rohde, New York, designer of modern furniture.

"It is all a matter of hal ," he said. "They may object strenuously at first, just as some persons object to modern art or modern music. But their set of reflexes will in time be reconditioned. Then instead of thinking modern furniture cold and uninviting, it will seem to them warm."

Criticises 'Period' Fad.

It is not the use of modern furniture but the use of "period" furniture which is a fad today, Rohde maintains. Modern furniture is the style of the age, and is as natural a product as any period style of furniture was in its own age.

"Louis XVI. didn't say to the craftsmen making furniture for his palace, 'Now, I want this just as George IV. had his.' The idea of accurately reproducing the things of the past and living with them has never been done before, and is in itself an affectation.

"We don't make modern furniture by hand, and why should we? In the old days when craftsmen got a better tool they used it. They didn't say 'No, my grandfather used a rough knife so I will do the same.' We have machines, so why not use them?"

ADMIRAL BYRD'S SHIP PUSHES INTO ICE PACK; DODGES AN ICEBERG

ABOARD ADMIRAL BYRD'S FLAGSHIP, OFF ANTARCTICA, Dec. 31.—(AP)—[Delayed.]—[Via Mackay Radio.]—The flagship of the second Byrd antarctic expedition again started south through the main antarctic pack on New Year's eve after drifting about on the edge of the pack since Saturday morning. All day yesterday a snowstorm and a thick pack had stopped progress and the noon position was latitude 69.12 south, longitude 116.42 west.

Tired of waiting, Admiral Byrd climbed the ladder up to the wheelhouse which served as an observation post for the ice pilot and consulted the southern horizon. The visibility was limited to five miles and the pack was gray and drab at the limit of vision. The outlines of a tremendous berg about five miles long was seen a mile southeast of the ship. A fair-sized lake had been produced during the previous 24 hours by the almost imperceptible movements of the pack.

The captain immediately signaled for slow speed and the ship moved out of the open water of the bay. She gained the open waters of the lake, swung around an iceberg, and then headed due south.

SWEDEN VISIONS BETTER TIMES; TREASURY FULL

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A year of slow but steady recovery behind her, Sweden looks forward to a continued improvement in 1934. She has had numerous signs of betterment in the last twelve months.

Finance Minister Wigfors has announced that the budget will not only hold its own but show a slight surplus;

The important Swedish export industries have met with growing demand, wood pulp factories, saw mills, and iron works having been well occupied in the last eight months;

Plenty of Money.

The increasing optimism in America has doubled the orders in Sweden for sulphate products; and there is plenty of money in Sweden. The bank rates are exceptionally low and the Central National bank shows an outstanding coverage on the circulation of bank notes. This circulation was, on Dec. 12, 534 million kronor against gold securities of 304 million.

President Roosevelt's policy is stated in official quarters to have helped Sweden's trade considerably and despite the withdrawal of the British boycott on Russian timber the trade in Swedish timber compares well with that of ordinary seasons and saw mills start 1934 with a stock of orders.

The export and import trade as a whole for 1933 is expected to show an estimated favorable balance of 50 million kronor, in contrast to an unfavorable balance a year earlier.

Building Trade Strike.

With 146,000 men and women unemployed and a strike in the building industry, however, Sweden was unable to reach the recovery during the year for which she had hoped.

The strike in the building industry broke out April 1 and numerous attempts to settle the differences failed. The workers directly involved are estimated to be about 40,000, but indirectly its influence extends to many more.

THE COURT, THE PEOPLE, AND THE NEW DEAL.

In one of the most noteworthy addresses of recent times Dean Gilmore of the University of Iowa law school has disposed of one mischievous fallacy and presented a survey of recent political events for which every American who wishes to understand their significance and their implications will be grateful.

The fallacy exploded is the assumption that the protection of public principles and private rights may be safely left to the federal Supreme court. Dean Gilmore points out that however ready that great institution is to defend its charge, its check is a "very limited and postponed check," because the court can only act upon the facts and issues brought before it in due legal procedure.

"To sit by and wait for the court to preserve fundamental rights is, or may well be, constitutional suicide," Dean Gilmore said. "The execution of the present recovery program has been carried on vigorously for six months, and may be carried on for another six months or even a year before the Supreme court will have an opportunity to decide anything as to the constitutionality of the various statutes.

"In fact, some unbiased observers see in what is now going on a deliberate and clever guiding of the administration of this most unusual body of legislation so as to avoid a conflict in the courts on the question of constitutionality and thus to establish a new social order before the complication of a possible adverse decision of the Supreme court may arise."

Whether or not there is a deliberate policy to shape action so as to postpone or evade judicial tests, it is obviously true that, as Dean Gilmore says, "by skillful publicity, by the plea of emergency, by appeals to patriotism and party loyalty, by exhortations in the name of social justice, by fears of economic disaster and of worse alternatives if the experiment fails, criticism has been temporarily quieted or softened and resort to the courts has been discouraged."

We would add that the attitude of the protagonists and supporters of the New Deal toward freedom of the press is a corollary of this policy. No administration, in recent times at least, has shown such resentment of the free discussion and criticism which is inherent in and essential to free government.

In fact the administration, under the excuse of emergency, seems to expect virtual immunity from criticism and dissent for an experimentation which some at least of its representatives are pleased to declare is revolutionary, and this, as Dean Gilmore reminds us and THE TRIBUNE has pointed out, without definite mandate from the election which placed the administration in office. "The vote was essentially a vote of protest, not an approval of anything definite. There was nothing definite to approve. The preelection presentation of the New Deal was in vague and general terms. In the main it was offered as something different and better. Nor is much significance to be attached to the action of the remarkable one hundred day session of congress last spring. The benumbing effect of a prolonged depression and of the fear of an economic collapse, the avowed temporary character of the proposed legislation, the unification resulting from a great political victory recently attained by an unusual combination of diverse groups of political thought, a magnetic executive leadership, all tended to allay misgivings and to quiet opposition."

It is unique in the experience of free government that a political régime which, without explicit mandate from the electors, embarks upon a program self-acknowledged to be revolutionary, and thereupon not only expects immunity from protest, to say nothing of lawful resistance, but attempts persistently to overawe and suppress it. This is truly a new deal for the American nation or for any other nation which does not propose to consign its liberties to an omnipotent and omnipresent government.

In such a development of American politics the wise and prophetic warning of Washington, with which Dean Gilmore closed his survey, is more timely and impressive than in any period of our history. "Toward the preservation of your government," wrote Washington in the Farewell Message, "it is requisite . . . that you resist with care the spirit of innovation upon its principles, however specious the pretexts. One method of assault may be to effect, in the forms of the constitution, alterations which will impair the energy of the system, and thus to undermine what cannot be directly overcome."

JAIL IN ALIMONY DISPUTES.

Another man has been sent to jail in an alimony suit. He had refused to pay $280 arrears in alimony because, although the divorce decree provided that he should be permitted to visit his children, of whom the divorced wife had custody, she had removed the children to San Diego, Cal. The judge required a $2,000 bond. The defendant was not able to provide it and was sent to the county jail.

No man should be sent to jail in any controversy over alimony without a trial by jury if he wants one. This should be provided among the amendments sorely needed in our present divorce law. The power of judges to send men to jail should be restricted, as was abundantly proved during the dry régime.

THE PRICE AND QUALITY OF MILK.

A sensible approach to the highly complicated problem of metropolitan milk supply might begin by granting more privileges to the consumer. It might be better, for instance, to permit him to select the grade of milk he wants or can afford and pay the price at which that grade of milk can be offered. If the purchaser knows what he is getting he can decide what he wants or what he can afford. Regulations now stipulate that milk must have a certain butterfat content. Recently regulation has endeavored to fix what the consumer must pay. This effort at standardization has not been satisfactory because in one instance it has made the consumer pay more than he felt he could afford, resulting in reduction in the amount he consumes, and in the other instance has sometimes prevented him from getting as good a grade of milk as he would like to have.

It would seem that a more sensible procedure would be to require that each grade of milk be honestly described and that the price vary with the quality. That would not prevent the maintenance of necessary health standards and, while freeing the purchaser from some of the restrictions from which he has suffered, it might relieve the milk industry itself from some of the burdens which have been artificially created for it.

Standardization aims to produce for the most part a milk of a quality artificially fixed, whereupon milk becomes just milk. If the dairy varieties were encouraged there would be milk from Jersey or Guernsey cows, from Holstein, Brown Swiss, Ayrshire, etc. The natural butterfat content would vary and the consumer could consult his taste and pocketbook. Some people might prefer the low butterfat, for waistline reasons among others. The desirable elements in milk are not limited to fat.

Selection offered the consumer by an industry is frequently the life of trade. Milk production even without government interference has tended to uniformity not as an absolute rule but as a general practice. Various breeds of milk cattle have been developed to serve different utilities and if the milk business followed its natural range both in price and quality there might be more use made of this palatable, health giving item in the national diet.

FROM PORK BARREL TO EASY MONEY.

The whole public works or easy money fund has now been appropriated and, indeed, overappropriated. There is less than nothing left to give away of the 3,300 million dollars.

The nation for generations has been indignant, and rightly so, at the congressional pork barrel. Congressmen were shameless in demanding so-called public works for their districts, to be paid for by the taxpayers of the whole nation. The money was distributed as a form of patronage. Congressmen who could cause the maximum of trouble if they were not appeased got monumental postoffices or isolated and useless waterway improvements for their districts. The congressional pork barrel was used to get votes in congress and by congressmen to gain support among their constituents.

The congressional pork barrel is no more. Its place has been taken by the administrative easy money fund. The differences appear to be less of kind than of degree. The easy money fund is costing the taxpayers four or five times as much as the pork barrel ever exacted, but the uses to which the money is put are strikingly similar. Waste is characteristic. Political considerations have obviously motivated many of the appropriations, despite all the tall talk to the contrary. The pork barrel was universally regarded as the reproach of representative government. We are asked to believe that easy money is the crowning glory of the new government by administrative autocrats.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE IMPROVES.

[Kansas City Star.]

The survey of American foreign trade for the first nine months of the current year which has been concluded by the United States Chamber of Commerce reinforces the signs of improvement evident now for some time in other trade figures. According to the chamber, twenty-nine countries bought more goods from the United States in that period than in the corresponding nine months of 1932, while our total imports showed a gain of 2 per cent.

There seems to be no doubt that our badly depressed foreign trade is beginning to revive. In October, for example, the total value of the exports from this country, as computed by the department of commerce, was nearly 194 million dollars, which was 33 million dollars more than in September and 41 million more than in October, 1932. It was, in fact, the largest total for any month in the last two years. The improvement in our export trade seems to have begun in June, and each month since has disclosed a substantial increase over the corresponding month of 1932. A similar revival has come in our import trade, the total value of which in October was 45 million dollars higher than in October of last year.

It is wise to be cautious in ascribing reasons for this improvement. The depreciation of the dollar undoubtedly has been a factor, but since imports have risen in value as well as exports—although in theory they should have decreased as a result of the dollar's depreciation—it is evident that the monetary situation could not have been the sole factor by any means. Indeed, in view of improving conditions generally throughout the world there are grounds for assuming that the increase in our foreign trade is part of an international trade revival. If that assumption is correct the question is whether it would not be wise public policy on the part of every country to begin to stimulate the process of improvement by taking effective steps at once to lower existing trade barriers along the lines indicated in Secretary Cordell Hull's recent proposal for such action at the seventh Pan-American conference in Montevideo.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

THE YEARLY REPORT on the condition of the Alphabet at the closing of the year 1933 shows that the damn thing is practically ruined. It's been CCC'd and NVA'd and DMB'd and AAA'd and ACC'd and TVA'd to such an extent that none of the single letters will stand alone any more. More than that and what is far worse, they are getting all worn with the exception of the letter Z, which up to the month of December was not much used by the brain trusters down in Washington. The creation three weeks ago, however, of the ZDC (Zebu Distribution Control), a government project to force every owner of a police dog to exchange it for a zebu, has overworked the Z to an enormous extent and it will soon be as dilapidated as the other letters. The only hope is that the alphabet will be increased to seventy-five or a hundred letters during 1934, so that there will not be so much wear and tear on the original twenty-six as at present.

KEEPSAKE.

Here at the end of the road of love,
Facing a gaunt gray wall;
Here in the Land of No Desire,
Where the dead leaves curl and crawl,
Unsoiled from the smudging-fingered years,
The muck and ruin of things,
Something of you remains with me
That wakes in the night and sings.

Eager to speak this last good-by,
Now that all pain is over,
I shall envy, I think, occasionally
The woman who calls you lover.

"LEND FARMERS $215,000,000 of U. S. Funds."—Washington item. All right—FOR SALE—my last half dozen white collars. Or will trade for a pair of overalls and a hoe. I don't want to be a white collar fellow any more. No, sir; back to the farm for me, the dear old farm, with its rustic joys and a chance to horn in on that two hundred and fifteen millions.

ADD—THINGS HARD TO UNDERSTAND. "Russia's New Five Year Plan Calls for the Doubling in the Amount of Agricultural Products."—"U. S. to Buy and Take Out of Production 50 Million Acres of Land."—Headlines. Now the thing that is hard to understand is why Russia should wish to double the amount of its agricultural products while the U. S. makes fifty million acres lie fallow. To say nothing of plowing under great quantities of wheat and cotton and burying millions of little hoggies. It must be that the Reds are bigger eaters than we are. Of course there must be a reason, but it does seem as though there was no sense to the darn thing.

PERHAPS.

If I but had the power to alter men
And make of them what they should be,
I'd start first with myself, and then
Perhaps there'd be no further work for me.

CHARLES HARTLEY CURTIS.

"WHEN A GENTLEMAN pays a lady a pretty compliment," says an anxious inquirer of a "How to Behave Like a Lady" column, "such as 'You are the most fascinating creature in that red dress I have ever seen,' or 'You are really the most charming conversationalist I have ever met,' what would be a pleasant response?" Well, dearie, it depends on whom you ask. Now, offhand we would say the perfect lady would smile in an elegant manner, showing all her teeth just like she was being photographed for a newspaper picture, and reply archly: "Oh, baloney, you big nitwit." Anyhow, that's what you girls usually say.

THE FIRST ROBIN REDBREAST has been reported. It was seen in Chicago New Year's eve. It is not surprising! From the noise the revelers made in the street as the new year came in it would not be surprising if polka dotted boa constrictors, green and orange hippopotamuses, and purple monkeys swinging by their tails from chandeliers were also observed.

TWO WOMEN PILOTS in a woman's refueling endurance flight in an airplane have just come down after staying aloft 9 days, 21 hours, and 42 minutes. Very well, but the hardened old flagpole sitters used to roost away up there in the stratosphere much longer than that, while the man who pushed a peanut across the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific stayed on the job for months and months. Personally we prefer watching two determined heroes engaged in a deadly battle to see which one can eat the most hard boiled eggs in one hour's time from the crack of the pistol. Oh, well, some like one thing, some another.

POEM FOR UGLY HOUSES.

Poor little houses
With roofs that sag,
Men that are lazy
And women that nag . . .

Poor little houses
With handleless pumps—
Dark sagging porches
And gardens in lumps . . .

Coal sheds of lumber
That came from the ark—
Fences that slumber
And fall in the dark . . .

Poor little houses!
Why should you stone,
When all you have

THE TONSIL GAMBLE.

THE current of medical opinion is running strongly against promiscuous removal of tonsils. All physicians are agreed that this operation is necessary and advantageous at times, but the consensus is that the provocation should be greater than has been the practice in the past, and that even when it is the results of operation are not certain.

There are many observations of children that before operation were dull and backward but who, after having tonsils removed, were able to keep up in their classes. There are other observations of children who began to grow normally after tonsil removal. However, in most of these cases the improvement came to a stop after a few months or years. There are many observations of pains that have disappeared and arthritis that has cleared up in the wake of tonsil operation.

But it must be admitted that there have been more failures than successes, especially when operation was done because of focal infection. The case of the tonsils is somewhat similar to that of the teeth in the field of focal infections. There are cases where pulling teeth has worked magic and others where no good has been accomplished. The man who got the best advice possible and, as a result, had his teeth all pulled, found himself wearing false teeth to no avail.

The best opinion as to what should be done has not been better than opinion of less reputation. Any action was a gamble. Efforts are being made to decide which plainly abnormal tonsils and adenoids should be operated on and which should not be. It is pretty generally agreed that children under 5 years old should not have the tonsils and adenoids removed unless the need be overwhelming.

Dr. M. Nadolecsny of Bucharest gives his estimate of the value of operation in various conditions. He thinks complete removal of the tonsils superior to cutting them off. For chronic enlargement, without other symptoms, he is opposed to operation except when there is considerable interference with breathing and modification of the voice.

The tonsils frequently suppurate in children, but this is not an indication for operation unless it becomes chronic. Operations to prevent attacks of quinsy are not advisable. In acute rheumatism, affecting many joints, and with a history of acute tonsillitis, it is not. In acute glomerular Bright's removal of tonsils does good. In chronic Bright's and adolescent albuminuria operation is of no help. In chorea minor it helps occasionally. In acute rheumatic heart disease it may help. It is sometimes of service in clearing of diphtheria carriers. Removal of the tonsils does not prevent diphtheria or Vincent's angina.

Operation on a child has a profound mental effect. This should be given weight in deciding whether or not to operate.

IT IS ELECTRICITY.

Mrs. F. R. writes: What would cause silken undershings to have the same snapping sound that the hair has when moved from any part of the body, and a tendency to make the skin feel charged with electricity, just as hair does when combed?

REPLY.

Static electricity.

DETACHED RETINA.

J. R. writes: Would you write something about a detached retina in a person not 21 years old? What is the chance of recovering sight? Will it affect the other eye?

REPLY.

The most frequent cause is hemorrhage into the retina. Accidents of various kinds may cause it. In children the eyeball is rather fragile, and misuse and accidents sometimes cause the retina to break loose, for this membrance is arranged something like paper on a wall. The condition is a grave one. The operation that is sometimes done helps at times and fails at other times. There is no effect on the other eye. But in many cases the condition which caused it in one eye is present in the other.

From Across the Sea

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—"You must have at least four children, that is your duty to the state," a solemn voice rang out over all German radios recently. The official racial adviser of the government controlled broadcasting company was speaking and exhorting his countrymen and countrywomen to do their duty along the progeny line.

Parents who fail to have the required number of children will be made to bear the brunt of taxation, while proud fathers and mothers will pay almost no taxes—in fact, a mere outsider might get the impression that the state will pay a real bonus for every fifth child.

Here are the figures as revealed by the secretary of state in the financial ministry—15 per cent tax reduction for the first child born, 20 per cent for the second, 25 per cent for the third, and 30 per cent for the fourth and each additional child.

A new rule provides that heads of families get the first jobs available and are the last to be discharged. The Precision works in Bielefeld has introduced a new system under which the term of notice of dismissal to employés is increased in accordance with the number of children in the family.

All this is being done to make up for war losses and post-war losses which the famous statistician, Director Burgdoerfer, avers amount to 13,000,000 persons. Two million soldiers fell in the war, 750,000 died in consequence of the blockade, and the wartime birth-rate was so low that Burgdoerfer figures another 3,500,000 loss. A further 6,500,000 were lost to Germany when she had to turn over territories to the victors.

Burgdoerfer directed the recent German census. He will announce the final results known in the spring, but he sounds the alarm now, stating the "devastating consequences of the decline of births are already evident." While in 1931 deaths exceeded births in only six cities, this number increased to twelve in 1932. In the first half of the current year this number rose to eighteen. The last racial asset, he says, is the rural population with a 12 per cent surplus of births over deaths.

AN OPPONENT OF THE SEAWAY TREATY.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—I have a strong desire to write and tell you how I appreciated your editorial printed in THE TRIBUNE of Friday, Dec. 22, telling of the growing opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway treaty.

As chairman of the river and harbor committee of the Chicago Real Estate board for the years 1932-'33 and appointed to serve again in 1934, I have taken a very active interest in all waterway developments that affect Chicago.

Like any loyal citizen of Chicago, I was at first enthusiastic about the possibility of Chicago's becoming a seaport and could fairly vision great ocean boats arriving and departing at the port of Chicago. But as I have studied the terms of the treaty and the effect which the improving of the St. Lawrence river for navigation would have on various branches of United States business, my enthusiasm for the treaty has gone down until now I am an outspoken opponent of it.

Of the two outlets to the sea—the St. Lawrence and the Mississippi rivers—the outlet via the Mississippi is of very much greater value to the Chicago district in that it not only provides a low cost water movement for import and export freight through New Orleans at a cost to the great majority of the world ports as low, or even lower, in cost than via the St. Lawrence, but it removes the handicap that we have been under since the completion of the Panama canal in doing business with the Pacific coast ports of our own country.

The St. Lawrence treaty should be rejected if for no other reason than that it is a very evident effort to kill the Illinois waterway. Also because of the insult to our sovereignty through the efforts of Canada to make the waters of Lake Michigan international waters.

The treaty provides for arbitration if at any time more than 1,500 second feet of water is needed to maintain a nine foot depth of water in the Illinois river, but it will be of no use to Chicago to be able to maintain a nine foot depth in the Illinois river if a nine foot depth cannot be maintained in the Mississippi river north of Cairo. A diversion of water at Chicago that will maintain a nine foot depth of water in the restricted channel of the Illinois river will not maintain a nine foot depth in the larger channel of the Mississippi river.

This was demonstrated in the summer of 1930 shortly after the federal government assumed control of the Illinois waterway and the Chicago ship and sanitary canal. Through a long period of low precipitation in the upper basin of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers the water became so low in the Mississippi river that the federal barges could not operate north of Cairo. At this time the diversion of water at Lockport was 8,000 second feet. In order to secure sufficient water to maintain navigation in the Mississippi river north of Cairo the war department opened the gates wide at Lockport and diverted 12,500 second feet.

If an 8,000 second feet diversion would not maintain a navigable depth in the Mississippi river, manifestly a diversion of 1,500 second feet will not. The value of the Illinois waterway outlet to the sea depends upon the maintenance of a nine foot depth of water at all times for the entire distance from Chicago to New Orleans, and the treaty contains no guaranty of our being able to maintain a nine foot depth in the Mississippi river north of Cairo.

This is a point that I have never seen made anywhere in the press, and I hope that you will give the public some strong editorials on this point. The approval of the treaty in its present form must be defeated.

I believe that the improvement of the St. Lawrence river is inevitable sooner or later, and I am for it when a treaty can be drawn that does not insult our sovereignty and which properly safeguards United States interests.

WALTER MILLS,
Chairman, River and Harbor Committee, Chicago Real Estate Board.

CAVELIER DE LA SALLE.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—The undersigned, a citizen of Budapest, Hungary, is visiting your fascinating city, making good use of the depreciated dollar, coupled with extremely cheap food.

I had the good luck to receive a telepathic message from the explorer La Salle. He told me that while he became accustomed to be called by the name of his estate in France and not by his family name, he felt greatly honored by the dedication of the Michigan boulevard bridge to him.

However, he could not understand why the city of Chicago should spell his family name on the dedication tablet as Cavalier instead of Cavelier. He thought that the great American writer, Parkman, who wrote the history of his discoveries of the Mississippi and the great west, should be reliable about this matter.

I promised Mr. Cavelier de la Salle to write to you and ask you whether the city or La Salle is wrong, and, if possible, to convey to him your answer.

ALFRED STRASSER.

WE WANT PEACE, VON HINDENBURG TELLS DIPLOMATS

Hitler Praises President at New Year's Fete.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 1.—A few hours before Andre Francois-Poncet, French ambassador, presented his government's aide memoire on disarmament discussions to Chancellor Adolf Hitler and Baron Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, President Paul von Hindenburg, Hitler and the diplomatic corps all expressed fervent longings for peace at a New Year's day reception at the presidential palace.

"I, who was a soldier and have experienced the horrors of three wars, know that both the government and nation wish for nothing else but to live in harmony with all other nations on a basis of honor and equality." President von Hindenburg told the diplomatic corps. "Germany seeks recognition of equal rights in order to restore confidence which is an indispensable prerequisite for fruitful coöperation between governments."

Sees Brighter Future.

The aged president referred to the success achieved in stemming the rising tide of poverty in Germany, declaring that internal discord has now been abolished and that German youth is able to look forward to a brighter future.

Msgr. Orsenigo, papal nuncio, conveyed the greeting of the diplomatic corps to President von Hindenburg.

Recalling the profound political changes in Germany in the past year, "which had marked a veritable turning point in the history of your country," Orsenigo continued:

"We, whose welcome task it is to serve the cause of peace, are especially gratified to see that men to whom your excellency has entrusted the destinies of this country have solemnly proclaimed their desire to settle differences between Germany and other nations in a peaceable manner and by friendly agreement."

Hitler Sounds Peace Note.

Hitler likewise proclaimed peace while conveying the greetings of his cabinet.

"Supported and strengthened by the trust and approval you have given me and the government, Mr. President, we are enabled in the maintenance of the honor and equal rights of the German people to pursue a policy, the last aim of which is to establish a true and upright peace," Hitler said.

In his reply to Hitler, Von Hindenburg said:

"May 1934 bring us a final victory at home over economic distress and unemployment. May it lead us abroad further on the path of true peace—peace in honor and equal rights."

COURT PROHIBITS TRIAL OF IRISH BLUE SHIRT CHIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 1.—Lawyers for Gen. Owen O'Duffy, leader of the Blue Shirts, sprang a surprise on the De Valera government today when they obtained a high court order prohibiting his trial by a military tribunal. The trial was scheduled to open tomorrow.

Gen. O'Duffy was summoned to appear before the tribunal on five counts, including membership in unlawful organizations, sedition, and incitement to murder President Eamon de Valera.

Application for a conditional order preventing the tribunal from hearing the charges was granted on an affidavit by O'Duffy lawyers. They alleged that the tribunal had no jurisdiction, that the summons was issued without jurisdiction, and that the charge of membership in an unlawful association disclosed no offense or crime known to law. Justice O'Byrne granted the petition and ordered the tribunal to show within ten days that they have jurisdiction to try O'Duffy.

BOYS FIND CACHE OF STOLEN GUNS; THEY'RE WOODEN

Mrs. May Hamrich called Sheffield avenue police to her home at 2467 North Clark street last night because her two nephews, Jesse Hamrich, 16, and William, 15, and other boys were playing with guns in the basement. A squad hurried over. They found a loaded Lueger pistol, and wooden imitations of a sub-machine gun and a large pistol.

The Lueger and imitations had disappeared earlier in the day from the room of John Wilson who lives and works at the Shore Crest hotel, 420 Wrightwood avenue. Wilson, whose hobby is guns, said he had made the imitations for Col. Calvin Goddard, ballistics expert, for exhibition at A Century of Progress. Jesse Hamrich confessed that he and several other boys had stolen the guns.

..DEEP RIVER..

THE FIRST of January 1929 opened upon just about the best of all possible worlds. Business was good. Everybody had a job. Our oracles assured us we were on the eve of unprecedented opportunity. The country kept its ear on the ticker and its eye on the closing prices. Money poured into Wall Street in tidal waves and new wealth washed back over the land. Our biggest names were money names, and smart fellows were reckoned by paper profits. Some business men spent more time on their brokers than on their business. All of us were going to be rich, with two cars in every garage. Want was to be wiped out like a naughty word. Everything was bigger and better, with never a thought of a Big Bad Bear. . . . Then October and the crash.

Between 1929 and 1934 lies a deep river of experience, of incredible change and unimaginable difference. Wall Street has diminished to a shadow. Most of the big money and big names have been swept away in four years of economic attrition. The smart fellows proved not so smart. A large part of our 1929 new wealth became waste paper. Most of our old estimates have altered. In the long, sickening, snowballing decline, most of our old institutions have lost stature.

And in the field of business, most of our former firsts have failed to hold their place.

Was your business in 1933 on a par with 1929?

Well, ours was—ahead, in fact!

WE MAKE this statement not boastfully—but gratefully and significantly. Because the past four years have proved that this newspaper is so fundamentally right in its essential idea, in its function and service, that hard times have helped it, not hurt it!

The News interests more people, satisfies more readers than it did in 1929—about 200,000 more each weekday and 500,000 more on Sunday. Circulations have gone up every year since 1929, and every month in 1933 except May.

With less money to spend, more people have preferred to buy this newspaper!

News advertising gained in 1930, gained in 1931, declined in 1932, but has gone up every month in 1933 since March. Our total 1933 linage exceeds 1932 by about 600,000 lines—and exceeds 1929 by more than 1,500,000 lines!

A NEW economic sun is rising over 1934. The fever of fear has cooled down, confidence has come back. The easy money mirage no longer beckons over a happy horizon. We hope less for ourselves, more for others. We have come to be our brother's keeper that we may keep ourselves. The greater good of the greatest number is now seen to be the guaranty of good times, better business. Necessity, as well as legislation, has brought us closer to a working version of real Christianity than ever before.

A tremendous effort is being made to make farming a better business. Competitive price cutting no longer comes out of the hide of the worker, and the minimum wage provision is making vast new markets. Children have been freed that more adults may work. Chiseling is looked upon as criminal, not clever. Millions more have incomes again, are able to buy once more. Banks are in better condition, no longer suffering from suspicion. Bond prices are up, as are most commodities. Automobile sales in 1933 were about 36% ahead of 1932, look better for 1934. Retail trade was well up almost everywhere in December. Repeal is going to lift some of the tax load.

It's time to get going again.

It's time for some of that much mentioned "rugged individualism" in business planning and selling—instead of sheepish hesitation over general conditions!

It's time to ask people to buy things. How do you know they won't?

FOR FIRMS that are going somewhere in a sales way in 1934, we recommend the New York City market—with more people with more money than anywhere else on earth just now. Least hurt by the depression, New York will be most helped by the rise.

And for any firm trying to get more business in the New York market, we rather obviously suggest the help of The News. Why not use the strongest paper in the market, the only one to go ahead in 1929-1933?

The paper that has done the best job for itself and for advertisers in the past four years is plainly in the best position to do the best job for you in New York in 1934.

The News offers you majority coverage of the market in its circulation of over 1,450,000 weekdays and over 2,000,000 copies on Sunday. It reaches most of the people that any advertiser wants to reach.

It reaches them more effectively—with its small pages that add visibility to all advertising.

And it costs less—a lot less!

May we reserve some space for you in 1934?

Polo Program for Saturdays Is Announced

Chicago Also Hopes to Hold National Tourney.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE new year properly acclaimed, there is interest this morning in the news of a 1934 polo event.

Beginning next Saturday evening and continuing every Saturday night in January, February, and March, the Metropolitan Indoor Polo league is to have two games each evening at the 124th Field Artillery armory in Washington park.

The announcement has already produced an imposing box list. Also it has caused the horse lovers to entertain hopes of still another epoch in polodom — namely, the possibility of holding the national championships in the spring at this armory, where they were held last April for the first time they were ever awarded to any arena west of New York City.

In this connection are remembered the comments of Winston F. C. Guest, who is to indoor polo what Tommy Hitchcock is to the outdoor game—the only ten goal player in the sport. He has never been more enthusiastic about any playing arena than the Field Artillery armory ring. He praised its tremendous size, the footing it afforded his famous Argentine mounts, and besides this he had the most generous words possible for Chicago hospitality. In fact, he went on record last spring as saying that he wanted to come here again for the championships in 1934 with the New York Optimists — the brilliant Michael Phipps, Stewart Iglehart, and Harvey Shaffer.

Other Reasons for Holding Hope

During the east-west series last summer when Mr. Guest returned to the city as a member of Mr. Hitchcock's eastern quartet, he again registered his enthusiasm for bringing the national championships here. Add to these indications the fact that Mr. Guest is a vice president of the Indoor league, also the fact that Col. Charles C. Haffner, who presides over the armory, is another vice president, and the return of the championships is considered a likelihood by some.

Meantime the Metropolitan league games give promise of being just as important a Saturday night drawing card as they were last year. Maj. Richard G. Hunter, whom Col. Haffner has put in charge of the series, announces that as an added attraction there will be some intercollegiate games with one of the young stars, Raymond Ickes, son of Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes and Mrs. Ickes. He is a student at the University of Chicago.

The Haffners will, of course, have a box for each Saturday night. And others who will be found in the box ring will be the Charles F. Glores, the Benjamin L. Behrs, George Bates, the Prentice Porters and the Henry Porters, the Frederic McLaughlins, and

At Homes Mark New Year's Day

The custom of holding at homes was popular with socialites yesterday. Eggnog appeared to be the favorite drink at many of the parties. In this picture Wade Fetzer Jr. and Miss Florence Otis are shown at the home of Mrs. William Ennis at 2600 Lake View avenue. Miss Otis is to become the bride of Mr. Fetzer on Feb. 3. ## Raisa Is More Glorious than Ever as Tosca

Onofrei Pleases in Role of Cavaradossi.

"TOSCA."

Opera in three acts by Puccini, presented by the Chicago Grand Opera company at the Civic Opera house Jan. 1, 1934.

THE CAST.

Floria Tosca.....Rosa Raisa
Mario Cavaradossi.....Dimitri Onofrei
Baron Scarpia.....Pasquale Amato
Cesare Angelotti.....Norman Cordon
The Sacristan.....Giuseppe Cavadore
Spoletta.....Lodovico Oliviero
Sciarrone.....Wilfred Engelman
A Shepherd.....Maria Matyas
A Jailer.....Maurice Sciaplo

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In two respects the "Tosca" performance last night was different from the one with which the Chicago Grand Opera company introduced itself to the public last week. They were both important ones. Mme. Raisa was back in her former rôle as Tosca; Mr. Onofrei has joined the organization for a period, and made his bow as Mario Cavaradossi.

When Mme. Raisa began to sing in this opera some seasons ago at the Auditorium, I used to think she was the finest Tosca on the operatic stage. The only alteration in the statement necessary at present is that she is a little more glorious than she used to be. She was magnificent last night.

She is one of the few Toscas who can go through the highly unrestful wrestling match and assault with a deadly weapon in the second act and come out with her dignity unimpaired. She steals out at the rear of the stage like an avenging if somewhat scared spirit. She sings "Vissi d'arte" while seated on a couch and without calisthenics, and last night the performance stopped for a perceptible interval at the end. Her voice just now is one of the glories of this or any other season, a gorgeously lovely instrument upon which to produce dramatic and lyric effects.

Mr. Onofrei was one of the important figures in the Gallo season at the Auditorium last fall. He can be one in this company as well if it is possible for him to stay. His voice is one in which to take high pleasure, he knows many rôles, and he has the gift of more than ordinary intelligence in his presentation of them. And seldom has he done better singing or showed better stage sense than in his performance last night.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

Phenomena—Recipe.

The Bennetts' eggnog party was from 12 to 2, and promptly at 12 the first contingent arrived, including a group of gentlemen in cutaways and silk hats, bound later for the annual Chicago club New Year's day luncheon, with luncheon and champagne on the club. And at the Chicago club, we are reliably informed that as the august members sat down to lunch the orchestra played "Pomp and Circumstance."

THE eggnog party of the Fairbanks probably was the gayest party anybody ever had, with opera singers and authors, composers and artists, debutantes and social leaders joining in the Pilgrim Chorus and Holy Night; a constant stream of new arrivals, and eggnog rapidly dispensed from the bowl at which Mrs. Samuel T. Chase presided. There was even a famous man of the stage there—Leslie Howard, who was in town with Mrs. Howard between trains. And after the Fairbank party, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Byfield entertained the Howards and a few friends at the Tavern club at supper, after which the Howards caught a 9 o'clock train for the west. He is to start work immediately in Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage."

THERE were other pleasant things over the holiday weekend. Marion Talley, slim as a sylph, her voice clear as a bell, singing Gilda in "Rigoletto" at the opera; the gay dancing party at the Saddle and Cycle club, where bouquets of balloons were suspended from the chandeliers, the tables were lit by candlelight, and the turning out of the lights for a second, to herald the approach of midnight and the new year, was the signal for toasts, followed by a new whirlwind of serpentine tape and bursting balloons.

Most interesting of all, perhaps, was listening to Eva Le Gallienne's impassioned theater talk after the "Alice in Wonderland" performance Saturday night, and observing that Josephine Hutchinson, who plays Alice, is even more lovely off the stage than on. Miss Le Gallienne's black gown accentuated her paleness and earrings of antique gold set with emeralds were in her ears. Her vital and charming voice, the wide set blue eyes, the extraordinary intelligence, and earnestness of this sincere devotee of the theater made meeting her an event of importance.

THIS, perhaps, might be a good moment to give Miss Le Gallienne's own version of the little incident printed here the other day about Eleanora Duse's performance. Miss Le Gallienne and Miss Barrymore went to see her in New York and the entire cast of the Moscow Art theater sat in the same row. When Duse appeared on the stage the entire row rose and stood for a second in tribute to her greatness.

Throngs Brave Downpour; See Rose Pageant

Girls in Big Parade Shiver at Pasadena.

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Nearly 200,000 persons courted pneumonia in a driving rain today to see Pasadena's tournament of roses parade.

"Tales of the Seven Seas" were recalled with nearly a hundred motorized floats fashioned from 5 million flowers.

It was the 45th annual parade with which Pasadena shows the world the the variety of flowers that bloom in southern California in the winter time.

From former President Herbert Hoover on down the spectators sought shelter of umbrellas, newspapers and semi-tropical palms as the six-mile parade, representing a score of cities, moved along in the rain.

Flowered galleons of ancient days glided down the boulevards as gallons of water poured from the skies. Attractive girls in scanty parade attire shivered as their blossom-woven floats moved by.

The parade was led by Admiral William S. Sims, who said he would lead it if he had to swim—but he turned up in a motor car carrying an umbrella.

In a yellow slicker and sodden hat former President Hoover braved the downcoming torrents to see the entire parade. A girl on a float espied him and she and sister nymphs were rewarded with a grin for their hand waves.

San Francisco was represented with a lavish floral reproduction of its Golden Gate bridge.

The city of Long Beach won the Grand Sweepstakes prize with its pastel-hued float on which rode the "Queen of the Beaches." The grand theme prize was for "The Lost Atlantis" entered by the Firestone Tire and Rubber company.

Miss Falsa Nell Clayton, 17, was stricken with a chill while riding on the float entered by her home city, Santa Ana. She was treated at an emergency hospital and released.

Animal of 2 Million Years Ago Found by Museum Expedition

The saber-tooth marsupial, prehistoric killer which lived some 2 million years ago in South America, has been introduced to the scientific world by Prof. Elmer S. Riggs, associate curator of paleontology at Field museum.

The animal was discovered in the Argentinian province of Catamarca by Prof. Riggs while leader of the Marshall Field paleontological expedition to Argentina. Skulls and parts of skeletons of the species brought to the museum by the expedition are said to be the only known specimens in the world.

Like the saber-toothed tiger, the newly discovered animal has long, pointed teeth. The new animal, however, carried its young in a pouch in the same manner as the opossum and kangaroo.

End of Prohibition to Restore Formal Dress, Says Expert

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The repeal of prohibition, declares a movie fashion expert, will restore formality in American dress.

Vera, who designs gowns for the stars in Universal pictures, sees a marked change in styles during 1934 on account of the resumption of legal drinking.

"During the prohibition era both men and women in this country were careless about their dress," says Vera. "Women adopted mannish garb and even struggled to reshape their bodies along masculine lines. Men lost respect for formality completely."

Vera predicts a quick change-over by women from mannish modes to things more effeminate—soft, exquisite.

See This Movie and Guess Why It Was Filmed

"MR. SKITCH."

Produced by Fox.
Directed by James Cruze.
Presented at the Chicago theater.

THE CAST.

Mr. Skitch.....Will Rogers
Mrs. Skitch.....Zasu Pitts
Emily Skitch.....Rochelle Hudson
Flo.....Florence Desmond
Cohen.....Harry Green
Harvey Denby.....Charles Starrett
Cliff.....Eugene Pallette

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

There's a trick to this one. The trick is—to guess why on earth the thing was ever made.

Certainly no poorer vehicle for Will Rogers or Zasu Pitts could possibly have been found had the producers deliberately set out in search of a cluck. So, reaching blindly about for a reason, you may decide that "Mr. Skitch" was evolved for the purpose of introducing Miss Florence Desmond and her bag of impersonations to a public unfamiliar with the English mimic.

Miss Desmond takes off Garbo and Zasu Pitts excellently, but isn't so hot when she essays Jean Harlow and Lupe Velez.

The story—adapted from "Green Dice," by Anne Cameron—concerns the Missouri Skitches—pa, ma, a pretty daughter in her teens, a pair of precocious girl twins and a small boy given to asking perturbing questions—who lose their home during the depression.

They start out for California in a rickety car to retrieve fortune. And you accompany them through the Rockies, the Grand Canyon, Yellowstone park to the Golden State—a tour that leads them through numerous tourist camps and adventures—and back home again.

The story [as filmed] is dumb. The dialogue is dumber. Individual performances are as good as scenario and direction permit. Scenery's nice in spots.

But I bet this one made ol' Will Rogers say things under his breath!

1934 Welcomed by Mummers in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 1.—(AP)—In keeping with their century old tradition of welcome to the New Year, Philadelphia's "Mummers" frolicked and cavorted through slush covered streets in several sections, but their usual big parade down Broad street was missing.

The various clubs returned to their original custom of celebrating, each marching in its own neighborhood. It was the first time since the world war and only the second since the custom was started at the turn of the century that the colorful march down Broad street was omitted.

The city council's failure to provide prizes for the parade led to the abandonment of the big march this year.

The disciples of the God Momus, bands playing, costumes fluttering, did have one fair sized parade, however. A dozen of the clubs gathered in south Philadelphia and marched about 20 blocks, their ardor undaunted by rain squalls.

"First in Line" Caller Waits for Reception if President Changes Plan

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—(AP)—For five years J. W. Hunnefeld, a Washington house painter, has started New Year's day by showing up at the White House gate ahead of every one else in order to be the first to clasp the President's hand at the customary reception.

Today there was no reception, but Hunnefeld was on hand—"just in case the President changed his mind."

"Also," he added, "it has become somewhat of a habit to come here on New Year's day."

Wearing the handlebar mustache and gay necktie that have marked him at previous receptions, he was recognized and greeted by members of the White House staff and police force.

Hunnefeld considers the necktie his good luck piece. Without it, he said, he feared he might lose out on first place in the receiving line. But he denied being superstitious.

Page Mr. Pomeroy

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.

Bruce Pomeroy, brought up in poverty, befriended a Russian, Boris Orleneff. In return, Orleneff, before his death, left Pomeroy an invention, which is about to make Pomeroy a millionaire. Orleneff stipulated that his brother's family, whom he considered parasites, were not to get a cent from the invention. While walking through New York's Central park one winter's morning Pomeroy is kidnaped and taken to a small island off the coast of Maine, where he is made a prisoner in a luxurious home, but kept on a starvation diet. His captor is Boris Orleneff, nephew of the inventor. Boris' cousins, Cyril and Olga Norrikoff, assisted in the abduction. They want Pomeroy to make a settlement. He refuses. Boris invites Pomeroy to join the family circle downstairs. The older members are unaware that Pomeroy is an involuntary guest. Pomeroy manages to elude his guard, Grateful, and get out of his room, but a raging storm makes escape impossible. Olga Norrikoff tells Pomeroy they are all starving. That the house was lent to them for the winter. Boris and Cyril hadn't been able to get work. Pomeroy arranges through Grateful to get food supplies from Andy Mason, the caretaker. He has fallen in love with Irma Orleneff, Boris' sister. Cyril's mother dies and his father commits suicide. Cyril had left, before the tragedy, in a leaky boat to get help from the mainland. Pomeroy asks Irma to marry him.

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

FAREWELLS.

"You must make it clear to the ladies that they must say their good-bys before we take the general and his wife out there. They won't see them again," Bruce Pomeroy said sadly to Grateful.

"O. K. with me. I'll go an' put it up to the boss. He'll hafta do the talkin'." Grateful started for the door. Pomeroy stopped him as he was crossing the threshold. "We'll get the wood up first. Then you and Andy and I can do the rest."

"All right. Let's say about 10 o'clock."

Grateful hurried away and Pomeroy pondered again on the strange twist of fate that had got him into the middle of these catastrophies. He had finished his breakfast and was standing by a window, vainly trying to find some promise of a break in the storm, when the door opened again after a slight tap and Orleneff came in. He looked rather worse than he had looked the day before. He joined Pomeroy by the window, and they both gazed out at the inevitable vista of sea and whirling snow.

"Do you think your idea is all right?" Orleneff asked at last. "I'm an awful duffer about these things."

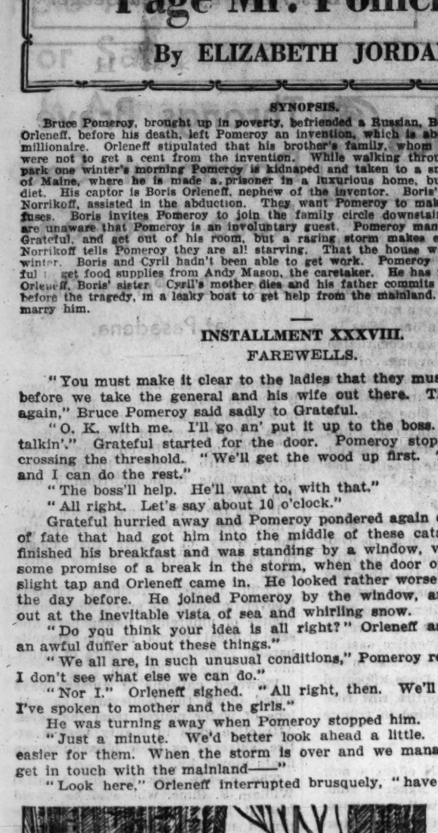
"We all are, in such unusual conditions," Pomeroy reminded him. "But I don't see what else we can do."

"Nor I." Orleneff sighed. "All right, then. We'll do as you suggest. I've spoken to mother and the girls."

He was turning away when Pomeroy stopped him.

"Just a minute. We'd better look ahead a little. That may make it easier for them. When the storm is over and we manage in some way to get in touch with the mainland——"

"Look here," Orleneff interrupted brusquely, "have you any idea how long that may be? We're as out of the world on this damned island as if we were at the north pole. We haven't even the sieve now. Who's going to think of us? Who's going to look for us? Have you thought of that?"



"We won't do anything on your charity!"

"I have. And I know that Andy has supplies for only two or three days."

"Andy? What do you know about him?"

"A lot. Also I've put out a signal of distress on the back of the boathouse — an inverted flag. I'm sure that a day or two more will see some developments. What I started out to say," he hurried on, "was that when we can get an undertaker I suggest that we take the bodies to New York and put them in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn. There's an Orleneff lot there—a big one—that I have fixed up and put a monument in. Your uncle is there. I know he'd want me to pay the expenses and get you all back to New York. He certainly never imagined such developments as these."

"We won't do it on your charity. We won't do anything on your charity. And how did you set up that signal? That needs explaining."

The young man's tone was icy. Pomeroy experienced a sudden impulse to kick him.

"Don't be an ass," he said curtly. "I put up the signal for myself. Now we all need help. As to the money, you can call it a loan. Call it anything you like. When Irma married me——"

"Don't count on that. She says she won't. She's sure she can get a job, and if we both have one we can take pretty good care of mother." Orleneff seemed almost distraught. He was weaving about the room like a caged animal. Pomeroy's resentment died, and he looked at the young man anxiously.

"That's all right, then. We needn't talk about it any more. I'll put the matter up to Miss Norrikoff. She'll see reason, and after all these are literally her funerals, not yours."

"I suppose that's so."

Orleneff stopped and stared at him, struck by the new idea.

"She'll let you do it," he agreed. "And Atkinson will repay the loan. As you say, it's really her affair, though it would certainly be mine if I had any money even to start it. I'll tell her what you say."

"Thanks. I think she understands that I'll take charge, if she'll let me."

"I suppose I ought to thank you for these coals of fire," Orleneff muttered restively. "We've certainly put you through plenty."

"Forget it for the time. Later we'll find a way of straightening things out. I have an idea that we'll get together in the end, whatever your sister decides."

They had drifted toward the fire, but both were still standing. Orleneff gave Pomeroy a long look, and as he looked into the other young man's steady brown eyes his own expression of desperation softened. He held out his hand. Pomeroy took it, gave it a friendly grip, and dropped it.

"Is ten o'clock all right?" he asked.

"Yes. Thanks."

Orleneff left without more words and Pomeroy ran downstairs and helped Grateful to get the wood up to the various rooms. He also assisted the man with the remaining trays. All breakfasts were served in rooms, it now appeared, even when there wasn't much breakfast to serve. He was glad this morning's breakfast and all the recent meals had been ample. On the previous day Andy had consented to part with more of his stores, including some pork and beans, prunes, and cornmeal. Grateful had made his hot muffins and Pomeroy, by that time hungry enough to enjoy them, had been sure that subconsciously they would sustain the others. As the human thought crossed his mind he reflected on the creatures of habit human beings are and their dependence on material comforts. He did not let his thoughts dwell on the continuation of the storm, or on Andy's foreboding about supplies. He was bracing himself for the hard duty to come.

It was not as hard as he had feared it would be. The women had said their farewells, and when he, and Grateful, and Andy had reached the upper hall with their gruesome boxes only Orleneff was there to lead them to the room where the Norrikoffs slept their last sleep together. Pomeroy caught his breath as he entered the big bedroom and saw the two figures on the twin beds, lying on their sides and facing each other. Some one, Irma and Boris, Pomeroy learned afterwards, with Grateful's help, had struggled through the storm and brought in branches of pine, and spruce, and hemlock sprays, and the silent figures were walled around with fragrant greens.

The four men, Boris doing his full share now, moved as silently as they could, knowing that the women were in the next room. At the head of each bed was a Russian ikon, and on each of the handsome and surprisingly young looking faces, from which death had already wiped off life's tragic etchings, there was a look of great peace. The general was dressed in his uniform.

"It was the only thing he had except the one suit he had been wearing," Orleneff said bitterly, "so we put him into it. It was laid away in moth balls. He felt he had to keep it, because the hotel people always made him wear it when he had a job as doorman."

Pomeroy got the full effect of that. In an instant of poignant understanding he shared the emotions of the Russian officer as he put on his uniform and went to hotel entrances to summon chauffeurs and direct drivers of taxicabs. His throat swelled.

He stood for a moment looking down at the dead officer and his dead wife. Zinaida Norrikoff had not been as beautiful as her sister in life, but she was hauntingly lovely in death. It was many years before Bruce lost the vision of her exquisite face, floating before him at unexpected times and places. She had a look of Irma, too. He felt when he raised her that her dead body was the most precious burden he had ever held in his arms.

Beauty Answers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

JULIE: THERE ARE HENNA rinses on the market, but with your dark hair and olive skin I don't recommend them. Instead, why don't you use the blue rinses to bring out the dark richness of your hair? It's a better contrast with your olive skin.

J. J.: YOU MUST BE USING THE eyelash curler with too much force. It's the only reason I can give for your lashes breaking off. Properly used, the curlers should not ruin the lashes. Remedy the damage with nightly applications of vaseline.

When at Market Give Rigid Test to Vegetables

"Entertaining with Cheese," a booklet containing 10 recipes for informal luncheon dishes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 2 cents. By mail, 3 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Yesterday we ran quite off the bottom of our allotted column before we were half through talking reforms for this business of homemaking. Because of this the job of "bringing home the bacon" and the various other dinner items was a point we missed. So, while we're still in the first of the year mood, how's about a thought concerning the garnering of such items as poultry, eggs, fresh fruits, and vegetables? That should do as a starter. Then later we can take on meats and more dairy products.

So here's "a word to the wives" and bachelorettes about stretching pennies when we go fruit and vegetable shopping. In general, make your own selection of perishable foods. Don't phone unless you have a jewel of a grocer with a profound appreciation of what you appreciate. Unless you have a cool, dark storage space, buy in small quantities. And did you ever think that, when you handle fruits and vegetables unnecessarily, you are running up your own bills? The grocer, to cover the cost of spoilage thus caused, will pass it on to you by adding pennies to the price. Also, buy by weight, not measure, when it's possible. A losely packed quart and a firmly packed one often go for the same price.

Then here's an interesting point. Wholesale merchants say the price of fresh vegetables in the winter would be much less if consumers wouldn't so often demand the best, but would learn to use the quality appropriate to their purpose. Also, if we could once convince our grocers that we will buy vegetables as readily without their tops, which, after all, are mainly waste, shipping costs and market prices would come downward several pegs.

For instance, when you can buy topless carrots by the pound instead of topped ones by the bunch, do so. They're much cheaper and just as good if the use is to be for soups or stews. Never get flabby or shriveled ones.

Snap beans are best when the seeds are most immature. Snap one to be sure that it pops apart easily. Onions are best avoided which have splits, double necks, or sprouts. The best lettuce comes in hard, crisp heads. Be on guard against lettuce stems, with their loose outer leaves and a bulge coming out of the top. Spinach is to be looked at askance if it has coarse yellow leaves, coarse or seed stems. Cabbage also demands heavy, solid heads. Be sure the outer leaves aren't separated on the stem. Or, if it's cauliflower, don't choose yours with the matter of size in mind. The little fellows are as mature as the big ones. Smudges and speckles may point to plant lice. The color should be creamy white, and the flowers well clustered together. Watch out for potatoes with green "sunburn" on their faces. They're distressingly likely to be bitter.

Among the fruits the apples best for baking are the greenings, Northern Spys, Baldwins, and Rome Beauties. The ones good for eating include Winesaps, Jonathans, Baldwins, Rome Beauties, Golden Russets, Pippins, McIntosts, Delicious, and Spitzenbergs. Best buy them by the pound and watch out for the brown tinted spaces known as "scald." And bananas. The main reason we always advise buying them quite ripe (skins already flecked with brown) is because at his point most of the starch has been converted into sugar. Never store them in the refrigerator. They'll repay you by spoiling.

Then maybe you've wondered about grapefruit. That russet or brownish color which is often present on bargain price oranges is nothing to worry about. The color absolutely does not affect the flavor. Oranges and grapefruits both sell according to size. A 176 is a medium sized orange with 176 to the box. It's most economical for most uses, although the 200, or smaller size, gives us the most juice for our money.

Eggs are another need for which it's a veritable puzzle at times to shop. If and when eggs are all graded and labeled under the direction of the government, we'll be saving many pennies, for we may then buy first or second grades for table use and third or fourth grades for cooking. And the more often that we insist that our eggs be thus graded the sooner will that grocer of ours find that it's worth his while to secure them that way. And, lastly, don't let any one tell you that brown eggs are better than white eggs or vice versa. It's all a matter of what meets the eye. The egg itself is as good inside one color of shell as another.

Finally, since this month roasting turkeys and chickens are at their best and at gloriously low prices, here is a good word for all of them who have come alive through the perils of Thanksgiving and Christmas. Government graded fowls are naturally the safest and most dependable. But if you aren't yet able to secure these remember that, if you want a young bird, expect him to have a flexible tip to his breast bone, smooth, soft feet and skin, and sharp, short claws. As the bird grows older the breast bone tip becomes brittle and in the really old affair it becomes hard and rough. The claws lengthen and become less sharp with age, and the skin becomes tough and coarse. Hairs grow longer as the bird ages.

Polo Program for Saturdays Is Announced

Chicago Also Hopes to Hold National Tourney.

numerous others whose names are identified with the sport world.

The Woman's Athletic club is welcoming the new year by making many plans for its members' pleasure and entertainment. Inaugurating these plans is the morning of chamber music Thursday when the members will gather to hear the Russian trio —Nina Mesirow-Minehin at the piano, Michel Wilkomorski at the violin, and Oscar Eller at the violin-cello—which has excited so much favorable comment.

On the 19th Walter B. Pitkin, the author of "Life Begins at Forty," will lecture, and on Feb. 1 the club will present the duettists Harry A. Overstreet and Bonaree Wilkinson Overstreet.

Luncheon Today for 2 Debutantes.

A dozen and a half friends of Miss Josephine Templeton and Miss Marie Louise Gardner are meeting for luncheon today at the Woman's Athletic club at the party that Mrs. Edward L. Baker and Mrs. Edgar Stanton Jr., her daughter, are giving for the two buds.

Mrs. Mason Phelps is giving a small dinner at the Casino club tonight for those two much-fêted debutantes, Miss Patsy Keith and Miss Nancy Morse. About twenty young people have been invited. Mrs. Phelps is taking her guests to the theater following the dinner.

The William H. Lyons are giving a dinner and dancing and winter sports party for their daughter, Miss Mary Lyon, tonight at the Indian Hill club.

It is appropriate that the Kaskaskia chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution should turn their board meeting today into a luncheon and linen shower for Miss Priscilla Kellogg, for Miss Kellogg met her fiancé, Maj. Stuart Randall Carswell, while she was a page at the annual convention of the D. A. R. in Washington.

The party is to be at the home of Mrs. John Dille in Evanston. Miss Kellogg has set Feb. 24 as the date for her marriage to Maj. Carswell.

Arts Club Tea to Open Exhibit.

At a tea today from 4 until 6 o'clock the Arts club is opening an exhibit of paintings by Edward Hopper and Georges Rouault. Mrs. Potter Palmer is chairman of the tea committee. Pouring will be Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Vaughan Spaulding, Mrs. Silas Strawn, Mrs. Gabriel F. Slaughter, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Walter Ayer, Mrs. Gordon Gale, Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell, Mrs. Boyd Hill, Mrs. William Dean, and Mrs. Frances Barothy.

The ballroom of the Drake hotel will be the scene of an interesting function this afternoon when the Friends of Opera present Mme. Edith Mason in recital.

Mrs. Charles Garfield King's neatly engraved "reminder" cards were in the week-end mail to recall the tea Mrs. King is having at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon for the Clarence Mitchells at her home at 1530 State parkway.

Mr. Mitchell . . . the Kings' son-in-law . . . is opening an exhibition of his pictorial studies next Tuesday in the Lord Nelson room of the Drake to continue through Jan. 13. At the preview on Monday between 4 and 6 in the afternoon one dollar will be charged, the proceeds going to the city's charities.

Direct from Government house in Canada where they have been visiting Lord Bessborough, Henry Channon and his bride of only a few months, Lady Honor Channon are arriving in Chicago this morning. There are any number of persons here anxiously awaiting their coming for they are interested not only in meeting Lady Honor but also in seeing what has happened to "Chips" since they knew him in his less glamorous days.

It goes without saying therefore that only a small portion of their week here will be devoted to Mr. Chanon's father, Harry Channon, and his mother, Mrs. Westover Channon. The English visitors are to stay at the Drake. Before returning to their home in London they will go to Palm Beach and Nassau to visit the duke of Sutherland.

Dering Expedition Will Sail Jan. 10.

The Jackson K. Dering expedition to Mexico will sail on Jan. 10 from New York and the thirty available berths are nearly all filled. Every member of the party has his special work to do, which explains why Howard C. Kresge of Detroit will act as head of the hunting expeditions with Mr. Dering, and why William T. Barbour, also of Detroit, will keep the ship's log.

Other passengers include Mansfield Schmidt, son of Dr. Louis Schmidt of Bellevue place, Mrs. Thomas C. White of Kenilworth and her attractive daughter, Miss Loretta White; Clinton Woodfield Kneessi of New York and Washington, and Mrs. Dering Jr.

A few days out of New York the ship, which is the former Intrepid remodeled into a steam as well as sailing vessel, will stop in Florida and then carry on across the Caribbean sea to the Dering estate "Los Moohis" in Sinaloa which will be the expedition's headquarters for the next three or four months.

Rex Bensons Go South Today.

Maj. and Mrs. Rex Benson who have been in Lake Forest several days visiting Mrs. Benson's parents, the Volney Fosters, are leaving today for the south. They are going to Palm Beach for a while before sailing back to their home in England.

The latest reports about Mr. Foster are that he is convalescing from the injuries he received in an automobile accident several weeks ago.

Miss Jean O'Brien, the popular daughter of the Howard Vincent O'Briens, left last night to spend ten days in the east. She will stay with friends of her mother's, the Richard Myers, in Mount Kisco, N. Y. She is to serve as bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Ann Ward, daughter of Mrs. Hugh Gayne of New Haven, to Craig W. Whitney, son of the Arthur E. Whitneys of Garden City, L. I., which will take place Saturday in New Haven.

Miss O'Brien and Miss Ward saw a good bit of each other last winter in Paris, for Mrs. Gayne has a place near the French capital and Miss O'Brien was "finishing" in that city.

Alexis Beaufort returned to Yale yesterday after spending the holidays with his mother and stepfather, Maj. and Mrs. Victor A. Beaufort, at the Ambassador East. The Beauforts are going to their home in Thomasville some time after the end of two weeks, and perhaps they will come back to Chicago for Easter as they usually do.

Mrs. William Bush to Return This Month.

The middle of the month will mark the arrival home of Mrs. William H. Bush and her two daughters, Miss Caroline and Miss Emeline Bush, who have been spending the last few months in China.

Miss Barbara Shaffer is topping off a debutante season by departing for Florida with her father, Charles B. Shaffer, on Saturday. They are going to their home in St. Petersburg, where they will join Mrs. Shaffer, who is motoring down a day or two earlier. They will be in Florida until March. Dale Shaffer is returning to his studies at the Lake Forest academy early this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Embree are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter on Dec. 28 at the Lying-In hospital. The baby has been named Clare Lury and is a granddaughter of Edwin R. Embree and of Mayor Lury of Tokio, Japan.

Because a part of the Children's Memorial hospital is in quarantine for scarlet fever the Sunbeam league has had to postpone the party it was to have had this afternoon in celebration of the opening of its new kindergarten at the hospital. This makes the eighth kindergarten the league has opened in various hospitals and charity institutions.

Reception Today for Opera Stars.

The Junior Friends of Art are giving a reception for stars of the Chicago Grand Opera company this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Blackstone. Paul Longone, general director, will be one of the guests and a musical program will be given by three of the artists, Miss Marion Claire, soprano; Miss Mildred Gerber, coloratura soprano, and Oscar Colcaire, tenor.

Mrs. Charles A. Winsted is to read a paper and M. Paul Leyssac, a member of Eva Le Gallienne's company, will present an hour of musical recitations at the program tea Le Cercle Français is to have this afternoon at the Fine Arts building. Mrs. Moise Dreyfus and Miss Mary West will preside at the tea table.

Invitations have been issued by the officers and ladies of the Cook county chapter of the Organized Reserves for a reception and dance for Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Preston Brown next Saturday evening at the Army and Navy club in the Lake Shore Athletic Club building. Gen. Brown succeeded Gen. Parker in command of the Sixth corps area.

Paris Names Three Piece Tweed Suits as the Last Word in Travel Ensembles

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Whether going or coming, so long as you're on the move, Paris styles propose that you get around in nice, rough looking tweeds, worked up into a suit and swagger coat or swashbuckling cape. American importers fell for these tweed travel ensembles with a weather eye on Palm Beach-bound clients. The smartest Parisiennes are ordering 'em to go on the midwinter cruises that everybody takes nowadays, sandwiched in between the winter sports season in the Austrian Tyrol and the sun cure in the south.

One of the most successful of these tweed traveling outfits is the one in bold black and white tweed, shown in our sketch. Quite good for shopping in town, too, this ensemble. Lucile Paray designed it with her mind on the gentle season of spring, 1934. The skirt is cut on the bias, with seams at the center, front and back. The jacket has no sleeves, but has a hip length cape around the back and over the arms, divided into sections with plain white wool piping. It buttons at the neck and is held at the waistline by a crushed patent leather belt, having a silver buckle.

Lucile Paray makes a short sleeved bodice of white pique to go with it. This blouse has a white pique scarf collar and buttons on three silver buttons in front.

Even Healthy Children Need Cod Liver Oil

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Do you think of cod liver oil as medicine?

Those who are fighting malnutrition in children are urging us not to.

In a recent interview Miss Sara Place, R. N., superintendent of the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago said:

"Cod liver oil is not a medicine, but a food. It is our chief weapon against the effects of malnutrition." I wish we could print those two words in red ink instead of in mild italics.

"When diets began to get scanty and when the relief rations were not yet sufficient, we gave more and more cod liver oil to the children," said Miss Place.

She gave the society's cod liver oil bill as a brief and graphic illustration. It reads like this:

|---|---|
| In 1929, before the depression, bill for cod liver oil was | $ 1,500 |
| In 1931 it was | 13,307 |
| In 1932, when relief diet improved, it dropped to | 7,036 |

In New York state is sounded a similar warning. Dr. Thomas Parran Jr., state commissioner of health, requests that milk and cod liver oil be added to the diet of all children that are on the relief rolls. He states that one-fifth of all the children under 16 in New York state are receiving aid and asks the welfare commissioners to provide adequate milk and cod liver oil during the six months' cold period —this to apply to all children under 3, and to any others who are malnourished or under weight.

Even if your children are, happily, neither undernourished nor under weight, cod liver oil has its place in their diet. In those winter months when the sun, no matter how brightly it is shining, does not give them the ultra violet rays they need, cod liver oil can supply that lack. It is a preventive of the first order, especially against colds.

Individuality Is Keynote of Quilt in Applique Style

Adam and Eve.

BY NANCY CABOT.

There is considerable mystery surrounding the origin of this intriguing quilt block. It undoubtedly is an old design, as the name itself might suggest. Appliqué quilts always show the individuality and vivid imaginations of their creators, especially in the origination of designs. The Adam and Eve block is an outstanding example of this. Made with light and dark red, dark green, and soft yellow, plus an artistic arrangement of blocks, the design is one of the rare beauties of the quilt world.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, the Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

Fabrics Once Dull Now Used in Chic Frocks

Flannels, Woolens Good with Dark Coats.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Flannels and woolens! . . . Some of the smarest things you find are made of these two formerly rather dull materials. The slimmest daytime dresses made with new sleeves, crisply cut shoulders, and prim little ascot collars and high necklines comes in some luscious new pastel shades and some eye-filling bright tones are perfect for contrast under dark wool winter coats as well as fur coats that have to be worn till the weather breaks. Lovely wood violet frocks of amazingly soft semi-fuzzy wool are new, with some almost edible shades of apricot and coral, mint green, and the always effective old gold colors.

Down among the sweaters are some stunning new striped arrivals that blaze in a lot of glory with red, black, and green get togethers and some orange, green, and brown combines that will do excellent duty as a warm and cozy blouse as well as fashionable top contrast for dark skirts and suits. These new giddy striped sweater blouses are fastened down the front with ties of the same striped knit wool and are particularly good finds for the gal that doesn't care for casual, and sometimes too trying, slip-overs of the same sports models.

Have you seen the clever new wool fabric gloves . . . knockout looking smoothies that fit superlatively? . . . There must be magic to this wool stuff, for these smart woollies fit almost as slick as kidskin, besides being the warmest things you can pull on your fingers and being made with hand sewn seams with contrasting thread. They are available in rust, dark and light beige, brown, dark bottle green, and navy and black. . . . The black numbers, stitched or sewn with white, are the best looking street and day-time gloves that can be found. The price tags will make you gasp!

Mary Pickford Will Return to Stage Friday

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Mary Pickford will return to the footlights next Friday afternoon as the feature of the program of stage entertainment at the Chicago theater. She will appear in a condensed version of "The Church Mouse," a comedy adapted from the Hungarian which Ruth Gordon acted in New York two seasons ago and which was given in Chicago later with Louise Groody as the central character.

Miss Pickford has not appeared on the stage since 1913, when she was the star of "The Good Little Devil" under the management of David Belasco. That play, written by Maurice Rostand, son of the author of "Cyrano de Bergerac," contained several other young actresses who have had brilliant careers, among them Patricia Collinge and Wilda Bennett.

Miss Pickford's theatrical record, starting from her debut at the age of 5, also includes: "The Silver King," "The Little Red School House," "The Fatal Wedding," "Uncle Tom's Cabin" [as Eva], "East Lynne," "Edmund Burke" [with Chauncey Olcott], and "The Warrens of Virginia," a Belasco production which marked her first appearance in New York.

"The Curtain Rises," announced for a première at the Cort theater next Sunday night with Louise Groody as heroine, is a comedy by Benjamin M. Kaye. It was staged in New York last October and had a run of sixty performances. The Chicago production will be under the auspices of Messrs. Wee and Leventhal, who were active on Broadway last season as managers of revived hits at popular prices.

Romance Safest Bet for Happy Marital Union

BY DORIS BLAKE.

It reads like fiction, but it's true.

The girl is not quite 17, the young man, 23. She's known him some eight months. He asked her to marry him before four months had passed. She didn't want to marry any one, being so young. She didn't wish to marry that particular boy, because she did not care enough for him. Then the fiction element developed. The chap's grandfather died and left him a half million dollars, but on one condition, that he marry before six months were up. Otherwise the money would go to charity. Again, he proposed to the girl. She, even as you and I, thought the fortune tale pure fiction, fabricated to press her into marriage. But legal investigation proved it true.

The expiration date is approaching. Twice a day the young man calls. She puts him off, begging a little more time in which to answer.

"I don't love him. I'm sure I will never learn to love him. But that half million is so tempting that at times I feel like telling him I'll do it, and then I feel I can't. I wish you'd tell me what to do. I'll say again I do not love him. In fact, I like him less every time I see him. People tell me I'd be a fool to pass up a chance that probably wouldn't come again in several lifetimes. My parents say, 'Do what will make you happy.'

"DISTRACTED."

What would you do, reader?

What would you want your girl of not quite seventeen to do?

Nice parents. Distracted has, not to urge her into a loveless match. We congratulate her on possessing them. No talk here from either girl or parent about marrying the money and living on alimony as soon as possible, a procedure that would appeal only to the hardboiled and ruthless.

We argue that a half million dollars is a lot of money, but not by many more half millions would it compensate for a loveless marriage. It's a trite thing to say, to be sure. Perhaps you say it's sentimental and romantic to put love ahead of money. But aren't the papers full of divorces, proving that money alone is not enough?

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem, which has ONLY ONE POSSIBLE SOLUTION, has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

MURDER IN SUSSEX.

In the glare of electric torches, while Prof. Fordney stood silently by, officers of the Sussex constabulary were painstakingly making plaster casts of the set of footprints made in the muddy ground—they were obviously not those of the dead man lying nearby. They led from a concrete road 50 yards distant and back to it. The corpse had been shot twice through the head, apparently with a revolver.

Three days later Officer Theodore Barrington, in charge of the case, told Fordney that several reliable witnesses had seen one Oscar Wittling leave the road at the point where the footprints in question began and start in the direction of where the body was found at about the time of the murder. The police learned that Wittling and the dead man had been members of rival blackmailing gangs and as the size of his shoes corresponded exactly with the plaster of Paris casts made, they had arrested him on a charge of murder.

"We may not be as fast in uncovering evidence as they are in the states," the English officer told him, "but we are, if I say so myself, thorough."

"Of that there is absolutely no question," Fordney agreed. "Tell me, though, have you definitely identified the dead man as Horace Bone?"

"Yes, we have."

"He had nothing in his pockets when discovered?" queried Fordney.

"Not a thing. Why?" Barrington looked puzzled.

The criminologist didn't answer the question but said, "I'm really surprised at you, Theodore. Perhaps you have the murderer but you've made one serious mistake."

WHY DID HE SAY SO?

[See solution on page 27.]

Clothes May Make the Miss Shy at Parties

Wearing New Frock First at Home Insures Poise.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Frequently I receive queries about getting rid of self-consciousness at parties. Bright Eyes says that when she goes to a party, she feels all new dress, new shoes, and conscious.

Haven't we all experienced that feeling at some time, the dressed-up feeling that interferes with one's good time? Perhaps it's wishing one had worn the other dress, or the other shoes. Anyway, it is concentration on self and too much of it.

One of our famous beauties, I recall, advised never to wear a new frock to a party for the first time, that one has to become familiar with it before taking it out, in order to forget it. But wouldn't that be spoiling a lot of fun for a good many whose idea of a party is a new dress? However, if one is of the self-conscious type she'd better try out her new frock around the house an evening or two until the new feel of it has faded out of her consciousness. If the dress is longer or "different" better follow this advice. The same goes for shoes. They should be worn around until the newness is lifted, if one is given to feeling aware of feet in new shoes.

But more than dress and shoes, I think, is it necessary to try out a new coiffure before appearing publicly in it, that is, if it is startlingly new in design. Otherwise you may catch a glimpse of this new girl in a mirror and suddenly decide she is not to your liking. Too, coming fresh from a salon all waved and curled, and going direct to a party, you look all coiffed for the evening, sort of set and stilted. Get the hair dressed a day or two before, let the set wave assume a more natural line and you're more likely not to fuss and fidget with the hair.

These are physical precautions you may take to avoid self-consciousness. Otherwise, you must steel yourself to forcing that timid You into the background. With all the charming boys and girls around, one should be able to focus attention on some of these and be preparing or expressing charming compliments.

Castle Salem School Dissolved; Young Nazi Use Place for Training

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 1.—The Castle Salem school near the Lake of Constance, founded by Prince Max von Baden, the last chancellor of the empire, to provide German youth with a new, more liberal and practical education, has been dissolved. Quite a number of young American boys went to this school, where they had to study their books, but where they also had to get acquainted with horses, cows, and the duties of young farmhands—thus getting a real practical knowledge of life.

New Salem resounds to the military tread of young Nazi students, who line up for semi-military exercises in front of the castle and devote their time and energy to the science of becoming "leaders of labor service units." Their school was inaugurated recently with flag parades and speeches.

Dr. Stellrecht, chief of the training division of "Hitler youth," told the students they were expected to devote themselves entirely to the labor service movement and help "create the truly revolutionary form of youth service. Education through self-help is to be one of the mottoes of German youth."

CHICAGO TEAM TAKES ITS FIRST HOME DEFEAT

16,000 See Blair Get Winning Point.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks last night suffered their first defeat of the season on their home ice, but it took the scoringest team the National league ever has produced to turn the trick—the Toronto Maple Leafs—and they did it by the very respectable score of 2 to 1. Almost 16,000 fans were present to see the sad but thrilling contest.

JOHNNY GOTTSELIG

All the tabulating business was transacted in the first half of the second period and the Hawks had the joyous though inadequate experience of scoring the first goal. It was a great solo effort by the team's leading scorer, Johnny Gottselig, who whizzed home the puck just as he entered a nose dive which carried him to the boards back of the cage.

The Hawk lead was great fun while it lasted but it lasted less than three minutes. Buzz Boll tied it up on assists by Conacher and Primeau. This goal was a rather quiet one and did not approach the verve with which the league leaders scored the winning goal in 9:50.

Blair Shows Great Speed.

The winner was the work of Andy Blair, abetted by Ken Doraty and Hal Cotton, the result of a carefully planned maneuver which revealed Blair performing at great speed.

Despite the disappointing outcome of the Hawks' valiant efforts to keep their home slate unbroken the Chicagoans retained their leadership of the United States division of the league and also continued in second place in the league as an entity.

The Hawks now have lost seven games, two of them to Toronto, the earlier setback at the hands of the Leafs having been 1 to 0 in Toronto on Dec. 9.

The best chance developed by either side during the first period came in the twelfth minute. On this occasion Conacher, Gottselig, Leswick, and Couture were shoving the puck hither and thither in the Leaf defense zone.

Call On Allah.

A carom out of a melée shot the puck free about 18 feet out from the cage and somewhat to Hainsworth's left. Couture swooped on the rubber, fumbled momentarily, then picked it up for a shot not far from Hainsworth's toes. There was nothing for the Leaf goalie to do except trust to Allah. And Allah was good to Toronto, for the blast hit the goalie's boot right in the middle for a big thrill but no count.

Two minutes later March broke through on a solo dash and also worked from a few inches off Hainsworth's corns. Again Goalie George's prayer was answered. During the period Gardiner was called upon to make eight stops, three of them tough, while Hainsworth stopped 11, five of which were of the high pressure variety.

Picks Up Puck On Blue Line.

The sterling effort through which Gottselig registered the first tally of the night came in 2:00 of the second period. Johnny picked up the puck on the Toronto blue line on his extreme left ice, hugged the boards while gathering momentum, then went straight for the cage. His shot tangled in the nets and as it did so Gottselig took a bellybuster past the cage and skidded into the end boards. It seemed for a time he had been hurt, and Manager Gorman forthwith ordered him off the ice. He wasn't injured, however, and was ready to

ANDERSON SIGNS NORTH CAROLINA STATE CONTRACT

Named Football Coach for Three Years.

Anderson came to terms with T. S. Johnson, acting chairman of state's athletic council, in Washington today.

The announcement, made here tonight by Dr. R. R. Sermon, state's athletic director, merely said the contract was for three years. It did not go into details of the agreement or the question of assistant coaches. Frank Reese, a former Notre Dame player, has been backfield coach for three seasons.

Will Report Jan. 15.

Anderson is expected to report in time for the winter practice which will begin Jan. 15.

He will succeed John P. Smith, also a Notre Dame product, whose contract was not renewed after state's disastrous season last year. The Wolfpack won only one game but played ties with Florida, Davidson, and Wake Forest.

Anderson learned football under the late Knute Rockne. He was a regular guard on the Notre Dame elevens of 1919, 1920 and 1921. After serving as line coach under Rockne he became head coach at St. Louis university, but was recalled to his alma mater as assistant to Rockne in 1930.

After Rockne's tragic death in March, 1931, Anderson was elevated to the position of head coach. His teams lost two games in 1931, two in 1932 and five in 1933. The last season, Notre Dame's most unsuccessful, was climaxed with a brilliant victory over the Army.

The signing of Anderson will bring to North Carolina another nationally known coach. Wallace Wade, who won fame with his Alabama elevens, is head coach of football at Duke university in Durham, about 28 miles from Raleigh. Duke won the 1933 southern conference title.

Hold Secret Session.

The athletic council, it was learned, held a secret session here yesterday at Dr. Sermon's home when it was agreed to accept Anderson's offer.

The former Notre Dame coach conferred with the council when it met here Dec. 20 to consider a successor to Smith, and following that meeting it was reported Anderson was the No. 1 man.

With the signing of Anderson, it appeared that state college was apparently destined to go in for football on a big scale. The school is making preparations to increase the capacity of its stadium to 20,000. An addition was constructed last year boosting the number of seats to around 12,000.

BATTAGLIA WINS; SLAUGHTER DEALS LOW BLOW IN 2D

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 1.—A foul punch ended the Frank Battaglia-Sammy [Kid] Slaughter boxing contest five minutes after it started here today.

Slaughter, Negro middleweight, swung the low blow early in the second round and thus brought to a premature conclusion what was to have been a ten round bout, which 4,500 fans—the largest fistic turnout here in months—had paid $4,128 to watch. It was to have been the feature attraction on the Milwaukee Boxing club's holiday card in the Auditorium.

Slaughter's damaging smash, which traveled only a few inches and which only a few saw, was a right-hander. It resulted in his immediate suspension and an order from Al Goetter, secretary of the state athletic commission, that his purse be withheld. The boys were just getting warmed up when there was a clinch, a smack to the groin and Battaglia lay on the floor, apparently suffering severe pain.

Hitler Spoils a Holiday for the Kingfish

BY FRENCH LANE.

Kingfish Levinsky, our most noted fighter, fish peddler and citizen from Maxwell street out in the heart of the Ghetto, is at grips with Adolf Hitler, the German chancellor.

Having just pounded the tar out of Don McCorkindale who sports the silks of Johnny Bull, the Kingfish feels that he is fully qualified to enter into these international entanglements.

He had put in a rather easy New Year's day of it lounging around in his silk robe, flaming red pajamas and pink bed room slippers and was in rare good humor early last night. It was open house at the King's palace and one group after another of the King's admirers called around to wish him a "Happy New Year."

King Is Feeling Swell.

For the edification of each group of callers the King assumed a good old "Yours truly John L. Sullivan" pose and then whizzed a punch which traveled from his heels to the glistening chandelier near the ceiling.

"Wait until that one connects with Schmeling," was the Kingfish's New Year's banter to all his holiday well wishers.

Just about the time he was winding up the good old right for the 100th time and was ready to let it sail for an imaginary Schmeling chin the phone rang.

The Bad News!

"Somebody else wants to wish me a Happy New Year" said the Kingfish as he grabbed for the receiver.

It wasn't a New Year's greeting at all. Nate Lewis was on the other end of the line and was telling the Kingfish that his fight scheduled with Schmeling for the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 16 was off.

"Why?" screamed the Kingfish.

"Because Hitler won't stand for it," Lewis informed him.

The Kingfish belted the telephone with his trusty right and the conversation ended.

Who's This Guy Hitler?

To the callers who dropped around a little later the Kingfish dejectedly did some talking.

"Say I never was so sore at missing a fight date in my life. Here they come along and cut me out simply because I'm a Jewish boy.

"And say, wasn't there a lot of Jewish boys in the German army and wasn't there quite a few Jewish fellows who wrote some of those big thick books for the Germans and gave them the big high brow tone?

"What's all this Nordic stuff? It's the best man win when I get out there in the middle of the ring. Somebody's going to fall and I don't intend that it shall be the good old Kingfish."

He was speaking to your correspondent by this time because your correspondent was about the only per-

WEST CONQUERS EAST IN BATTLE ON COAST, 12-0

30,000 Sit in Drizzle to Watch Game.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Led by a crashing back field star, George Sauer of the University of Nebraska, West conquered East, 12-0, today in the football game played here annually for charity.

Thirty thousand fans, who braved intermittent rains, saw Sauer give as brilliant a performance as has been witnessed in the nine East-West games that have been played to date.

From the time he crashed over for the two touchdowns in the opening period until he intercepted a pass in the closing minutes of play to check a final eastern bid, the Nebraskan gave a demonstration of smart, fast football. He was the sparkplug of the western attack and his defensive play left nothing to be desired.

West Recovers Fumble.

The West snatched at a break to make its first score. The easterners were backed up on their own nine yard line in possession of the ball. Charley Soleau of Colgate, quarterback, fumbled the ball and Mike Mikulak of Oregon, full back, recovered it on the sixteen yard line.

From there Sarboe of Washington State, quarter back, ripped off four yards and then Sauer took up the burden. On his fourth run with the ball, the Nebraskan crashed over from the three yard line.

A short time later the West put the ball into play on the East's 46 yard line. Sarboe picked up a yard and then passed to Fred Canrinus, end, of St. Mary's, for a seventeen yard gain.

Smith Misses Kick.

Bill Smith, end, Washington, failed at both attempts for the extra point. One of his place kicks was wide and the other was blocked.

Beginning with the second period, the eastern team opened an attack that had their western rivals on the defense most of the time until the end of the game.

Three times the East, coached by Andy Kerr of Colgate, and Dick Hanley of Northwestern, put on spectacular drives only to be stopped close to the goal.

In the third period the visiting stars moved the ball down the field for 64 yards to reach the West's seven yard line. The ball was lost on an intercepted pass, Cuppoletti, guard, Oregon, catching a toss by Lukats, full back, Notre Dame, on the twelve yard line.

Shortly afterward the West maneuvered into position to try a place kick, after having its punt partly blocked. Lukats had his hands on the ball, but could not hang onto it and Fred Canrinus, end, St. Mary's, recovered for the West on the East's 31.

Place Kick Fails.

The Westerners drove down to the seven yard line, then lost two. From this point, Carl Jorgensen, tackle, St. Mary's, place kicked but the ball was to far to the side.

Duquesne Rolls Up 33 to 7 Score on Miami Team

Miami, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—A smart Duquesne university team today soundly whipped the University of Miami Hurricanes, 33 to 7, in their New Year's day game before 5,000 persons. The Dukes scored almost at will in the final quarter.

Held scoreless for the opening periods, the Pittsburghers opened up a sensational passing attack that swamped the Miamians. Miami, hitherto undefeated this season, was completely outclassed by the brilliant aerial campaign.

POSTPONE SPEED SKATING RACES AT NEWBURGH

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Rising temperatures, which melted the ice on the Downing park lake today forced the postponement of the middle Atlantic speed skating championship until Feb. 11-12.

The governing board, which approved the change of dates, also granted permission to Herb Taylor of New York to accept the invitation of the Oslo Skating club to compete in the international title events at Oslo Jan. 26-29. The approval was contingent on the consent of the Amateur Skating union, the officials of which will be polled. Eddie Schroeder of Chicago also may accompany Taylor.

ONLY 22,000 AT PASADENA ROSE BOWL BATTLE

Barabas Goes Over for Lions.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 1.—A Columbia team that was outgained both in number of downs and yardage but which cashed in on superior alertness and timely punch, wallowed to a 7 to 0 victory over Stanford while 22,000 rain soaked fans shivered in the Rose Bowl here this afternoon.

LOU LITTLE.

A stalwart defense that balked Stanford in three excursions into the easterners' 10 yard zone, after sending 190 pound Alfred Barabas into the Rose Bowl hall of fame with a touchdown in the second period, enabled the Lions to nurse their 7 point margin past every threat.

Barabas and Cliff Montgomery, 165 pound captain and spark plug of the victors, engineered the scoring coup which put the game on ice, between rain gusts midway of the second period. Columbia had hammered at Stanford's threshold twice in the first quarter, losing the ball on the 12 yard line on Barabas' fumble and on the 14 yard line when it squirted away from Montgomery.

Montgomery Leads Drive.

Columbia came sliding and caroming back into the coast team's danger territory in the second period when Montgomery returned a punt 7 yards to Stanford's 46 yard stripe.

An offside penalty gave Columbia 5 more and then Montgomery arched a beautiful pass to McDowell, who fell down with it on the 17 yard line for a 24 yard gain. Barabas fumbled a slippery pass from center and lost a yard, but recovered his own fumble. On the next play this crashing player sprang loose on a scoring power play of 18 yards, with Brominski, Nevel and Pinckney clearing Stanford's right tackle and end out of the play.

Montgomery blocked out a Stanford half back who circled around to chase Barabas toward the sideline, and the Columbia half back loped the last ten yards into the end zone untouched and unmolested. Then just to show he could do more things with his hoof —mud or cloudburst notwithstanding —Barabas casually place-kicked the extra point, and the game, in reality, was over.

Field Is Flooded.

The crowd arrived while a corps of workmen were engaged in the picturesque task of sweeping water off the middle of the field with ordinary kitchen brooms. Such activity had never been seen in the previous history of California's combination of climate and competition. Columbia brought two shivering lion cubs, one tethered at each end of the New York players' bench, and the sodden, tawny little mascots crawled under the legs of the players for warmth.

The bowl itself early became a sea of blue, green, red, and gold umbrellas as the rain, which had conveniently discontinued for 15 minutes while the two teams practiced, came pelting down with renewed vigor. Radio men and reporters who were unlucky enough to draw accommodations in the roofless upper tier of the press rows were a half drowned unit hovered under bunched umbrellas.

Grayson Is Stanford Star.

Columbias victory, long awaited by friends on non-California football prestige, was not accomplished without signal feats by the losers also. Stanford scored 250 yards on running plays and 24 from passes for a total of 274 yards from scrimmage. Columbia ran the ball for 72 yards gain and 24 yards on passes, a total of 96. Stanford made 15 first downs to Columbia's five. Grayson, the Stanford full back, ran the ball individually for 150 yards,

HUNT RACE CROWD WILL BUILD NEW CAROLINA TRACK

Hitchcock, Clark, Durant Lead Movement.

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—One more individual hunt racing circuit will be added to those already in the field when Aiken and Camden, two South Carolina sporting resorts, join forces in opening the season late next March.

Racing was revived in Camden a few years ago by Harry Kirkover and Ernest L. Woodward, two sportsmen from the Genesee valley, and the fine racing offered there will be further strengthened by the meeting which will be held in Aiken either the week before or after the running of the Carolina Cup in Camden.

When it was learned a few weeks ago that F. Ambrose Clark and Thomas W. Durant, master of the Smithtown hunt, had taken houses in Aiken for the winter, members of the hunt set who like to go racing looked for an announcement on this subject.

Hitchcock Donates Land.

It was not long until they heard that a steeplechase association had been formed and that Thomas Hitchcock had donated a piece of land on which a track, modeled after the United Hunts course near Roslyn, L. I., will be laid out.

Aiken is the rendezvous of the Long Island hunt set in the winter, and with so many stables of hunters wintering there and in nearby Camden one of the most successful meetings of the season may be expected. The persons who go to Aiken and Camden are racing enthusiasts and will spare neither effort nor expense to stage a meeting that not only will attract to the Carolinas the better horses but also hunting folks from Chicago and Boston.

The racing season in that section, as mapped out now, could consist of three meetings and the hunter trials at Camden. Under the direction of Messrs. Kirkover and Woodward, the hunter trials are held the day preceding Washington's birthday and an informal race meeting is run on the holiday itself. This is the first meeting of the year, and is supported generously by those who wish to give their horses a test for the more important events which follow.

Offer Cups and Purses.

Following the Washington's birthday meeting will come either the Camden meeting, which is built around the Carolina cup, or the Aiken races. These meetings will bring the southern season to an end, and horses and owners will move north for the spring meetings in Virginia, Maryland, and then Long Island.

With such men as Mr. Hitchcock, Skiddy Von Stade, Mr. Clark, Mr. Durant, Henry W. Bull, Algernon Craven and others, wintering in Aiken and available for assistance in directing the meeting, the success of the races is assured, even at this early date. There will be suitable cups offered and purses as well. The latter is an important point, for the cost of shipping horses these days runs high, and owners of large establishments, as well as those who race in a modest way, like to feel that they at least can make expenses if their horses finish in the money.

"Say, boy, I hate to miss this Schmeling fight worse than any in my career," he continued. "Please tell that Sigrid Schultz of yours over in Berlin that if Hitler will let Schmeling fight me I'll agree to meet him at Soldiers' field to a free gate. And also say that I'll take on Hitler the same night after I brush Schmeling out of the ring.

"The Nordics may be all right at that. I ain't got nothing against anybody.

Others Are Good, Too.

"There were a couple of pretty good other Jewish fighters, wasn't there, and I'm not including Benny Leonard. They tell me David was a right good lightweight when he knocked Goliath stiff. And, say, was that fellow Samson a heavyweight or was he a heavyweight?"

The Kingfish thus having relieved his feelings, asked your correspondent to feel his muscles.

"Say, boy, you will hear something more about this affair from the Kingfish, and I'll have my congressman here with me when I talk the next time," he concluded.

BOSS OF REDS IN PHILADELPHIA, SO RUMORS FLY

Philadelphia, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Arrival of Larry MacPhail, president of the Cincinnati Reds, in Philadelphia tonight caused increased rumors that Jimmy Wilson would be made manager of the Phillies Baseball club of the National league, supplanting Burt Shotton.

Such a transaction is expected to place MacPhail right in the center of the picture as reports persist Shotton will go to the Reds as manager.

MacPhail had nothing to say regarding his visit while Gerry Nugent president of the Phillies, insisted "it's all news to me."

"MacPhail may visit me in my office, but there is no significance to the affair," Nugent stated. "Shotton is in Florida. He will have to see Burt."

Central States Checker Champion Loses Twice

Carbondale, Ill., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Harlan Richards of Springfield, Ill., central states checker champion, today lost two games in the state checker tournament being held here and was in danger of losing the title to Paul Browning of Christopher, his nearest opponent.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Earl Porter, one of the turf's outstanding jockeys of 1933, got away to a good start for the new year today when he rode three winners at Tropical Park this afternoon.

Starting with the second race, which he won with the odds-on choice, Judge Schilling, Porter accounted for the third with Escadron, an outsider paying $10.20, and led the field home in the sixth with Charlie K., even money choice.

Monel, a full sister of her more famous stablemate, Tred Avon, won the mile handicap in a driving finish, beating M. Madden's Jamison by a length and a half. Mrs. Nat Ray's Stealingaway was four lengths away in third place.

Well handled by the New Orleans jockey, Lester Balaski, Monel reeled off the eight furlongs in the fast time of 1:37 3-5. Balaski shot the filly into command at the break and she outran her rivals all the way. At the furlong pole it seemed that Jamison, the chief contender throughout, might make the result close, but Monel bounded away again under pressure.

HOUSTON MEETING ENDS

Houston, Tex., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Epsom Downs meeting at Houston, Tex., closed with a fitting victory by W. T. Waggoner's Quatre Bras II. in a mile and one-eighth race named in honor of the man who was the leader in legalizing horse race betting in the Lone Star state.

Coming back after finishing second to a longshot Saturday, Quatre Bras II., a son of the foreign sire, Teddy, scored by a length over C. L. King's pari-mutuel. Back in third place was the lightly weighed Sad Knight, carrying the silks of Mrs. S. S. Tracy.

NORTH WINS IN S. E. CONFERENCE GAME, 7 TO 0

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 1.—(AP)—All-stars from the northern end of the Southeastern conference today defeated the south team, 7 to 0, in a charity game. Kercheval of Kentucky was outstanding for the northerners, although the touchdown was scored by Kimbrell of Auburn on a pass from Brackett of Tennessee. Wynn of Tennessee kicked the placement. The game was played on a muddy field before 12,000 fans.

The Leafs tied it up on a goal by Boll assisted by C. Conacher and Primeau. Primeau took the disc into the Hawk defense zone along his right boards. Conacher picked it up at the curve on a line with the mouth of the cage, then passed out to Boll who had stationed himself to Gardiner's right. With a sweeping stroke, Boll easily beat Capt. Chuck who seemed a bit nonplussed at the course of events.

INDIANA BASKET TEAM DEFEATS TEMPLE, 43-29

Hoosiers Widen Lead in Second Half.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 1.—Captain Woodard Weir led the Indiana university quintet of the Big Ten conference to its seventh consecutive victory this afternoon at the expense of the Temple university five. The score was 43 to 29.

This victory gave the Hoosiers a clean sweep to date on their eastern invasion. Marshall college and Maryland were also defeated on this tour.

Weir Makes Six Baskets.

Weir displayed fine floor work in addition to scoring six baskets and three goals from the penalty line.

Vernon Huffman played a stellar game at center, making six baskets and one free throw. Huffman got the tap all the time he was in the fray and when he was relieved by Coulter the visitors continued to snare the oval on the jump.

Hoosiers Forge Ahead.

The lead seesawed back and forth several times during the first fifteen minutes of play. Then the Hoosiers got on the switching defense of the Temple five and started to forge ahead. At half time Coach Dean's men led, 25 to 18.

For the first four minutes of the second half neither team scored. Then the Indiana team drew away to a safe lead. Lineup:

MISSISSIPPI BEATS LOYOLA

Mississippi college's long passing game and accurate shooting proved too much for Loyola's basketball team last night at the Loyola gym. The Southerners won 23 to 18.

Loyola had a chance in the last minute and a half but permitted Mississippi to slip through for two "sleeper" shots. Mississippi was leading 19 to 17 when Hogan made only one out of three free throws in the last minute. Immediately afterward Farrell and Anderson stole behind the Loyola defense to cage two setups. ## PURDUE, 34; ARIZONA, 23

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Purdue chalked up its fifth victory in six starts here tonight, gaining a 34 to 23 triumph over the University of Arizona. It marked the second loss in ten starts for the far westerners.

Arizona was totally outclassed and Purdue did not send its regulars into the game until the middle of the second half, the second and third string crews keeping the visitors well under control. Purdue led at the half, 20 to 13. Purdue used sixteen men in the game.

GOPHERS BURY HUSKERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The University of Minnesota basketball team scored a 37 to 16 victory over Nebraska tonight in its final pre-Big Ten game. At times the game developed into a comedy because of the wild passing and shooting. Players were sent sprawling and flying so recklessly that the game became a good old-fashioned football contest.

The Gophers acquired a 25 to 8 lead in the first half. George Svendsen made five baskets and two free throws for scoring honors. Lineup:

ILLINI TO PLAY MISSOURI

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Resuming practice today, Illinois basketball players prepared for their engagement with Missouri here Wednesday night, the final contest before they meet Wisconsin Saturday.

Les Lindberg, sophomore half back on the strength of his performances in the Knox and Augustana games, is a good bet for guard and probably will replace Chin Kamm, at least at the start of the match with Missouri.

LANE TECH WINS OVER PARKER IN FINAL, 25 TO 16

Lane Tech's perfectly drilled basketball team, unheralded in advance but strong in the qualities that win tournaments, defeated Parker's big quintet last night at the Midway fieldhouse to win the championship in the fourth annual University of Chicago holiday meet. Lane vanquished the Parker team 25 to 16 in the finals by using the same steady, beady tactics that brought victory in early round battles with Hirsch, Englewood, Austin and Harrison.

Lane Closes with Rush.

Until the final eight minutes last night's championship match was the closest struggle in a final game since the meet was started three years ago. At the end of the third period the score was 15 all. But Lane throughout the tournament had been a "last-half" team, adding speed and spirit to its first half mechanical excellence. And last night the Lane boys put on a display of dribbling and passing in the closing minutes which netted four baskets and a pair of free throws while Parker could sink only a free throw.

Little Steve Lakner broke in for three consecutive baskets, Benziger added a free throw, and Capt. Nick Polachanin tore the length of the floor through Parker's guards for a pushup shot that was the final score.

Rumpf Is Stopped.

Leonard Rumpf, giant Parker center, who had been the high scorer of the meet, was held to three points, one of them the first score of the game, a rebound shot. He was ably guarded by Bennie Benziger. Polachanin matched Rumpf's shot with a short goal, then Kelch and Katz added free throws for Parker. A basket by Ted Annel, the first of four which he made, left the score at 4-4 at the end of the first quarter.

Polachanin caged a basket to start the second quarter. Bob Peterson sank a free throw for Parker and Annel poked in a side shot for Lane. Hass made a good free throw for Parker and Annel took a fine long pass from Polachanin for a pushup basket. Kelch's free throw was good. Parker went into the lead at half time, 11 to 10, on a pair of short shots by Peterson and Hass.

Tie Score at 15-15.

Lakner opened the second half with a long goal and Annel added another for Lane on a rebound. Hope's free throw brought Lane's lead to 15-11, but another Parker rally brought two more baskets, a long one by Kelch and a short shot by Peterson as the third quarter ended. Then Lane turned on the heat, with Lakner leading the way to victory.

High point honors for the tourney go to Russell Hamm of Harrison, whose seven points against Hyde Park last night brought his total up to 46.

Lightweights Too Good.

Hyde Park's lightweights were too fast and clever for Harrison and took the curtain raiser by a score of 33 to 24 to win third place honors in the tournament. Harrison's lanky lads took a lead over the Hyde Park heavies in the opening minutes. Then the lights came in to do their rescue act for the fourth time since the tourney opened. Jim Porter, speedy guard, who led the scoring with five baskets and two free throws, promptly sank a long one. Baskets by Rossin, Garmissa, and Porter put the score at half time at Harrison, 16; Hyde Park, 14.

Goldman's basket tied the score and Hyde Park went into the lead when Goldman's pass under the Harrison basket was accidentally tipped in by Switack of Harrison. Hyde Park's defense forced Harrison to long shots. A couple of these were good, but two baskets by Porter, the result of lightning dribbling, left the score at 22 to 20 for Hyde Park at the three-quarter mark. Speed and accurate shooting built up the Hyde Park lead early in the final period and a clever stalling game increased it further.

Best Skaters in U. S. Come Out of Silver Skates Races

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Silver Skates Derbies, which were started in 1917 and will be held for the seventeenth time on Jan. 13 and 14 by THE TRIBUNE at the Garfield park lagoon, have produced some of America's best skaters. The Silver Skates events were started primarily to furnish an incentive for amateur skaters and they now have grown to include seven championship races which afford every boy or girl an opportunity to test his or her skill against the best in the central states.

Silver skates are given to the winners, and other pairs of skates are the awards for second and third place in each race. Medals are awarded for fourth and fifth places. In addition, the team which scores the most points in all the races will receive possession for one year of the Walter Eckersall Memorial trophy. Mr. Eckersall conducted the first Silver Skates Derby in 1917. The team which wins the trophy three times will be given permanent possession and THE TRIBUNE will purchase a new trophy.

Capture Many Titles.

The Illinois Western Skating association sanctions the Silver Skates' races. Harry Berz, who long has been a valuable member of THE TRIBUNE A. A., is president of the Illinois Western association this year. Frank M. Kalteux, a commissioner of the northwest park district and another sponsor of amateur sports, is the president of the Amateur Skating union, the national governing body for the sport. Other Chicago men who hold national or sectional positions on racing boards are: Edward A. Mahlke, secretary of the A. S. U.; Otis J. Taylor, chairman of the racing board of the A. S. U.; Herman Fischer, Walter Wright, Capt. Roy E. Davis, Gen. John V. Clinnin, Tobias J. Orb, Harry Hahn, Theodore A. Gross, James P. McWhirter and Roy McWhirter.

Every championship, national, North American, and international has at one time or other been held by a skater registered with the Illinois Western association. Bobby McLean started to skate in Chicago and Art Staff, holder of the world's professional title, is a Chicago boy.

The Former Champions.

Some of the former Silver Skates winners who have won other titles are: William Steinmetz, skating ace of America in 1922 and a member of the American Olympic team in 1924; Roy McWhirter, national champion in 1921; Francis J. Allen, the best national skater in 1925; Harry Kaskey, member of the American Olympic team in 1928; Oneil Farrell and Eddie Murphy, members of the American Olympic team in 1928 and 1932. Rose Johnson, an international title holder in 1921, is also a former winner of Silver Skates.

All champions in Silver Skates are barred from competing again in the same division in which they won their titles. The winners may move up to the next class, but this ruling automatically bars the champions of the Men's senior division and the Girls' senior division each season.

Entries Close Sunday.

The time for reporting for racing numbers and the starting times for the races will be announced later. In the meantime, however, every boy and girl, who wishes to try for a prize, or to receive one of the souvenir bronze buttons which are given to all who skate in the preliminaries in their age divisions, must clip out the entry blank which appears daily in THE TRIBUNE and send it to Wilfrid Smith, Sports department, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Entries close at midnight next Sunday. None will be accepted later.

Miller Whips Sharkey in Title Fight

Cincinnati, Jan. 1. — (AP) — Freddy Miller of Cincinnati, recognized by the National Boxing association as featherweight champion, pounded Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis contender, into submission in a fifth successful defense of his title here today.

Miller twice floored the scrappy northerner to win a decisive victory. Miller fought at 124½ pounds and Sharkey 125¼.

May Fight in Chicago.

Pete Reilly, Miller's manager, announced after the fight that the champion probably would fight in Chicago before the end of the month. The bout will be a nontitle, overweight affair.

Sharkey showed well in only two rounds, the fourth and seventh, and virtually held the champion even in the first. Coming back in the fourth, he leaped from his crouch to crack Miller on the chin twice with sharp rights, and landed a hard left to the body. In the seventh he outroughed Miller to gain an edge in close quarters, bursting open a wound over Miller's left eye.

Miller Comes Back.

But Miller came back in the eighth to beat Sharkey at his own game. With his right arm tied up, he pounded Sharkey's kidneys and then brought his left straight up, catching Sharkey on the chin and driving him backward.

Varias Milling of the Philippines was awarded a decision over Paul Dazzo of Chicago in a ten round preliminary. The decision was booed. Milling weighed 130 and Dazzo 127.

Gizzy Wins Decision Over Steve O'Malley

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Battling Gizzy of Donora, Pa., won the referee's decision today over Steve O'Malley of Bellaire, O., in a fast ten round New Year's day fight. The crowd booed the decision. Gizzy weighed 137 and O'Malley 138 pounds. Johnny Terry, 150, of Chicago, drew with Paul Oger, 150, of Moundsville in the six round semi-final.

Phagan Takes 10 Round Bout with Dukelsky

Phagan changed his style entirely. Formerly a counter puncher, Phagan took the aggressive and piled up enough points in the early rounds to weather a late rally by Dukelsky.

Phagan's best round was the third, when he had Dukelsky on the verge of a knockout after a series of right hand punches. The standing between the two middleweights after yesterday's bout is three victories for Dukelsky, one for Phagan and one draw.

Larry Johnson, Chicago heavyweight, won an eight round decision over Roy Williams in the semi-windup. Roy Habel beat Harry Roberts in four rounds. Jack Collins handed Frank Almares a four round beating and Art Zimmer knocked out Hugh Allen in the fourth round. In the curtain raiser Carl Scalise beat Jack O'Connell in four rounds. About 800 paid $534 to watch the card.

Meyer Grace of Indianapolis knocked out Peewee Jarrell in the second round of a scheduled eight round fight yesterday afternoon in the main bout of Johnny Coulon's show at White City.

The first round was even and after two minutes fighting in the second round a right cross to the chin set Jarrell down for the count. In the semi-windup Artie Mitchell of Chicago and Chick Wagner battled to a five round draw. Paddy Walthier pounded out a four round decision over Al Schirado. Bob Millsap trimmed Ossie Jefferson in four rounds. Jimmie High threw John Hold in 14 minutes with a body slam.

COLUMBIA WHIPS STANFORD 7 TO 0 IN RAIN AND MUD

which is half again as much as the whole Columbia team.

The story of Stanford's defeat is a story of fumbles. Stanford made seven fumbles, Columbia made four. Stanford lost the ball five times on fumbles and Columbia lost it the two times in the first quarter when it was pushing the red shirts back in the shadow of their own goal. Three times in the third quarter Stanford's marches were halted by fumbles, once when Hamilton dropped it on the 13 yard line and Montgomery recovered. Alustiza dropped it on the four yard line and Van Dellen dropped it on his 20 yard line.

An Inspired Defense.

The crashing defense play of Wilder, center; Richavich, tackle; Nevel at full back, and Lenihan at half back made life miserable for the Stanford backs as it was the terrific tackling by this quartet which jarred the mud covered ball out of Stanford's hands. In this as in other respects the game was a saga of inspired defense by the New Yorkers.

Montgomery outpunted Stanford throughout the game. He kept Stanford in the hole in the first half and his booming kicks invariably neared one side line or the other, where Stanford's backs never were able to catch them and get a quick start for a runback.

At times the Columbia captains' kicks seemed to float only a few feet lower than the black cloud blanket which overhung the top tiers of the Rose Bowl and dumped oceans of icy water upon the steaming players and cowering fans alike.

After being repulsed from the goal line three times in the third quarter Stanford ran in three new backfield players and then drove to Columbia's 14 yard line, but a penalty for too many times out cost 5 yards. Then Demshar, Richavich, Brominski, and Chase galloped through the weakening coast team's line to nail both Grayson and Hamilton for successive losses to avert the red shirts' last scoring threat.

40,000 Tickets Sold.

Even in defeat Stanford showed powerful individual work, Bill Corbus, at guard, being as responsible as Grayson for that defeated heroes' ground gaining showing as Corbus opened most of the holes for the doughty full back. Reynolds at tackle and Moscrip, end, two defensive aces, spent portions of the afternoon in Columbia's back field.

The game, for which 40,000 tickets had been sold, brought out a crowd of little more than half the number due to the fifty hour rain which has been undermining hillsides, swelling rivers, overflowing streets, and carrying out bridges in the Los Angeles area since last Friday.

It was a startling contrast to the smiling skies and background of snow capped peaks which rendered past Rose Bowl games so pictorial.

The other principal touch of color was the Columbia team's bright, light blue jerseys, which the team exchanged for new jerseys between halves. A satiny perpendicular black stripe ran the length of the sleeves on the winners' jerseys. Stanford played through the game in muddy red.

This was the seventeenth intercollegiate football game in Rose Bowl history since 1916. Harvard was the only other team from the Atlantic seaboard to win a game, beating Oregon, 7 to 6, in 1920. It was Columbia's first appearance in the coast classic. Stanford has appeared in four Rose Bowl games and has won only one, beating Pittsburgh, 7 to 6, in 1928 and losing to Notre Dame, 27 to 10, in 1925. Alabama tied Stanford, 7 to 7, in 1927.

Sauer punted 63 yards to send the Easterners back to their own seventeen yard mark. It failed to daunt the visitors, who in two plays were back knocking at the Western goal.

Ed Danowski, full back, Fordham, engineered the final bid for his team. He tossed a pass to Winston Anderson, end, that gained thirteen yards and put the ball on the thirty yard mark. On the next play the husky Fordham boy whipped a forward to Anderson who tossed a lateral to Feathers. The latter ran 56 yards before being downed on the West's fourteen yard line.

Pass Is Intercepted.

Feathers was downed by John Norby, half back, Idaho. It was the best run of the day and the only time the speedy Tennessee back was able to break away.

From the fourteen yard line, the Easterners reached the five yard line on two plunges by Danowski. Feathers then lost four yards and a pass by Joe Laws, half back, Iowa, was intercepted by Sauer. The game ended shortly afterward.

Statistically the East outplayed the boys coached by Orin Hollingbery of Washington State and Percy Locey of Denver. The Easterners made sixteen first downs to seven for their rivals. The East chalked up 157 yards from scrimmage and 143 yards from eight passes. The West had 140 yards from scrimmage and thirty from two passes.

MILWAUKEE LAD CAPTURES INDOOR TENNIS CROWN

Frank Parker Beats Hunt in Straight Sets.

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Frank A. Parker of Milwaukee, 17 year old Lawrenceville school tennis star, who is the national clay court champion, won the national junior indoor tennis crown today at the Seventh regiment armory when he defeated Gilbert A. Hunt Jr. of Washington, D. C., in straight sets.

Parker succeeds Mark Hecht of the University of Pennsylvania, who has passed the junior age limit. Parker defeated Hunt, 6-4, 6-3, 7-5, after three sets of brilliant tennis in which the Washington player put up a fine battle, only to be overcome by Parker's smothering service and lightning cross court drives.

Low Wins Boys' Title.

Robert A. Low of New York and the Choate school became the new national boys' indoor titleholder, succeeding Alfred Jarvis of Tenafly, N. J., who now is a junior. Low, seventh seeded player, staged an uphill battle to conquer Melvin Lapman of New York, the unseeded player who eliminated the first, third, and eighth favored boys, to gain the final. Low won, 6-4, 6-0, after losing a bitterly fought opening set, 9-11.

In winning the junior laurels, Parker exhibited his usual brand of superb tennis. Hunt, an M. I. T., sophomore, offered a strong service and a good volleying game, but Parker never lost control of the match and was pressed only slightly more than in the previous rounds of the tournament.

A break in service in the third game enable Parker to take the opening set, 6-4. In the second set Parker broke through Hunt's delivery four times, but Hunt broke through twice in the second and sixth games to delay Parker's triumph in the ninth game, in which Parker broke through at 4-1.

Both Hunt and Parker broke service one up to the tenth game of the final set, but in the eleventh Parker went ahead, 4-0, and then broke through Hunt at 6-4 to take the match.

Parker gained the championship without the loss of a single set, scoring straight set victories in seven matches, and being carried to twelve game sets only in the semi-final and final matches.

Hunt, prior to his defeat by Parker, had also been a straight set victor in all of his five matches.

Hunt Wins in Doubles.

Unsuccessful in his singles title quest, Hunt fared better in the doubles, where he paired with Sumner Rodman of Harvard to capture the doubles crown by defeating the team of Frank Rericha and Joseph Abrams, New York, by the score of 6-0, 6-3, 6-3.

Robert A. Low took his second championship when he teamed up with Henry Daniels of Bryant High school, New York, and won the boys' doubles, defeating Rolfe Kingsley of Hill school, Pottstown, Pa., and Warren Cagney of Stewart Manor Tennis club, Long Island, by the score of 9-7, 4-6, 6-4.

A revision of the automobile death figures for 1933 in Cook county yesterday showed that there were 1,132 lives lost as the result of motor accidents. In 1932 the total was 1,110, while the 3 preceding year, with the highest ever recorded, had 1,306 such deaths.

GATES MANSION SHELTERS 300 HOMELESS BOYS

The mansion of one of Chicago's most picturesque figures in the '90's has been converted by the Catholic Youth Organization into a home for destitute boys at 2914 South Michigan avenue. John W. Gates' house, built before the Columbian exposition, sheltered nearly 300 boys during the recent cold wave. From Juvenile courts, the Boys' court, and police stations, the boys are sent to see Father Maloney, the hotel manager, who registers his guests without question as to creed or nationality.

The three story brick building is now undergoing complete remodeling. Sleeping rooms occupy the second and third floors, accommodating three or four boys each. The lobby, sitting room, and clubrooms are on the first floor.

The CYO hotel is not intended, however, to furnish permanent quarters. Boys may live there until they find work at which they can support themselves.

Many changes have taken place in the former home of the millionaire sportsman. Aside from periods of vacancy, it was a kindergarten school and rooming house before Frank Lewis bought it in 1929 and presented the house and grounds to the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Chicago.

They know that Hursen elegance, Hursen unmatchable equipment, and the use of Hursen Organ-Chapels, always free, cannot be matched in their own neighborhood.
They know, too, that Hursen funerals cost less!

J. WASSERMANN, GERMAN WRITER, DIES IN AUSTRIA

Famed for Novels on Social Ills.

GRAZ, Austria, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Jacob Wassermann, German writer whose novels in social maladjustments brought him world fame, but the displeasure of Germany's Nazis, died today at the age of 60.

Death was due to angina pectoris, a heart ailment of long standing. He had been living during the last few months at his country estate near here after a movement to encourage a strictly "German" literature had made him unpopular at home.

JACOB WASSERMANN.

Ousted from Prussian Academy.

Wassermann, with Thomas and Heinrich Mann, Emil Ludwig, and other writers, was replaced in the authors' section of the Prussian academy last May when Bernhard Rust, Prussian minister of education and culture, announced that "Germany will soon learn what ideas the government has concerning German letters."

Among his best known works are "The World's Illusion," "Wedlock," and "The Mauretius Case." He was working on the last named novel in 1927 when he went to the United States to study and travel.

Married Twice.

He was born in Nuremberg, Germany, on March 10, 1873. He was married twice and was the father of three sons and two daughters.

A few weeks ago Wassermann went to Vienna for medical treatment and he celebrated the holidays in apparent good health and spirits. Frau Wassermann and a daughter were present at his deathbed.

Italian-born, "Oddie" came to London in 1897 and had practically lived in Piccadilly Circus ever since, providing good food and drink. An artist in such things, he had long been a popular figure with Americans.

CHICAGO FINDS 1933 EVENTFUL YEAR IN FINANCE

Recovery in Wake of Banking Troubles.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The story of Chicago finance in 1933 has been an exciting one. An intense financial panic, culminating in a new "black Friday," overshadowing the original, was followed by a swift return of confidence. Then came a period of readjustment during which the city's banking structure was overhauled with many changes of far-reaching significance.

The year opened inauspiciously for Chicago finance and banking. Nineteen thirty-two had witnessed many failures and the number of banks had been reduced to about 75, compared with the 220 with which the city began the depression in October, 1929. When the year began about the only hope abroad was based on the belief that conditions were so bad that they could not get any worse. Later events proved that belief untrue.

Fair Lightens Gloomy Picture.

However, breaking into the picture of gloom with a ray of sunshine was A Century of Progress. With its opening came an influx that grew to hundreds of thousands of out of town persons who came to Chicago not only to see the Fair but to shop. They brought money in hand and spent it, taking much of the sting out of the depression's latest [and it is hoped last] wallop to the business and financial world. Not only did the Fair bring money and trade from out of town, but it stimulated Chicagoans to a more hopeful mood.

That wave of buying and with it a renewed confidence came as the bankers, the courts, and the public were busy with the task of clearing up the debris left by the Insull collapse. Public morale was at a low point, worn down by three years of unprecedented deflation.

Moratorium Halts Recovery.

To go back to the beginning of March, there was the financial panic sweeping over the country. With New York, Chicago stood out until the eve of President Roosevelt's inaugural before a state-wide banking moratorium was resorted to.

The first three days of March found long cues of depositors at the withdrawal windows of the banks in the downtown finance district and in the outlying banks. Chicago was going through the worst financial panic in its history.

The recovery of confidence was rapid. Thirty-seven banks reopened at the end of the 10 day holiday as compared with the 59 which suspended with the governor's proclamation. Since then the number of banks has been swelled to 49, still a far cry from the 220 organizations, technically known as banks, that were operating in the city at the crest of the boom.

Banks Overhaul Capital.

As the unseasonal summer business boom eased off into an autumn recession the overhauling of the capital structures of Chicago banks got well under way. Late in the year the Continental Illinois National bank sold $50,000,0000 of preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the first big bank in the country to follow the recommendation of the national administration to strengthen capital structure.

As part of the Chicago bank's capital reorganization the bank wrote down its common stock from 75 to 25 millions and substituted the stock sold to the RFC.

The First National Bank of Chicago also approved plans for the sale of 25 millions of preferred stock to the RFC to be submitted to stockholders early in 1934. The Harris Trust and Savings bank increased its capital by transferring the unusued funds of its security affiliate which is to be liquidated.

Big Insurance Failure.

Another event of financial importance was the failure in October of the National Life Insurance Company of the U. S. A., with offices in Chicago and the largest life insurance company in Illinois. It was the second big insurance failure in a year, the Illinois Life Insurance company having gone to the wall late in 1932.

In August the policyholders of Illinois Life were reinsured by the Central Life Assurance society of Des Moines. No plan for reinsurance of the National Life policyholders had been approved as 1933 ended. After a long trial the criminal investigation of the Illinois Life resulted in the sentencing of Ernest Stevens, an officer of the company, to the penitentiary.

The Insull investigation dragged along through the year, with officials of the Corporation Securities company, an important unit in the Insull group, being indicted by the federal government on fraud charges.

Meanwhile the federal government prosecuted its efforts to bring Samuel and Martin Insull back to Chicago, and it appears probable that both will be heard from the witness chair.

A Statistical Summary of the Nation's Business 1929-1933

Armour & Co. Income Is Best in Eight Years

Armour & Co. in 1933 had its best year since 1925. Operations for the fiscal period ended Oct. 28 yielded net income of $8,121,641 available for dividends. Not since the year ended Jan 2, 1926, when the company earned $9,355,000, has so large a profit been shown in a 12 months' period.

In the three years immediately preceding the company reported deficits amounting to $3,857,565 in 1932; $21,821,342 in 1931, and $54,373 in 1930.

The 1933 profit does not include credits of $3,087,757 of an extraordinary nature which were made directly to surplus. These credits together with the balance of earnings after dividends on Armour of Delaware stock amounted to $24,586,081 as compared with $17,234,320 a year earlier.

Net Equals $7.47 on Preferred.

After dividends on the Delaware company stock the 1933 earnings were equal to $7.47 a share on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of the parent company on which no disbursements have been made since Jan. 2 1931. The unpaid accumulation on the preferred amounted to $17.50 a share at the close of the year.

T. G. Lee, president, in his letter to stockholders, said no dividends have been paid on preferred although requirements were covered in 1933, because of terms of the Illinois corporation act which specify that a corporation cannot pay dividends unless its net assets are in excess of its stated capital. The decline in property values in recent years makes it questionable whether the company's net assets exceed capital. This situation necessitates an early capital reorganization in order that dividends may be paid when earnings warrant such action, Mr. Lee said.

Tonnage Volume Higher.

The company reported a tonnage business 10 per cent greater than in 1932. Aggregate dollar sales, however declined to $452,000,000 from $468,000,000 in 1932 as a result of lower average prices prevailing.

Armour's favorable showing is attributable to several factors. The company reduced its fixed bond interest through retirement of $6,410,300 of bonds—purchased at a discount of $1,252,420. The company retired an additional $648,700 of the Delaware company preferred stock at a discount of $359,736. These resulted in lowering charges as well as swelling surplus Profits accruing from retirement purchases at a discount, plus the reversal of the $2,000,000 contingent reserve, which was not needed, resulted in the substantial surplus accretion shown.

The year-end balance sheet revealed the company in a sound current position. Total current assets were $133,851,607, or 5½ times total current liabilities of $24,041,630. Cash and government securities alone of $26,010,651 were $2,000,000 in excess of current liabilities. Inventories were carried at $73,934,800, compared with $52,514,177 a year before.

Funded Debt Reduced.

Funded debt of the parent company now stands at $98,841,100, a reduction of $33,673,900 in the last three years. Preferred stock in the same period has been reduced by $10,000,000.

A number of important changes in the board of directors during the year is disclosed by the report. Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the Chase National bank, has retired both as a member of the finance committee and as a director.

Other directors whose names do not appear in this year's report are Arthur Reynolds, whose resignation from the finance committee was previously disclosed; Harvey J. Sconce, Sidell, Ill. John S. Pillsbury, vice president of the Pillsbury Flour Mills, and Charles H. McDowell. It is reliably reported that Samuel McRoberts, New York banker, will not be a candidate for reelection. With McRoberts off the board the so-called banker domination will be at an end.

New directors listed are: Frank G. Allen, chairman of Winslow Bros. & Smith Co., Boston; D. A. Crawford president of the Pullman company; I. M. Hoagland, vice president of Armour; D. R. McLennan, president of Marsh & McLennan, and Harry G. Mills, vice president of Armour.

TRIBUNE'S INVESTORS' GUIDE SERVES 21,387; TOPS RECORD OF '29

Despite bank moratoria, disinclination of the investing public to enter the stock market, dearth of new bond offerings and other unfavorable factors, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Investors' Guide in 1933 topped 1929 mail receipts of 20,571 letters with 21,387 inquiries. Although showing slight declines from 1932 and 1931 totals, the figure was well in excess of any year since 1914, when the department was established, through 1929.

The most noticeable trend in inquiries of the year was the greatly increased demand for information concerning insurance companies. Policyholders and prospective policyholders are beginning to apply the same principles to insurance as they would to other forms of investment and they are finding Investors' Guide a convenient source for these data.

That the general public is learning that an unbiased comprehensive report on an investment medium tends to reduce the inherent elements of risk in investing is indicated by the fact that during May, June and July, when public participation in the market was at its peak, inquiries to Investors' Guide were 6 per cent, 12 per cent and 29 per cent over the corresponding 1932 months.

PANAMA CANAL DECEMBER TOTAL BEST IN 2 YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA, C. Z., Jan. 1.—December set a high mark for the last two years in both transits and tolls for the Panama canal. Four hundred and ninety-eight commercial vessels passed through the canal in December, making the total for the year 4,367, or 574 more than in 1932. The average daily transit for December was 16.06, against 13.9 a year ago.

The tolls for 1933 approximated $21,600,000, about $2,000,000 more than in 1932 and about $7,000,000 less than the peak year of 1929.

The daily average transit for the year was 13.53, as compared with 11.93 in 1932, 13.62 in 1931, and 16.12 in 1930. Everything points to a steady gain for the canal during 1934.

Rails' Position Is Improved; Earnings Rise

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

In a year notable for events affecting the position of America's railroads there were three happenings of special interest. First, the severe decline in earnings which had continued unabated since the market crash of 1929 was checked, with an actual improvement shown. Second, the railroads started an energetic campaign to help themselves. Third, congress enacted legislation designed to ease the financial burden on the carriers.

Car loadings began to rise late in the spring, and they have moved steadily forward since then. While by no means back to the normal figures of more prosperous days, the freight business was sufficiently improved as to enable many carriers to earn their fixed charges, while a few were put in a position to show a profit after payment of bond interest and other requirements.

Fair Proves Beneficial.

A Century of Progress provided an instrument which improved affairs in this railroad department in every section of the country. Those roads entering Chicago reported records in the movement of passengers, and they are looking to the second year of the Fair to help them.

Regarding the efforts to help themselves, 1933 was somewhat unusual in that there was less criticism of competitors by railroad managements. Instead, the roads set out to improve their services to a point where the public would be compelled in its own interest to turn to the steel rails again. In the freight service trains were speeded up, and the use of door to door delivery was greatly expanded.

The passenger departments announced faster schedules and 100 mile an hour trains. Notable among the latter are the stream lined, motor propelled trains of the Burlington, Union Pacific, and the Texas and Pacific. The Burlington and Union Pacific trains are to go into service during this year, and their operation will be watched with interest by all the roads of the nation. The use of air conditioned passenger cars was increased, and is to be greatly expanded this year.

Launch Drive for Business.

A big offensive against competition was launched by the western railroads which sharply reduced their passenger fares on Dec. 1 and eliminated the Pullman surcharge. While the reductions were announced as an experi-

STOCKS COVER DIZZY COURSE IN 1933 RISE

Action Most Unusual in Mart History.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—In many respects the 1933 share market bids fair to go down as the most remarkable in the history of the New York Stock exchange.

Boomed above all its predecessors by government aid in the form of measures pointing to general price and currency inflation, hounded by threats of federal regulation and ruinous municipal taxation; shut down for a time on account of the national bank holiday; operating on half-session schedules for days in the usually dull midsummer period because of an overwhelming volume of business brought on by wild speculation, and boosted and staggered in turn by a dozen other conflicting developments of varying importance, trading ran a hectic course almost from the beginning of the year till the final gong sounded on its operations for the twelvemonth at the close of trading last Saturday.

Not even the memorable market of 1929 with its all time record collapse of [illegible] structures can compare with it for [illegible]er color and sensationalism. Scarcely a week of the whole fifty-two went by without bringing some new and surprising development in the bubbling current of price movements.

Price Influences Varied.

[illegible]ing crisis, the sudden re[illegible]ublic confidence by the [illegible] administration's program [illegible] the situation; the aban[illegible] the gold standard; pro[illegible] of the government's recov[illegible]am and the response of business to it; prohibition repeal, the silver purchase program—these are some of many highlights of the year's crowded news calendar from which the list took its cues—usually for a fresh and still more vigorous advance into higher ground.

The finish found the general list nearly 100 per cent above its low for the year—registered on March 2 just before the general bank shutdown The appreciation in some groups amounted to 300 or 400 per cent, while a sizable string of highly volatile issues, chiefly in the low priced division, presented a spectacle of running up anywhere from five to ten times their early spring valuations.

Traders started the year in a rather optimistic mood, but the spread of the banking crisis from Michigan to Maryland and then throughout the nation threw a chill into the speculative community and prices veered steadily downward until the inauguration of President Roosevelt and the presidential order decreeing a general bank and security exchange holiday throughout the country.

Restrictions Impede Progress.

When trading was resumed on March 15 prices turned sharply upward. Certain restrictions on trading held in check whatever tendency the market might otherwise have shown to advance, for a couple of weeks, but in April the bull movement began to click in earnest. It broadened and gained impetus right through into July 18 when the averages as gauged by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S index of fifty representative issues went to the year's high of 98.05.

Then came the midsummer reaction—precipitated by the overbulling of the liquor shares—when the averages tumbling back to 76.53, a break of nearly 22 points, the worst the market had experienced since the big panic days of 1929.

Early August, however, found the list pointing definitely upwards, and by the end of that month more than two-thirds of the losses suffered in the big break had been recovered. Then came a secondary reaction, followed in turn by another forward drive which carried the averages once more by the middle of September to 92.76. About this time the NRA recovery

Continental Bank Reveals Income Facts

Setting a new precedent in reporting the financial results of the year's operations, the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company yesterday mailed to shareholders a breakdown of its earnings account for 1933.

The figures were part of President James R. Leavell's annual report to stockholders. This is believed to be the first time that any large bank in the country has given out an itemized earnings account.

Net earnings from the year's operations were $7,130,863, before a $60,522,036 chargeoff, most of which represented extraordinary reserves set up against assets that have depreciated during the depression. In 1932 net earnings from the year's operations were $11,488,636, before $45,416,368 of chargeoffs.

The report shows that salaries of the 3,059 officers and employes were reduced almost one million dollars last year and that total operating expenses were reduced nearly $1,100,000.

Interest Earned Declines.

Most of the decrease in earnings in 1933, compared with 1932, Mr. Leavell disclosed, was due to a decline of nearly nine million dollars in interest earned. This drop in revenues, he explained, was due to the abnormally low interest rates during 1933 and also to the fact that the bank was carrying a larger proportion of its assets in cash in order to maintain a higher degree of liquidity.

Total deposits on Dec. 30 were $629,944,034, nearly three million dollars greater than the deposits of $627,125,000 reported on Oct. 25, the date of the last national bank call, but about 43 million dollars less than the amount reported on Dec. 31, 1932.

On Dec. 30 the bank had $212,706,905 in cash and $125,205,950 in United States government bonds. On Oct. 25 it had $214,552,024 in cash and $93,383,052 in government bonds. The increase of nearly 32 millions in investments in government bonds indicates that a large part of the 50 million dollars that the bank received recently from the Reconstruction Finance corporation in return for preferred stock has been invested in "governments."

Low Interest Cuts Earnings.

"Abnormally low rates of interest throughout 1933 affected adversely the earnings of the commercial department," President Leavell said in his letter to shareholders. "Funds, ordinarily employed in the making of commercial loans, of necessity were invested in low yield securities of short maturity. Large cash reserves carried during the year provided a comfortable position of liquidity, but also accounted in part for reduced revenue.

"Earnings of the foreign department were somewhat reduced as a result of the decline in the foreign trade of the United States and the imposition of foreign exchange restrictions.

"A decline in the earnings of the corporate division of the trust department was incident to the shrinkage of new financing and refinancing by corporations. The personal trust division was affected by a decline in income and increased costs of operations and supervision occasioned by current investment conditions.

"The savings department was unprofitable last year. The average earning rate during 1933 was less than the rate of interest paid on savings deposits.

"The bank building is 92 per cent rented and earnings, in consequence, were good."

Bank Joins Insurance Plan.

The bank, he reported, has already received its certificate of membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance Temporary Fund, effective Jan. 1, 1934.

A statement of condition of the Continental Illinois company, securities affiliate which is to be liquidated, showed that its resources consist of $2,532,702 in cash and 1,000,000 shares of Chicago corporation common stock, carried in the balance sheet at one dollar.

The bank's comparative statement of earnings, expenses, recoveries, and losses for the last two years follows:

| Gross earnings: | Year 1933. | Year 1932. |
|---|---|---|

CHICAGO TITLE AND TRUST ADDS TO ITS RESERVES

The Chicago Title and Trust company yesterday reported gross earnings of $6,184,541 for 1933. Net earnings, after setting up additional reserves of $1,000,000, were $663,351, which was transferred to profit and loss account.

However, sundry reserve funds were increased by $1,500,000, with the result that this item was increased to $2,610,339 and undivided profits were reduced to $239,427, compared with $1,076,075 at the end of 1932. In addition the company now has a special reserve fund of $2,000,000, a special protective fund of $1,300,000 and a guarantee indemnity fund of $2,643,707.

The balance sheet shows total assets of $31,524,269, including cash of $1,105,558. Bills and accounts receivable are $960,552, while accounts payable are only $52,101. The company has $12,000,000 of capital stock and $10,000,000 of surplus.

TRADE FUTURE RESTS ON ACTION OF GOVERNMENT

Money Plan, Credit Big Factors.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

American business today enters a new year on the upgrade for the first time since 1928.

The reasons for the measure of recovery thus far experienced are matters of much dispute and there is among qualified observers much difference of opinion as to the lasting qualities of the upward movement, but the various indexes of business activity show beyond doubt that there has been recovery and that it has been substantial.

The year just ended saw greater changes in the nation's economic and financial life than had ever before occurred in so short a period. It saw the closing and reopening of the banks, the regimentation of agriculture and industry under the federal government, the substitution of government lending for investment by private institutions and investors, the departure from the gold standard and the beginning of a new experiment in "managed" currency, the establishment of the principal that the responsibility for unemployment rests with the federal government, and the introduction of "government banking" with a government body buying stock ownership in more than a third of the nation's banks, including many of the big ones,

Vast Government Spending

It was also a year which saw government expenditures reach new heights with the pouring of billion upon billion of treasury money into public works, farm and home loans, banks, railroads and jobs.

Thus it was a year of the beginning of a great experiment in planned national economy. It follows that the year now beginning will be remembered in history as the year in which those experiments were tested.

What the outcome will be will depend largely upon the success of the administration's monetary plan, balancing the federal budget and the condition of government credit. All three of these factors are closely interrelated. A revival of foreign trade and reopening of foreign markets to American industry are also essential.

Maintenance of the market for government bonds is necessary if the government is to carry out its program of pouring money into public works, banks and various credit agencies. Much of this money has already been allocated but is still to be borrowed from investors.

Must Seek More Funds.

In October the reservoir of long-term credit began to run dry and a Liberty bond conversion plan failed. Since then the treasury has met its financing needs by the sale of short-term notes. Early this spring, however, it will have to go into the market again for more funds.

In the meantime, the administration has under consideration a dollar devaluation scheme which, if successful, would provide the treasury with about four billion 300 million dollars which could be used to help defray the cost of the big spending and lending program.

The proposed plan contemplates an

ALL SIGNS POINT TO BETTERMENT IN REAL EAST

Conditions Slowly but Steadily Improve.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

For the first time in several years it is possible to look back over the preceding twelve months of the local real estate market with a fairly comfortable feeling that conditions have steadily though slowly improved. It is also possible to look ahead through the coming dozen months and predict with a fair degree of assurance that this improvement will continue its slow climb.

All the signs, both tangible and intangible, point to a better rental situation in stores, office buildings and apartments; a resumption of building activity brought about by the old standby—the law of supply and demand—and a more active sales market in real estate. When all these factors are working it is predicted that the real estate mortgage bond situation will reflect them by showing a decided improvement.

While 1933 was not an uproariously cheerful year from any viewpoint, one realizes how much improvement, much of it under surface betterment, was accomplished, when a comparison is made with 1932 and 1931. A Century of Progress, of course, was a tremendous factor in helping the entire situation. The fact that it is to be continued another year is a cheering note for 1934, according to realty men.

Big Realty Sales Return.

During 1933, for the first time in some years, several big realty sales were closed. The outstanding transaction of several seasons was the purchase of the northeast corner of State and Madison, part of the fee under Mandel's department store, by Mrs. J. Ogden Armour for one million dollars cash. It was bought from the estate of Lady Ethel Field Beatty, daughter of Marshall Field.

With the pickup in Chicago's industrial situation during 1933, the real estate market at once began to show some signs of life. Families began unscrambling and apartments began to fill up. The city now has a large number of apartment buildings, both large and small, which are reported to have 100 per cent occupancy.

Rentals Hold Steady.

Rentals have not gone up, as some predicted, but on the other hand they have remained steady and all prospects point to an advance during 1934. Delinquencies have slackened materially.

Store rentals both in the loop and in outlying neighborhoods have shown a steady improvement. Slack in office buildings also is slowly but surely being taken up.

AVERAGES OF STOCKS END YEAR UNDER PEAK BUT NEARLY TWICE LOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average for 50 stocks stood at 85.66 at the close of 1933, comparing with the higher mark of 98.05 on July 18, and a low of 46.85 on March 2. The high for 1932 was 80.88 and the low 33.98. This was the low for the depression and the lowest average for more than twenty years. The high was 311.90 on Sept. 19, 1929.

The industrial average ended 1933 at 138.39, comparing with a high of 150.21 on July 17 and a low of 75.39 on March 2. The 1932 extremes were 129.16 and 57.62, the latter being the lowest level since 1915. The peak was 469.49 in 1929. The railroad average was 32.93 at the close of 1933, comparing with a high of 47.57 on July 7 and a low of 18.31 on March 2. In 1932 the high was 33.96 and the low 10.34, which was the lowest in all history. The high mark was 158.71 in 1929.

TRADE BARRIERS HALT RECOVERY, BANKER ASSERTS

Lichtenstein Outlines the Cures World Needs.

Economic waste resulting from restrictions on the free movement of trade between nations was cited yesterday by Dr. Walter Lichtenstein as one of the contributing causes of the depression. Dr. Lichtenstein, who is an official of the First National Bank of Chicago and an economist of nation-wide repute, mentioned three factors on which pre-war prosperity was based as worthy of consideration now.

These factors are: Free movement of goods between nations, free movement of capital between nations, and free movement of peoples from one country to another. The banker said it would seem the world will have to revert to some of these pre-war bases of prosperity if a lowering of the standard of living is to be avoided.

Old Time Freedom.

"To be sure," Dr. Lichtenstein asserted, "this international freedom of movement was not at all absolute, but compared to present-day conditions it is perhaps permissible to speak of the freedom of those bygone times. Since the war, however, economic nationalism has become rampant with the result that each country, however small, desires to be self-sufficient in all essential means of production.

"Consequently, there has been an enormous amount of duplication of plant and an impossibility of finding markets for this increased production and hence an impossibility of running plants at a profit.

"It is this economic waste which probably more than any other factor has brought about the seriousness of the depression which we have been witnessing. Owing to the impossibility of moving goods internationally in the sense that this was true in pre-war days, international capital movement has stagnated, for in the final analysis international debts are serviced and paid, generally speaking, out of the profits of international trade.

Movement of Peoples.

"As regards the third factor, the movement of peoples, there is no intention here to consider the matter from a political point of view. It is quite true that not only in this country but in other countries there are political factors involved. But from a strictly economic point of view, there is no question that the prevention of immigration in so many more or less undeveloped regions of the world has added very much to the difficulties of the international situation.

For sake of example, we may consider our own country where a state like Texas, by far larger than Germany, with less than one-tenth of the population of Germany, is capable of tremendous development.

"It would be entirely conceivable that a commission be sent to Europe which would select the type of immigrant desired. There might even be stipulations that immigrants admitted would have to comply with certain conditions, such as staying a number of years on a given tract of land and cultivating it according to set rules and regulations, or possibly, in some regions, reforesting the land.

Would Aid Europe.

"It may be answered that such processes would simply increase the present overproduction, but this could be only a temporary condition, for the needs of these settlers would increase much more rapidly than their productivity. Furthermore, the removal of the surplus population from certain of the countries of Europe would relieve these latter of the tremendous tax burden carried now for the purpose of taking care of the unemployed and thus would enhance the economic strength of the remaining population, so that these in turn could function better and their ability to purchase both domestic as well as foreign goods would be greatly augmented.

"This outline needs much expansion and it is merely intended here to indicate certain lines of thought. It may be that the world will not for generations to come revert to those bases which made for prosperity the pre-war world, but it would seem that if this is so, then all countries will likely be faced with a gradual lowering of the present high standard of living."

Mint Makes Fewer Coins for U. S., More for World

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Domestic coinage dropped but foreign coinage increased at the Philadelphia mint during 1933. While the minting of American coins dropped from 20,030,750, the 1932 total, to 15,118,000, the decrease in value was from $68,106,620 to $12,178,600. The explanation lies in the fact that 14,360,000 of the coins turned out in the last twelve months were 1 cent pieces. The mint coined 15,240,000 pieces for foreign countries, mostly Latin American nations.

U. S. and Canadian Banks Close 5 Cuban Branches

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Jan. 1.—Five branches of foreign banks in lesser cities of Cuba closed their doors in accordance with an economy plan. The closed offices are those of the National City bank of New York at Sancti Spiritus and Sagua la Grande in Santa Clara province and Guantanamo in Oriente, and the offices of the Royal Bank of Canada at Matanzas and Manzanillo. Lack of business caused the action.

STOCKS COVER DIZZY COURSE IN 1933 UPTURN

Kaleidoscopic Changes Mark Year's Activity.

movement began to show signs of wabbling and the market once more turned tail for the lowlands.

This time it bumped through the lows of July but again new government "first aid" measures were forthcoming in the nick of time and the list in a final advance for the year approximated anew its August-September peaks. On the whole it has been backing and filling within a dozen points or so of that level ever since. It closed Saturday at 85.66, which is about half way between the high and the low for the month.

Gold, Silver Issues Climb.

Among groups, the gold and silver, liquor, farm implement and automobile shares have been the outstanding performers of the year. Trading in the metal shares has been on a tremendous scale virtually ever since the new administration began to do things of an inflationary nature.

Popularity of the alcohol shares came of course, from the repeal movement which gained headway so rapidly after the change of administrations. Russian recognition provided an extra "kick" for the machinery stocks, which had been rising with grain and inflationary psychology from the outset of the "new deal" market movement. Reports from Moscow indicated the soviet would require heavy shipments of our farm and building implements under the agreement reached on the Litvinov visit to Washington.

Motor Shares Draw Interest.

Interest in the motor issues picked up perceptibly in the closing weeks of the year due to increasing activity at the big production plants. Government final aid helped the railroads and the food and oil shares rose with the tide. Only the utilities have been backward. High taxes, enforced rate cuts, and competition from government sources have kept the group more or less in the dumps.

Brokers and traders generally turn to the New Year with high hopes and great confidence. Qualified observers say in fact that the "street" has not shown such confidence for years as that which greets 1934.

N. J. EX-GOVERNOR FORMS GROUP TO SUE CHASE BANK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—George S. Silzer, former governor of New Jersey, announced today that a comprehensive stockholders' protective committee was "in the course of formation" and would press suits of various sorts against the Chase National bank and the Chase Securities company.

The stockholders, who are to be invited to deposit their Chase securities with the committee and to support the suits, are to have their choice of actions based on the principle that misrepresentation attended many of the mergers which made the Chase bank grow, or that the huge institution has been administered by directors, officers, and others in such a way as to constitute the conversion of funds in the band, and, finally, suits against officers and directors of the Chase Securities company.

STEEL INSTITUTE CHIEF LOOKS TO 1934 FOR ADVANCE

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Walter S. Tower, executive secretary of the American Iron and Steel institute, said today that the iron and steel industry "is looking to 1934 with the feeling that the lowest point of the depression has been passed, and that the coming months should bring a measure of improvement."

"This feeling is based chiefly on signs of expanding demand, together with a stabilized price structure and more favorable marketing conditions ushered in with the code," said Tower.

"The requirement that price changes be listed in advance with the American Iron and Steel institute, the board of directors of which constitutes the code authority, has brought a new competitive era into the steel trade," Tower added.

BUTTER AND EGGS SLIP TO NEW LOW RECORD; YEAR'S TRADE HEAVY

New low record prices for butter and egg futures and the third largest trade in history market operations on the Chicago Mercantile exchange during the last year. Total sales of futures aggregated 77,000 cars.

Comparatively low prices prevailed early in the season in sympathy with other commodities, then the market gradually worked higher until during the summer when sharp advances were recorded as the result of inflation talk, November butter touched 27¾ cents and October eggs 23¼ cents are the best figures of the season.

In the break that followed to the low point in November, the nearby future of eggs fell to 13 cents and butter to 14½ cents.

An attempt by the government to peg the price of butter at 22 cents proved ineffective and only resulted in diverting much cream into butter. This built up the supply in storage to more than 138,000,000 pounds, or 100,000,000 pounds in excess of a year ago.

With the general improvement in business conditions the trade was more optimistic at the close of the year.

LEADERS FIND CHEERFUL SIGNS IN TRADE NOW

Some Predict New Gains in Coming Year.

For the last week American business and financial leaders have been expressing their views on the current condition of business and its outlook for 1934. Several excerpts selected from these comments follow:

EDWARD G. SEUBERT, president Standard Oil Company of Indiana.—In industry and business at large, 1933 marks the beginning of a new epoch. The oil industry ends 1933 in much better condition than a year ago.

ALFRED P. SLOAN JR., president General Motors corporation.—No one can predict with certainty the trend of business activity. What is done will be actuated by a sincere desire to promote common good and that with it all American democracy will find abundant courage to deal with those proposals which will not stand the acid test of analysis and experience.

L. A. DOWNS, president Illinois Central system — General belief prevails better times are ahead, which is strengthened by knowledge the railroads are prepared to play the part in business revival which is expected and required of them.

THOMAS J. WATSON, president International Business Machines corporation.—The time has arrived when business will forge steadily ahead, both here and in Europe. The new year will witness an acceleration of the improvement now taking place.

ERNEST T. WEIR, chairman National Steel corporation. — With steel production nearly 50 per cent of normal, 1933 exceeded the most sanguine hopes. The much over-publicized "industrial revolution" will gradually be dissipated and a new understanding will eventuate through normal processes of evolution.

J. R. BOHNEN, secretary American Washing Machine Manufacturers' association.—The household washing machine industry has just completed the second best year in its history. American homes, already the best equipped in the world, are on their way to an even greater measure of convenience and ease.

A. E. DICKINSON, president Indiana Limestone corporation.—While 1933 has been a tragic year in the building industry gradual improvement was noted in total volume during its final months. A genuine revival of building construction would quickly turn the tide in all lines.

O. C. HUFFMAN, president Continental Can Company, Inc.—Present prospects for the can making industry are bright. Demand for general line containers, directly dependent on general business conditions, should show improvement with the likelihood of improved general business in 1934.

W. R. BOYD JR., executive vice president American Petroleum institute. — Cooperative effort within the petroleum industry is bringing improvement and there should be progress in 1934 beneficial to employes and fair alike to the industry and consuming public.

F. A. MERRICK, president Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.—Taking all things into consideration, and without going into the field of prophecy, it can be said the outlook for 1934 is definitely in the direction of improvement.

AXTELL J. BYLES, president American Petroleum institute.—If confidence is once established in the stability of economic quotas of crude oil, willing buyers will appear. The government can establish a price by fiat, but no government can establish a value or maintain a price against a market value by this means.

J. J. O'BRIEN, president Standard Gas and Electric company.—The utilities have cooperated loyally in the national recovery program and it is time that a spirit of true conciliation should govern all legislation and negotiations looking toward the settlement of common problems.

W. O'NEIL, president General Tire and Rubber company.—Business today is definitely better all over the world than it was a year ago with the possible exception of France and Germany. All factors indicate that we are on the upgrade commercially and industrially.

W. E. WANTZ, president Illinois Manufacturers' association.—Estimates regarding the probable experiments of industry in 1934 must necessarily be qualified by the uncertainty regarding the eventual outcome of those phases of the national recovery program, which are without precedent in our economic history and which are therefore admittedly experimental in character. Industry will continue to aggressively support the President. . . However, I believe industry will be increasingly alert to the practical implications of the various governmental activities and policies.

JOHN McKINLAY, president Marshall Field & Co.—Our business has shown very substantial gains over 1932 and we have made gratifying progress in many directions. We look to 1934 with courage and optimism.

D. F. KELLY, president The Fair.—As we enter 1934 look for the silver lining in the clouds and say to our national leader: "You can count on us all the way, Mr. President. We are yours to command."

GEN. R. E. WOOD, president Sears, Roebuck & Co.—Prospects are encouraging. It is not unreasonable to expect a gross agricultural income of $8,000,000,000 and with it a vastly augmented national income. Restoration of farm purchasing power is one of the pillars of recovery.

We take pleasure in announcing that has this day been admitted to general partnership in our firm.

GRAIN MARKETS SOAR AND CRASH IN UNIQUE YEAR

Short Crops, Monetary Policies Factors.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

New and unusual complications threw the grain trade into confusion during the last year, and inability to analyze the various developments, such as the administration's monetary policy and the abandonment of the gold standard, resulted in most erratic markets.

Never has the trade been called upon to face such a situation as prevailed in 1933. Starting with prices at about the lowest levels within memory, the markets gradually gathered strength following the ending of the bank moratorium in March. They soared in a startling manner in June and July, when the full effect of currency inflation talk, coupled with intense heat and drought and widespread crop damage, inflamed the public and brought in general speculative buying.

Rise Culminates in Crash.

This class of buying, coming in a market where few operators had the courage to sell short, proved to be the undoing of the bull movement, and the upward movement culminated with one of the greatest crashes in the history of the exchange.

May wheat, which sold at $1.28⅛ on July 18, dropped to 93¾ cents on July 20, with the volume of business swelling to a new all-time record at 269,413,000 bushels of all grain on the latter date. May corn, which touched 82 cents on July 17, dropped to 61½ cents three days later. For the first time in its long history the exchange was forced to close while the trade recovered its equilibrium.

The decline which started in July did not culminate until the middle of October, when May wheat sold down to 71½ cents and May corn to 43¾ cents.

Prices Make Partial Recovery.

While there was some recovery from the inside level later, the volume of speculative trading was extremely restricted in the closing months of the year. The upturn was due in part to a combination of the government's gold buying policy and the realization that for the first time in the history of the country domestic wheat production had dropped below average annual requirements.

From a crop production standpoint last year was a tragedy for the farmer, as the yield of the five leading grains was the smallest since 1901 with an aggregate of 3,756,000,000 bushels. Intense heat and prolonged drought were largely responsible for the extremely unfavorable crop season, and, while the outlook for winter wheat for 1934 is slightly better than the previous year, it is still materially below normal, with subsoil moisture reported as lacking in fully half of the total wheat area of the country.

Process Tax Curbs Consumption.

Imposition of a 30 cent a bushel processing tax on wheat used domestically tended to restrict consumption to some extent, but the yield of 527,000,000 bushels was less than domestic requirements and the large supply of old grain from previous crops alone prevented the United States from becoming an importing country.

The American wheat shortage failed to have any material effect on the world market, and the Liverpool price on a gold basis dropped to a low of around 33½ cents a bushel in November, establishing a new record since 1592.

Government control of the wheat markets in practically all countries interfered with the free flow of grain from exporters to importers. While efforts to correct this interference with supply and demand were made at an international wheat conference held in London late last year, there was no apparent effect on prices.

Doubtful About New Year.

The grain trade faces the new year with mixed opinions. There are so many factors to be considered that few traders have a clear conception as to the probable outcome. From a world statistical position the wheat situation is regarded as bearish, but from any other angle it is regarded as bullish, especially in consideration of monetary conditions.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's plan for control production of wheat, corn, hogs, and cotton, while regarded by the trade as somewhat theoretical, is also taken as the first determined effort to solve the agricultural problem, which has been in evidence for some years.

Bank Forecasts Canadian Wheat Exports Over Quota

MONTREAL, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The Royal Bank of Canada said in its monthly letter today that there is a reasonable probability shipments of wheat from Canada this season will be permitted to exceed the 200,000,000 bushels allowed under the international wheat agreement.

Sherwin-Williams.

Investors' Guide: What is your opinion of Sherwin-Williams preferred and common stocks?—Mrs. W. J. J.

Answer: Sherwin-Williams company, a leading manufacturer of paints, varnishes, coal tar products, etc., was originally established in 1866. The company produces most of its own raw materials, operating lead and zinc mines, a linseed oil mill, etc.

Net income in the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1933, amounted to $3,179,000, or $3.54 per common share. On Oct. 25, 1933, it was announced that since Sept. 1 earnings were ahead of the corresponding 1932 period. Wages and salaries were advanced 10 per cent in August, 1933.

For the year ended Aug. 31, 1932, net income was $703,000, which was 75 per cent of preferred dividend requirements. For the preceding year net was $3,223,000, or $3.62 per common share, against net of $3,551,000, or $4.14 per common share, for the year ended Aug. 31, 1930. The company reported net income of $6,019,000, or $8.26 per common share, for the Aug. 31, 1929 year.

Cash assets of $7,440,000 on Aug. 1, 1933, compared with total current liabilities of $3,077,000. Current assets aggregated $24,567,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization is represented by 152,999 shares of $100 par 6 per cent preferred and 635,583 $25 par common shares. The company is required to retire 3 per cent of the preferred each year. With the exception of 1922 and 1921, dividends have been paid on the common every year since 1898. Effective Nov. 15, 1933, the quarterly dividend rate was raised from 25 to 50 cents a share.

The preferred is rather high grade. The common deserves a fairly good rating.

U.S. ENTERS 1934 ON UPGRADE AMID TRADE CHANGES

Business Future Rests on Government Action.

official reduction of the gold content of the dollar. The amount of the reduction has not been made known, but a fifty per cent devaluation—which has been mentioned — would mean a hundred per cent profit on the 4 billion, 300 millions of gold held by the treasury and federal reserve banks combined.

This profit, if taken by the federal government, would enable it to carry out its existing program of public works and lending by the Reconstruction Finance corporation and still work toward a balanced budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935.

Experts Ponder Devaluation.

Bond experts say that such a devaluation operation, if resorted to only once, would not frighten private investors out of the market for government bonds and other securities. They invariably add, however, that with the devaluation would have to come definite assurance that it wouldn't become a habit.

This would mean that government expenditures would have to be tapered off and no new big extraordinary outlays made after the profits of the devaluation had been exhausted.

The hope has frequently been expressed of late that with business beginning to revive and with the new revenues to come from liquor taxes the federal government would be able to balance its budget and gradually reduce its extraordinary expenditures, the purpose of which has been explained as a sort of priming process to start business back to normal.

The test of the priming process will come when the time comes for curtailing these governmental activities, which have been initiated on the understanding that they were temporary steps taken to meet an emergency.

Foreign Markets Essential.

Reopening of foreign markets to American farmers and American industry would go far toward solving the "overproduction" problem. High tariffs and prohibitive import "quota" arrangements by foreign nations as well as outright embargoes have backed up in the United States a flow of goods which formerly went into the export trade.

This backing up of exportable surpluses led to the administration's attempt to restrict farm acreage and to its attempt, through the NRA, to prevent the building of more factory productive capacity. These measures have not been entirely successful. The farm curtailment attempt in particular has been a failure to date.

In addition to the tariffs, embargoes and quotas, American foreign trade during the last two years has suffered from a cheapening of foreign currencies in terms of the dollar. With the dollar down to 64 cents this handicap has been removed.

The various indexes of industrial activity in the year declined from the midseason on highs, but were still well above the previous year's levels.

Towards the end of the year some of these indexes began slipping, but this decline might have been merely the usual autumn recession somewhat delayed.

Analysts Expect Spring Upturn.

Most business analysts predict a further upturn in business activity early this spring. These predictions are based upon the assumption that the pouring of treasury billions into channels of trade is bound to be reflected in increased sales.

Meanwhile, there are numerous indications that the natural forces of recovery are very strong and that even without heavy government spending business would be improving. Canada reports a quickening of trade, especially in the lumber business. Great Britain has been enjoying an increased volume of business. Similar reports came from South Africa, Australia, France, and some of the smaller European nations. Late reports show that industrial production in France has risen 14⅞ per cent above the 1932 average; in England, 4¼ per cent; in Germany, 17⅝ per cent; in Japan, 20⅞ per cent; in Canada, 21⅞ per cent.

Confidence in banks has been restored and deposits have increased steadily since the moratorium in March.

CHICAGO'S BUSINESS CLOSES YEAR WITH SALES UP SHARPLY

Chicago finished 1933 with the best spirit it has known in four years, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Department stores reported a week of post-holiday sales that more than measured up to expectations; local utilities announced that use of their service is up 7 per cent from the same period a year ago; the steel output in the Chicago district was again marked up, and many local firms surprised their stockholders by declaring unexpected year-end dividends.

The attitude of wholesalers is much more cheerful. Demands for spring finery and other early 1934 styles is said to be far better than was the case when 1933 staged its debut.

In the long depressed building industry there are also signs of optimism. The general consensus seems to be that early spring will see many of the $65,000,000 worth of projects delayed for more than two years put back into activity.

Two specialized fields where signs of upturn are pronounced are the greeting card industry and the automobile spark plug industry. Producers of Christmas and New Year's greeting cards reported in many instances demands only balanced by those of 1928. In the spark plug field, the impetus comes from the continued heavy demand for lower priced cars and its attendant manufacturing output.

GRAIN VOLUME GAINS SHARPLY DURING 1933

Speculative trading in the Chicago grain market in 1933 materially exceeded the two preceding years. Aggregate sales of wheat and other grains was 15,573,098,000 bushels, with the last day of December missing. This was 5,567,000,000 bushels more than 1932 and 4,070,000,000 bushels in excess of 1931, but with these two exceptions the total was the smallest since 1923.

The increase in trading was due largely to tremendous interest taken in the markets in the April-July period when inflation talk was rampant and prices were advancing rapidly. The increase in business was especially marked in corn and oats, the total in the latter grain being exceeded only four times in the past 13 years. Comparisons follow [last six ciphers omitted]:

BOARD OF TRADE ADOPTS RULE ON OLD STYLE SALES

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade have adopted the following resolution:

"In order to simplify questions which have arisen in 'old style' contracts in lard and bellies, the directors rule that all purchasers taking delivery in January and May, 1934, on 'old style' contracts in lard and bellies shall pay to the seller the floor tax of fifty-five cents and sixty-two cents, respectively, when demanded by the seller.

"No 'old style' contracts shall be entered into for delivery after May, 1934. Redeliveries shall be made under existing rules, the tax being payable by the purchaser to the seller."

GRAIN EXCHANGE MEMBERSHIPS TOUCH $16,000 TOP

Chicago Board of Trade memberships ranged higher in 1933, with an advance from March 7, when the price was $3,750, to $16,000 early in July.

In 1932 the high spot was $9,500 and the low $3,500, the latter at the close of the year.

On July 31, 1929, they reached a high of $62,000.

United States Dollar Barely Moves in London Market

LONDON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The United States dollar barely moved in a stagnant market today, closing at 5.15⅛ to the pound, a shade better than the opening of 5.15½. The French franc, growing somewhat firmer, hovered around 83 to the pound, closing at 83.03. The continental markets were closed and the day's dealings were of a purely local character.

mental operation to extend over a six month period, it is said in railroad circles that it is hardly likely that the old basic rate of 3.6 cents a mile will be restored. The southern and southeastern roads also reduced fares. The eastern lines have not yet cut the basic fares, but railroad officials in Chicago say that it is only a question of time until they take similar action.

Legislation enacted in 1933 which was designed to help the rail carriers included the passing of the emergency transportation act. One of the provisions of this act was the repeal of the recapture clause, which will permit the roads to lay up a surplus in prosperous years to help them in bad times.

Roads Share Service.

The emergency act suspended for a period of years the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law so that the railroads might coöperate with each other in eliminating wasteful competition. An example of this effort is found in the division of passenger service between Chicago and St. Louis among the Alton, Illinois Central, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and Wabash railroads. This was a voluntary action taken by these roads.

Joseph B. Eastman, a member of the interstate commerce commission, was appointed federal railroad coördinator by President Roosevelt. It is Mr. Eastman's task to help the railroads to eliminate wasteful practices and to adopt measures by which they can help themselves.

The various railroads entering the metropolitan area of Chicago are now making studies which will show the way to get the fullest use of their facilities. The plan is to point out improvements which can be made without the expenditure of additional money.

New Station Favored.

The city council's transportation committee has received a report recommending the construction of a railroad passenger station of moderate cost at Randolph street. Railroads now using the La Salle, Dearborn, and Grand Central terminals would use the Randolph street terminal under this proposal.

In the broad railroad picture for 1933 a number of high spots are presented. The labor wage reduction of 10 per cent was extended to June 1, 1934. The railroad credit corporation wound up its affairs and the Reconstruction Finance corporation took over its work. Samuel Bledsoe succeeded William B. Storey as president of the Santa Fé. The Rock Island and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois took advantage of the bankruptcy reform bill, passed during the year, which enables them to work out reorganization without the heavy expenses usually entailed in bankruptcy action. Salaries of presidents were limited to $60,000 annually.

BANK CLEARINGS SPURT UPWARD IN BRITAIN IN 1933

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Further signs of industrial recovery in Great Britain are contained in the annual statement of the Bankers' Clearing house, published tonight. The figures, representing the amount of bills and checks passing through the banks in 1933, show a significant increase, following persistent declines in the previous three years.

The grand total of $160,688,130,000 [figured at par] represents an improvement of $128,335,000 over 1932. The chief reason for the increase is the striking upturn in the total of checks passing through banks in the industrial areas. This item showed an increase of 3.6 per cent over 1932. The improvement was particularly marked in the final quarter, when an increase of 6.9 per cent was recorded.

Similarly, an analysis of metropolitan clearings shows great activity toward the close of the year. Although the yearly increase was only .3 per cent, the final quarter showed an improvement of 2.8 per cent.

World Cotton Mill Activity Reported Tending Upward

New York, Jan. 1.—World cotton mill activity is tending upward, according to the New York Cotton exchange service, which estimates that present activity is only slightly below the levels of four seasons ago when the depression was beginning.

ELECTRIC FIELD HOPEFUL, SAYS JAMES SIMPSON

Tax Burden Is Threat to Rates, He Reports.

The future of the public utility business is that of the nation's government, and progress or changes in the latter will be directly reflected in the former. As most people are striving for recovery the electric supply outlook is hopeful, for throughout the distress of the last four years and under the avalanche of criticism, condemnation and abuse utilities have carried on without failing in their service to the public.

These are the views of James Simpson, chairman of the Commonwealth Edison company, who says that potential fields of development offer a future universally advantageous to both customers and producers.

Tax Burden Troublesome.

Mr. Simpson told of the mounting utility tax burden, declaring if further increases are made higher rates will result. He said:

"Taxes are now so oppressive that 17.8 cents is taken from every dollar of gross revenue of the Edison company, which will pay an estimated bill this year of $13,275,000, or more than $36,000 daily. Our only course, should increases be made, will be to seek higher rates, reluctant as we will be to take action, contrary to the entire history of the company."

While many regard agitation for public ownership and operation as a difficulty to the electric supply business, Mr. Simpson said there is little to fear from competition of municipal ownership.

Public Ownership Declines.

"In the last five years utilities of this type declined 527 in number from 2,389 to 1,862, due to inability of such plants to equal the service or rates of privately owned companies, even though the municipal plants paid no taxes," he asserted.

"Overcapacity, termed a bugaboo by many, is not a serious situation and may prove a blessing."

He said there are many fields for the industry to develop, if permitted.

DOLLAR RETURN ON LIVE STOCK FAR ABOVE 1932

Production for Last Year Nears Record.

Live stock raisers and feeders in 1933 produced one of the largest crops of meat animals in the history of the industry, and returns were many millions of dollars ahead of 1932 figures despite the chaotic condition of nearly all markets early in the year.

It proved to be a billion and a half dollar production year. Live stock money flowed back to farms from all markets and processing points at the rate of about $4,000,000 a day. Over the entire United States approximately 117,800,000 cattle, calves, hogs and sheep were slaughtered. This total has been exceeded only once. The record for all time at 118,938,000 head was established in 1924.

Have Faith in Live Stock.

While much perplexed by the experimentations in production control following the political upheaval in the fall of 1932, farmers not once lost faith in live stock, as evidenced by the immense production. Statisticians estimate that close to nineteen billions of pounds of meat were consumed during the year. The meat trade, one of the most dependable of indexes for the packing industry, absorbed this tremendous supply of beef, pork and lamb at higher prices than in 1932, although the surplus of available meats at one time proved so burdensome that it threatened to become one of the national problems.

The trend of production in cattle and hogs has been upward the last three years, but sheep raising has dropped off. Cattle raisers marketed at all points about 12,700,000 head and sold 8,900,000 calves.

74,500,000 Hogs Slaughtered.

Hogs slaughtered over the entire country, exclusive of the 6,200,000 pigs taken by the government, aggregated 74,500,000. This topped the 1932 figures by 2,500,000. The sheep slaughter at 21,700,000, including stock slaughtered on farms, compared with 22,850,000 in 1932 and with 23,038,000 in 1931, the two largest sheep totals in history.

As a whole, the United States is averaging about 30 per cent more meat animals annually than before the war. In the last ten years 1,131,415,000 cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep have been slaughtered in this country. During the ten years, 1903 to 1912, inclusive, farmers turned out a total of 860,496,000, the greatest production period on record up to that time.

While farmers are producing an average of 27,000,000 more meat animals annually than before 1913, export demand since the war has been dropping off. Farmers selling live stock the last half of 1933 found the best markets, contrary to the general trend of prices in the last half of recent years. All species averaged higher than the first half of the year, prices in some divisions in the summer and early fall of the year advancing against seasonally lower trends.

Cattle Gain in Last Six Months.

Cattle prices at Chicago the last six months averaged 7 per cent higher than the first half. The period July to December inclusive in the hog department averaged only slightly above the first half of the year, but it is the first time since 1928 that prices of hogs were better the last six months than during the first half of the year.

All classes of ovine stock averaged higher the last six months, this period showing a gain of 14 per cent over the first half of 1933, whereas there was a 15 per cent decline the last half of 1932. The last time lambs during the July to December season sold for more than the January to June run was in 1917, the year this country entered the world war. There was a sharp rise in all live stock during the fall months of that year.

Farmer's Position Better.

While price gains per cwt. in 1933 were not large and the drive to bring live stock prices back up to pre-war levels still is far short of its goal, it is generally conceded that the farmer is financially in better shape now than he was at the opening of 1933. The banking holiday was the turning point for most live stock. Prices drifted downward in the early part of the year, but swung upward on inflation talk that followed the reopening of the banks and the promise of a new deal for farmers.

Speculative markets on the bulge contributed most to the stronger prices for live stock. The meat trade was slower to respond, and at no time during the "inflationary" markets did meat prices fluctuate as sharply as other products.

Slaughter Figures.

Packing houses at Chicago slaughtered more live stock in 1933 than in 1932. The feature of the financial reports of the various packing houses showing a profit in the 1933 operations was the tremendous volume of business handled during the year.

| | 1933. | 1932. | Gain. |

[Totals include 891,000 hogs in 1933 and 809,189 in 1932 slaughtered by downtown packers. The 1933 total includes 950,999 pigs and sows slaughtered for the government.]

Live Stock Valuations.

The 13,814,848 cattle, calves, hogs, sheep, and horses received at Chicago in 1933 were valued at $187,128,561, against a valuation of $186,199,767 for 13,800,567 in 1932. Cattle declined about 9½ millions, while hogs increased 10½ millions and sheep declined a half million. With the exception of cattle, most live stock averaged higher per cwt. than in 1932. The steer average was lowest since 1906. Hogs averaged $4 against $3.85, the 35 year low in 1932. The lamb average at $6.40 compared with $5.80 in 1932, which was the poorest year for sheep raisers in 30 years.

U. S. Uses More Meat in 1933 But Production Rises Faster

Consumption of meat in the United States during 1933 increased by about one-half billion pounds, or four pounds per capita, while production increased almost twice that much, according to an announcement yesterday by William W. Woods, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers.

Notwithstanding the fact that prices of both live stock and meat reached low levels, profits in the industry showed a substantial improvement and were in marked contrast to the results of 1931 and 1932, when aggregate losses were about $20,000,000.

Calls Profits Modest.

"In relation to the huge investment of the industry, which runs into hundreds of millions of dollars," said Mr. Woods' statement, "and in relation to the volume of sales, which runs into billions of dollars, the profits made were very modest."

There was a slight increase in the export trade. The quantity of lard exported, which is about four times as large as the meat exports, was about the same as in 1932, but pork exports increased 30 per cent.

The largest increase in both production and consumption was in beef, although pork also showed a good domestic as well as export increase.

Figures covering meat produced under federal inspection show that beef production went up 14 per cent, and veal 10 per cent, while combined consumption of beef and veal was up 13 per cent.

Sheep Output Increases.

Lamb and mutton had an increase of about 1 per cent in both production and consumption.

Overproduction of pork was shown in the 5 per cent increase as against a 1 per cent greater consumption. Lard also showed a discrepancy, 7 per cent increased production with only about 1 per cent more consumption.

Total production of meat and lard was 13 billion 333 million pounds for the year just closed as compared with 12 billion 345 million pounds for 1932. Consumption was 12 billion 411 million pounds in 1933 and 11 billion 787 million pounds during the preceding year.

The number of employés in the packing industry increased more than 16 per cent and payrolls increased more than 20 per cent following adoption of the temporary labor code on Aug. 1, the statement shows.

FEDERAL

1933

Another Successful Year for the

FEDERAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

THE FEDERAL closed 1933 with more cash, more surplus, more reserves for contingencies and more bonds of the United States Government.

THE FEDERAL continues to maintain its important position in the wonderful city of Chicago where, for more than a third of a century, it unfalteringly and unfailingly has upheld the highest traditions of the institution of life insurance. During all of the depression it promptly paid all just demands, borrowed no money, sold no securities and substantially increased its holdings of Government bonds. We judge the future by the past. By this standard our hundreds of thousands of policyholders are assured of a continuing brilliant and stable future for the FEDERAL.

THE FEDERAL has three successful agencies in this magnificent city. There is room for another. Perhaps some able, ambitious, energetic, reliable reader hereof, capable of contacting the outstanding successful business men of Chicago and persuading them, as a matter of LOCAL PRIDE as well as SAFETY, to carry a larger percentage of their life insurance in this meritorious Chicago company, would like to establish it. If so we should be glad to confer with him at a mutually convenient time.

WORLD'S EXCESS OIL OUTPUT IS SET AT 113,000,000 BBLS.

New York, Jan. 1.—World production of petroleum and related fuels exceeded consumption in 1933 by 113,000,000 barrels, according to an analysis prepared by the foreign oil department of Henry L. Doherty & Co., which placed production at 1,453,000,000 barrels and consumption at 1,340,000,000 barrels.

The United States was primarily responsible for this overproduction, according to the analysis, with an output of about 110,000,000 barrels more than in the previous year, while the balance of the world produced less than in 1932.

"The price of crude oil which during May had been 25 cents for midcontinent, or over 75 cents per barrel lower than the cost of production, has now risen so that it is possible for many producers to conduct operations without loss, and it is reasonable to expect that if present relations between government authorities and the industry develop on normal and sound bases, the petroleum industry will find itself in a much sounder position in 1934," the anaylsis says.

COTTON TRADING IS REDUCED BY FEDERAL LOANS

Cotton production in the United States in 1933 was 13,177,000 bales compared with 13,002,000 bales in 1932. This output was estimated at about 50 per cent of the world's total cotton production, the other half being raised by India, Egypt, China, Japan, Russia, Brazil and Peru.

Combined crop and carryover is estimatedr at approximately 24,550,000 bales indicating an abundance of cotton for all world requirements.

Growers Get U. S. Loans.

Growers have obtained $220,000,000 in federal loans, including $11,000,000 for acreage reduction. About 10,000,000 acres of cotton land ready for harvest was plowed up to curtail production.

Pegging of cotton prices market by the government's loans at 10 cents a pound on stocks of cotton in farmers' hands instead of advancing prices, resulted in checking speculative operations and leaving the market in a semistagnant condition at the end of the year.

However, speculative trades in cotton during the year was greatly increased, and business on the Chicago Board of Trade was four times greater than for 1932.

High and Low Prices.

Lowest prices for the year were recorded on Feb. 2, with spot cotton in Houston down to 5.70 cents and at Galveston at 5.80 cents, these two markets being the delivery points for Chicago cotton transactions. The New York prices reached 5.90 cents and New Orleans 5.75 cents. The high mark at New Orleans was at 11.70 cents, and New York 11.75 cents. These prices were 15 to 20 points above the highs of Houston and Galveston.

Canadian Farm Exports to U. S. Rise in November

MONTREAL, Quebec, Jan. 1.—An increase of more than $600,000 was shown in the export of farm produce to the United States in November as compared with the corresponding month last year, according to a report issued by the dominion bureau of statistics. The eyports last month were $969,306, as against $302,781 in the corresponding month of 1932. The largest commodities were potatoes, $306,103; bran, shorts and middlings, $190,694, and rye at $158,675.

HIGHER PRICES FOR LIVE STOCK MARK NEW YEAR

Some at Best Jan. 1 Levels in Three Years.

Live stock markets headed upward as the new year opened yesterday, with some species at the highest levels for a Jan. 1 market in three years. The good action witnessed in practically all departments was in marked contrast to the slow and weak markets on the first commercial day of last year.

All interests were aggressive on the rise, the better feeling in the trade, lighter receipts and the colder weather stimulating the buying. With the exception of cattle, packers paid substantially more than on the opening day of 1933 for all classes.

Top hogs opened the new year at $3.50, and the average was $3.35. On top of this packers must pay $1 a hundredweight to the government, making the Jan. 1 price for top kinds $4.50 and the average $4.35 to packers.

Prices above Year Ago.

These prices compared with a top of $3.10 and average of $2.85 at the opening of 1933, which was within 5 to 10 cents of the 54 year lows of 1932.

Advances in hogs yesterday amounted to 10 to 15 cents. Smaller houses were eager for numbers on the report of a new sub-zero wave and the possibility that supplies this month may run lighter in face of the larger government buying orders. There is also the probability of a smaller tonnage of pork due to the tapering off of supplies of big weight hogs, already obvious in the receipts.

Wooled lambs held a stronger position yesterday than they have enjoyed for three years, selling readily around the $8 line, fully $2 above the quotations at the opening of 1933 and $1.65 higher than at the opening of 1932.

Top Lambs Best in 2 Years.

On Jan. 1 last year top wooled lambs were slow sellers at $6, breaking 25 to 50 cents on the very opening day of the year. Two years ago, the top of the first commercial day of 1932 was halted at $6.35.

Aged sheep and yearlings also advanced in value. Top old ewes sold for slaughter yesterday up to $3.85, or $1.25 to $1.50 above a year ago, when $2.50 stopped the best in this branch. Top yearling sheep reached $6.75 against $5.25 a year ago.

Cattle ruled strong to 25 cents higher than at the close of last week, but were not as readily sold as hogs and lambs. Big weights were inclined to drag some at the end of the session.

Beef cattle prices do not compare as favorably with the quotations at the opening of last year, although some kinds are considerably higher. Top steers yesterday at $6.75 compared with a $7.10 top at the opening of 1933. Yearling heifers sold up to $6, yesterday, comparing with a top of $5.15 a year ago.

CONSUMPTION OF SUGAR BELOW VOLUME OF 1932

Residents of the United States consumed 81,381 tons less of sugar in 1933 than they did in 1932, according to the preliminary estimate of sugar consumption of B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar economists and brokers. The estimate is based on complete distribution figures for the first eleven months of 1933, and a calculated consumption for December based upon reported sales.

The estimated consumption for the year is placed at 5,620,000 tons raw sugar value as against 5,701,381 tons in 1932. The decrease amounts to 1.427 per cent. The Dyer estimate places the December consumption for 1933 at 355,874 tons as compared with 375,104 tons in December, 1932.
